

HOUSE GETS CALL FOR JOINT STUDY ON MERGER OF POLLING PLACES

for Examination of Election Laws.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8—A special Senate-House committee of Missouri election procedures, with recommendations of consolidation of polling places and ballots "where practicable," was called for in a resolution introduced in the House today by Representative A. Clifford Jones (Rep.) of Clayton.

The committee, five Senators and five Representatives, would be instructed to make a "complete and detailed study of election laws and procedures and undertake to formulate an harmonious code to govern all elections."

One objective of the study would be to remedy conditions like those that occurred last Tuesday in St. Louis county and other areas of the state where some voters were forced to go to as many as four polling places to cast ballot in all elections held that day.

Report Due in 1959
The Senate-House group would report back to the next Legislature, in 1959, with such legislative proposals as it deems appropriate to accomplish a revision of election laws and, where practicable, to consolidate polling places, ballots and other instruments of election in various political subdivisions to the end that a more complete expression of choice by the electorate may be effected.

The committee would be authorized to create associate committees of election officials and others and would receive suggestions from political organizations, political science departments of educational institutions and other groups interested in election procedures.

Laws relating to state, county, municipal, school and district elections would be covered in the study.

Meanwhile in St. Louis Lee M. Dugan, president of the Missouri Municipal League, predicted that legislation to correct the present confusion about polling places would receive strong support from the league, which represents mayors and other elected officials of cities throughout the state.

He referred to plans announced Saturday by Senator Floyd R. Gibbons (Dem.), Independence, to introduce in the current session a measure requiring consolidation of polling places for state, county, local and district elections occurring the same day.

Would Improve Service.
"There is no sense to the present arrangement," Dugan, mayor of Richmond Heights, asserted. "A bill like the one proposed would enable governing units to provide better service to the public."

If a sound bill is introduced, I would be willing to recommend it to the board of directors of the league."

Dugan explained action of the board could be obtained speedily through a poll of directors by mail. This would be necessary because the board is not scheduled to meet in the near future and the league's general membership will not meet until next September, he said.

"While the state league has not considered this problem before, I feel confident it would be very interested in getting behind such an improvement," he added.

Although the problem of multiple, separate polling places has existed for many years, Continued on Page 4, Column 7.

CITIZENS REVIEW BOARD PLAN FOR UAW APPROVED BY CONVENTION

Member of New Group Denies It Will Be 'Rubber Stamp'—Reuther Urges Labor to Clean House.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., April 8 (AP)—The United Auto Workers convention today amended the union's constitution to set up a public review board of private citizens to act as a watchdog on union ethics.

President Walter P. Reuther announced the vote by a show of hands was 97 per cent in favor of the action.

The board, which also will have authority to hear grievances of union members, was approved after spirited debate. Some delegates called it unnecessary.

Reuther told the delegates that "this gets into an area where we must do it voluntarily or the Government will do it. We believe this is the better way."

The union's executive board already has designated six of the seven members of the review board. They are: Rabbi Morris Adler of Detroit; Msgr. George Higgins of Washington; Dr. Clark Kerr, Chancellor of the University of California; Dr. Edwin Witte of the University of Wisconsin; Circuit Court Judge Wade H. McCree of Detroit; and Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of Washington.

The six members already named will choose the seventh member to complete the board.

"Most Serious Crisis," Reuther said after hearing Msgr. Higgins assert that the labor movement faces "perhaps the most serious crisis in its entire history." He said he was not "referring exclusively" to scandals uncovered by the Senate's rackets investigators.

The "unfaithful servants" of labor, he said, "are merely symbols, if you will, of a decline in moral and spiritual values on the part of the rank and file."

The principal obstacle standing in the way of reforms, he said, is "the apathy and indifference of a large segment of the rank and file."

Msgr. Higgins said there had been published charges the review board of private citizens would serve as a "rubber stamp" for Reuther's union. Mentioning one critic (Raymond Moley of Newsweek), the clergyman was loudly cheered when he said, "if he thinks this group is a rubber stamp, he is just as crazy as a loon."

Msgr. Higgins said it would be "an honest to God public review board."

Another speaker, A. J. Hayes, president of the International Association of Machinists, said the Senate committee is being used by anti-unionists as a springboard to attempted destruction of the labor movement.

Hayes is chairman of the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee.

Previously, Reuther warned American labor that it must "clean house with the stiffest broom and brush and the strongest soap and disinfectant" it can find.

Otherwise, Reuther told the convention yesterday, "the reactionaries will clean it for us. But they won't use a broom; they'll use an ax, and they'll try to destroy the labor movement in the process."

He called on labor to "drive out every crook and gangster and racketeer we can find."

He drew a loud cheer from 2,500 delegates representing 3,500,000 UAW members by asserting "All the corruption is not on labor's side."

He charged that "reactionary, corrupt managements would rather pay a bribe to a crooked labor leader than to pay a living wage to the workers represented by that crooked labor leader."

Reuther's re-election as president of the UAW, which he has headed since 1946, apparently was assured by an overwhelming majority in convention voting scheduled Wednesday.

A caucus of Reuther supporters, making up most of the delegates, voted unanimously last night to renominate Reuther and his entire administrative staff of elective officers.

Touche Many Subjects. Reuther's keynote speech to the opening session of the convention that will continue through Friday touched on subjects ranging from union jurisdictional disputes to international diplomacy.

PUBLIC SERVICE CO. WINS NEW CHANCE TO TEST TAX

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8.—St. Louis Public Service Co. today won another chance to continue its attack on legality of the 5 per cent gross receipts tax on bus operations levied by the city of St. Louis.

Division No. 1 of the Missouri Supreme Court overruled company motions for rehearing of the case or its transfer to the court en banc. Then, on its own motion, the division ordered transfer of the matter to the court en banc.

In a decision March 11 Division No. 1 held that the utility firm, having paid the tax many years, was estopped from attacking its validity. The court thus did not pass on legal aspects and upheld a St. Louis circuit court order on the company to pay the tax of $731,433 for the fiscal year ending Jan. 31, 1956.

The firm had paid most of the tax under protest.

LEO A. FISHER IS ELECTED HEAD OF ROADS COMMISSION

Special to the Post-Dispatch. LEO A. FISHER (Dem.), Parma, appointed last Feb. 11 by Gov. James T. Blair as a member of the state highway commission, was elected as chairman here today, in the first meeting of the commission.

Blair appointed Fisher, a large landowner and cotton gin operator in Stoddard county, to succeed Harris D. Rodgers (Dem.), Benton, former chairman, who resigned before expiration of his term. The Governor indicated at the time the commission would elect Fisher as chairman.

Former State Senator J. G. Morgan (Rep.), Unionville, a newspaper publisher, was elected today as vice chairman of the commission.

Other members of the commission, in addition to Fisher and Morgan, are A. D. Sappington (Dem.), of Columbia and W. M. Robertson (Rep.), of Joplin. State geologist Thomas R. Beveridge of Rolla is an ex-officio member of the commission.

the status quo and make their pay off.

Reuther said he had this to say to the committee of Senator L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas: "We will give you full support and co-operation. Go after the crooks in the labor movement, but go after the crooks in management's side of the problem."

Attacks McCarthy. In an attack on Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, Reuther said McCarthy "knew that he was lying" when he said "in general that it would make Teamster union smell like high-grade perfume."

"I wasn't surprised," Reuther said "when Joe McCarthy ran interference for Dave Beck (Teamsters president). They have got a great deal in common, because both Joe McCarthy and Dave Beck refused to testify about their personal financial matters before a Senate committee."

Reuther also charged that "Joe McCarthy is stalling for the most reactionary anti-labor, immoral employer in America, one Herbert Kohler up in Wisconsin."

Kohler is president of the Kohler plumbing ware firm at Kohler, Wis., where the UAW has been on strike for more than three years. The firm is continuing to operate with new employees and non-strikers.

A caucus of Reuther supporters, making up most of the delegates, voted unanimously last night to renominate Reuther and his entire administrative staff of elective officers.

Touche Many Subjects. Reuther's keynote speech to the opening session of the convention that will continue through Friday touched on subjects ranging from union jurisdictional disputes to international diplomacy.

Attacking Secretary of State John Foster Dulles's foreign policy, Reuther said: "What we need in the world is fewer striped-pants diplomats and more practical diplomats in overalls going around the world talking to people of the world about their basic problems."

He said Dulles "is the major architect of the Middle East crisis."

In arguing that management must share the blame with labor for corruption, Reuther quoted Robert Kennedy of the Senate's rackets investigators' staff as saying, "It is striking to us how little help business has been giving to the committee. Often management would rather have

SUPREME COURT GRANTS HEARING TO CHESSMAN

Convict Wins Another Delay in Execution—Fellow Inmate Loses Appeal.

WASHINGTON, April 8 (UP)—A Communist author Caryl Chessman, who has staved off execution for nine years by legal maneuvering from his prison death cell, won another Supreme Court review of his case today.

But a fellow inmate of San Quentin prison's death row—Richard G. Riser—was not as lucky. The court denied Riser's appeal for a hearing and for a stay of execution, set for April 19.

This was the ninth appeal to the Supreme Court by Chessman, who has written three books while awaiting execution for kidnapping, grand theft and attempted rape. The tribunal's action postpones his execution indefinitely.

The court set May 13 for arguments in the case. It limited arguments to the question of whether the condemned author was denied "due process of law" in proceedings to settle a challenged transcript of the original trial record. He contends he was not represented in person or by counsel designated by the state on his behalf.

The court gave Chessman until April 24 to file a brief. The state must reply by May 10. The court will hand down a written opinion in the case some time after the May 13 arguments.

The court threw out claims of the Union Pacific railroad to oil and gas deposits along its right of way in Wyoming.

The vote was 5 to 3, with Justice William O. Douglas speaking for the majority. Justice Charles Evans Whittaker did not participate.

The Federal Government sued in United States District Court in Cheyenne to quiet title to this land after the railroad sought drilling authority from the state.

The question was how to interpret an 1862 statute in which Congress gave the land to the Union Pacific. The Government contended that the right of way granted in the law did not include mineral rights. The court majority agreed.

Disasters were Justices Felix Frankfurter, Harold H. Burton and John M. Harlan. With Douglas in the majority were Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justices Hugo L. Black, Tom C. Clark and William J. Brennan Jr.

In other actions, the court: Refused to reconsider its Feb. 25 ruling that professional football is subject to the anti-trust laws, even though baseball is not. The National Football League had petitioned for reconsideration.

Upheld, 7 to 1, a $50,400 damage award made by a federal court to a Panamanian ship operator under an Oregon law. The lower court had made the award on grounds of illegal picketing against the operator by American union members in Portland, Ore. It held that the Taft-Hartley Act does not cover a dispute between a foreign ship and its foreign crew.

DEATH DECREED FOR 3 REBELS IN HUNGARY REVOLT

Woman Among Those Sentenced in First Show Trial Following Anti-Red Uprising.

BUDAPEST, April 8 (AP)—A Communist woman judge today handed down three death sentences—one against a 25-year-old woman medical student—in the first big Hungarian show trial growing out of the anti-Russian revolt.

Judge Matilde Toth sentenced eight other defendants to prison terms ranging from six months to 10 years.

The woman defendant, Gizella Ilona Toth, who presumably is not related to the judge, paled when she heard the death sentence. She was expected to appeal to the presidential council.

She had confessed to injecting gasoline into the neck of a suspected secret policeman at the hospital where she worked.

More than 400 spectators crowded the courtroom for the sentencing. They heard the verdicts quietly after a warning from the judge. Armed police guarded the courtroom and the municipal court building.

Also sentenced to death were Miklos Gyongyosi, 23, and Ferenc Goenczi, 26. They admitted helping kill the suspected policeman.

The other sentences were: Ferenc Kovacs, former secret policeman convicted of inciting others to murder a suspected policeman, 10 years and banishment from Budapest for five years; Jozsef Lukacs, 18, eight years; Gyula Obersovszky, editor in chief of the underground anti-Russian newspaper "Elunk" (We Are Alive), three years in prison, forbidden to work as a journalist for another three years and fined.

Jozsef Gali, playwright, who worked on the underground paper, one year and fined; Janos Mateffy, 19, one year; Jozsef Molnar, 18, eight months; Istvan Pribelski and Gyula Bago, 25, six months each and fined.

Meanwhile the United States has protested that Red-ruled Hungary violated diplomatic immunity by holding two United States military attaches and questioning them more than five hours.

United States Charge d'Affaires N. Spencer Barnes filed the protest with the Hungarian foreign ministry.

Informed sources gave this account of the incident, which took place last Wednesday: A Hungarian secret policeman stopped Col. James C. Todd, United States military attaché from Tulsa, Okla., and his assistant, Capt. Thomas R. Gleason of Urbana, Ill., as they drove near Lepesny, about 55 miles southwest of Budapest.

The policeman, joined by four Hungarian army officers, accused the Americans of photographing a Russian-occupied camp.

American officials said they regretted that reports Saturday of a total stoppage of emigration to the United States had caused widespread depression among the 31,000 Hungarian refugees still in Austrian camps.

Frontier Obstacles Fail to Halt Hungarian Refugees. VIENNA, April 8 (AP)—Some Hungarians are still escaping to Austria despite a frontier iron curtain of barbed wire, minefields and watchtowers constructed by Hungary's Communist police. Austrian authorities announced today 49 arrived over the weekend.

Meanwhile, a United States consular official here described as "pretty confused" the question of whether the United States will admit any more Hungarian refugees.

He said that, while the issue must still be decided finally in Washington, the processing of refugees for settlement in the United States is dribbling to a halt. Those still being taken are selected scientists or members of split families, some of whom are already across the Atlantic.

U.S. Proposes Powers Mothball 25 Pct. of Non-Nuclear Weapons

Condition to Plan Is Trial Cut of 10 Pct. to Show Whether World Disarmament Will Work.

LONDON, April 8 (UP)—The United States conditionally offered today to join the other major powers in mothballing 25 per cent of conventional weapons as a first big step toward world disarmament.

The condition is that a trial cut of 10 per cent in armaments and additional reductions in military manpower first prove in practice that international disarmament will work.

United States delegate Harold Stassen put the new proposal before the United Nations five-power disarmament subcommittee at its ninety-ninth session in four years of work.

Stassen already had proposed last month that Russia, the United States, Britain, France and Canada start the ball rolling toward disarmament by agreeing to put 10 per cent of all non-nuclear weapons in mothballs at "disarmament depots" which U.N. observers would guard.

At the same time, according to this first step, the United States and Russia would trim their military manpower to 2,000,000 men apiece, with Britain and France cutting to a maximum of 750,000 men.

Stassen added in the new proposal today that if this test stage works out, another 15 per cent of weapons be put in mothballs under international control.

This would add up to an overall cutback of 25 per cent.

Gleason denied the charge and gave up a roll of color film reportedly showing family groups and landscapes. The Americans kept the doors of their station wagon locked and talked through a partly opened window.

Soviet troops were sent for and a Russian lieutenant colonel took charge. The Russians acted as interpreters while Hungarians conducted the questioning.

The Hungarians summoned a stenographer and had the questions and answers typed. They insisted that Todd sign the document before he and Gleason could go. Todd signed but wrote that he did so under protest.

IRANIAN LEADER OF MURDER GANG REPORTED KILLED

Pakistan Also Says It Has Bandit Who Shot U. S. Woman—State-ments Conflict.

KARACHI, Pakistan, April 8 (AP)—Pakistan border police said today that Dadshah, the leader of an Iranian bandit gang that killed three Americans, had been killed in a gun battle.

Police made the report in announcing the capture of 18 members of the gang, including Amhed Shah, brother of Dadshah, who was said to have confessed murdering Mrs. Anita Carroll of Issaquah, Wash., wife of a United States Point IV official.

Iranian police previously had announced the killing of three of the bandits, including one identified as the woman's actual killer. The conflicting reports could not be reconciled immediately.

Pakistan police said Dadshah, his 18-year-old son Hamid, and his third wife were killed in a gun battle with Iranian police five days ago.

There were no reports from Iran confirming the death of the leader, but Iranian police reports said the body of the wife of the outlaw chief had been found in the border region. She apparently had been killed by the bandits themselves because she was unable to keep up with their flight, the Iranian police said.

A dispatch from Tehran said the Iranian government had requested the extradition of 15 members of the gang captured in Pakistan, including Dadshah's two brothers, Mohammed and Ahmed, two other men and eleven women and children.

A government spokesman in Tehran said the prisoners were expected to be handed over today or tomorrow, would face a summary court-martial and if found guilty would be executed immediately.

Kevin Carroll, husband of Mrs. Carroll; Brewster Wilson of Portland, Ore., a Near East foundation expert, and two Iranians were killed in a bandit attack in desolate southeastern Iran two weeks ago. Mrs. Carroll was carried away by the gang, but was shot a short distance away, apparently because the bandits feared she would hinder their escape.

WITNESS MORE RELUCTANT THAN BECK CALLED IN RACKETS INQUIRY

Former New York Garbage Collection Operator Won't Produce Records — Contempt Action to Be Sought.

WASHINGTON, April 8 (UP)—The Senate rackets committee scheduled a closed meeting today to decide what to do about a mysterious witness described as "even more recalcitrant than Dave Beck."

(The Associated Press said that Nunzio J. Scullante, former Long Island garbage collection operator, invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to produce personal records. The committee staff was instructed to draw up contempt of Congress proceedings against him.)

Meanwhile a sharp conflict broke out over whether former Republican Chairman Leonard W. Hall asked for Teamster President Beck's support for President Eisenhower's re-election campaign last year.

Arthur Condon, Beck's attorney, said Hall asked him to see if Beck would come out publicly for Mr. Eisenhower. Condon said he took it up with Beck, who later endorsed the President.

Hall retorted this "just isn't so." He said he recalled meeting with Condon, but didn't "recollect anything in the discussion concerning the campaign."

"Confused Verities." Senator Karl E. Mundt (Rep., South Dakota), a member of the rackets group investigating Beck, described the conflicting statements as "confused verities." He said he knew nothing about it personally, adding "I doubt if either political party would select Dave Beck as its political advocate at the present moment."

Mundt told a reporter the committee was called into secret session today to discuss "a witness who will not produce his books."

He refused to give any indication of the witness's identity, except to say he is "important enough to warrant some attention in our investigation."

Mundt said the mystery witness is "even more recalcitrant than Beck, who brought his financial records to the committee room but refused to surrender them under protection of the Fifth Amendment."

He said this person "not only won't produce his records, but won't even bring them in; he elects to challenge the subpoena power of Congress to make him produce his records in the hearing room."

Mundt declined to say whether the witness would be present at today's session, or even whether he presents management or labor.

Mundt said after Easter the Senate rackets committee will hold hearings on charges of illegal collusion by "dishonest management" and union leaders in the construction industry in New York City. He said they will involve charges of acid throwing, "goon squads" and "skull crushing."

Senate Material Sought. In Atlantic City today, J. Hayes, chairman of the AFL-CIO ethical practices committee, said the group had asked the Senate rackets committee for any material it had on Teamsters Union which has not been made public. He said the Senate committee took the request under advisement.

The AFL-CIO executive council last month suspended Beck as an AFL-CIO vice president and ordered him to stand trial May 20 on charges of bringing organized labor into disrepute. The federation's ethical practices committee has also scheduled a hearing on May 7 for high officers of the bakery workers union which is under scrutiny by the Senate investigators.

Hayes said the ethical practices group is working on a code under which unions would report to the rank and file on finances. He said the code will be presented to the executive council at its May 20 meeting here.

Condon, who sat beside Beck at the recent rackets committee hearings, made his statement about Hall on the CBS television program, "Face the Nation."

He said he went to see Hall, then Republican national chairman, about Oct. 1 last year on a matter affecting the trucking industry. He said during the conversation Hall asked him if Beck would support Mr. Eisenhower in the forthcoming election.

POST-DISPATCH PHOTO REUNITES FAMILY AND DOG

"Pooch," a 12-year-old terrier of no particular breed, has been reunited with its family, after being lost for nearly a month. Photos of "Pooch" appeared in yesterday's Post-Dispatch PICTURES in a story on the Animal Protective Association of Missouri, and were immediately recognized by the owners of the dog, the Raymond J. Karst family, 9368 White avenue, Brentwood.

The dog wandered away from its home last month, and was found by the association about three weeks ago in Richmond Heights after being hit by an automobile. James Ray, field supervisor of the association, said that in spite of "Pooch's" advanced age, he was chipper as a pup. "All he got was an injured foot and a bump on the head, but is fine now," Ray said.

eternity involving "management more than labor."

The youthful attorney said he would be in Seattle for "two or three days" to confer with six or seven committee investigators who have been working in the Seattle area.

Kennedy said he had conferred with labor consultant Nathan W. Shefferman in Chicago. Shefferman had appeared before the Senate committee in Washington during its investigation of the Teamsters Union.

He said his talks with Shefferman were mainly about "members raised at committee hearings."

NEW YORK, April 8 (UP)—United States Attorney Paul W. Williams said last night his office had 25 indictments pending against individuals involved in labor racketeering cases in the New York area.

Williams said that federal investigations launched in New York and in Washington had removed the fear that formerly had deterred people from testifying against labor racketeers.

Williams said 10 of his assistants were investigating racketeering in the trucking and garment industries. He said "12 or 14" grand juries are ready to hear evidence.

Williams said he was "hamstrung" in the early stages of his investigation because employers and others who had been shaken down by labor racketeers had pleaded the Fifth Amendment in refusing to testify.

"I think we need an amendment to the immunity statute which will give a right to compel hostile testimony," he said. "There is no such statute or immunity provision in the extortion or labor racketeering statute." He was interviewed on a CBS program, "Let's Find Out."

SEATTLE, April 8 (UP)—Robert F. Kennedy, counsel for the Senate Rackets Committee, questioned potential witnesses today about possible new hearings on labor racketeering.

Kennedy arrived here last night from Chicago where he said he had spent the weekend questioning persons about racketeering.

DRIVING LESSON FOR WIFE ENDS IN PARK LAAGOON

A driving lesson for Mrs. Sam Cohen, of 744 Syracuse avenue, University City, ended in a lagoon in Forest Park yesterday. With her husband beside her as instructor she stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake, and the machine went over a curb and into the water.

The Cohens were not injured and were able to wade to the bank. The lesson had lasted about two hours when Mrs. Cohen made her mistake near the lower east parking lot of the Municipal Opera. Her instructor had not been for naught, however. Although the general direction of the machine was grossly off course, she managed to steer clear of several trees on the way to the jump-off and there was no damage.

A small crowd gathered and watched a tow truck pull the car out.

COUSINS TO HELP WELCOME DUBLIN MAYOR HERE

It will be something like Old Home Week for Lord Mayor Robert Briscoe of Dublin when he arrives in St. Louis Sunday to deliver a Liberal Forum lecture.

In another police chase, an 18-year-old youth, who sped away when detectives tried to question him at 4 a.m. yesterday, was booked on 25 traffic charges.

The prisoner, who said he is John J. Valentine, a plumber's helper, drove through electric signals and major street stops at speeds in excess of 65 miles an hour, officers said.

The relatives will greet Briscoe at Lambert-St. Louis Field. Also on hand will be James Mulligan, who served as a captain in the Irish Republican Army when Briscoe was attached to IRA general headquarters, and Dr. Gerard Baggot, who attended medical school in Dublin with the Lord Mayor's daughter, Joan.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker will head the welcoming delegation. Briscoe is scheduled to arrive from Dayton, O., at 4 p.m. He will speak on "Survival of Small Nations" at Kiel Auditorium Opera House at 8:30 p.m. The sponsoring Y.M.H.A. reports that more than 2500 tickets for the lecture have been sold.

TWO MOTORISTS ARRESTED AFTER 80 M.P.H. CHASE

Pair Speeding in City Charged With Driving When Drunk and Resisting Arrest.

Paul J. Martorelli and Larry Randles, Delmar boulevard tavern operators, were arrested yesterday after a police chase at speeds exceeding 80 miles an hour in Washington boulevard, from Jefferson avenue to Sarah street.

Both men, driving speedy convertibles, were booked on charges of driving when intoxicated and other charges. Sgt. Michael Roth and Patrolman Roland Nenninger of the Lucas Avenue District were about to turn into Washington from Jefferson avenue at 7:30 a.m. when two westbound automobiles sped through the major stop. Sgt. Roth said the speedometer on the police car registered 72 miles an hour "while losing ground."

The speeding drivers ignored stop signs at Compton avenue and Grand boulevard, the policemen said, but stopped for an electric signal at Sarah street. Martorelli at first refused to get out of his automobile, but later fell to the pavement. He was handcuffed after alighting a blow at Sgt. Roth, the sergeant reported.

Randles, meanwhile, scuffled with Patrolman Nenninger and Patrolman Chester Blaneett, a beat policeman. At Homer G. Phillips Hospital, where Martorelli was pronounced intoxicated and Randles was described as under the influence of liquor, Randles tried to kick Blaneett. In addition to driving, charges of speeding, careless driving, resisting arrest, ignoring stop signs and driving on the wrong side of the street. They were released on bond for police court appearances April 29.

Martorelli, who operates the Seaside Lounge, 5111 Delmar boulevard, has been arrested more than 30 times, including questioning in the gang-style murder of Robert L. Brown, parliamentarian of the Board of Aldermen.

Martorelli was the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for State Representative from the First District last year. In 1948 the license of his Kitty Kat Club on North Kingshighway, was revoked after a customer was shot and killed by a bartender in a brawl.

Randles operates the Uptown Bar, 4952 Delmar boulevard, police reported.

In another police chase, an 18-year-old youth, who sped away when detectives tried to question him at 4 a.m. yesterday, was booked on 25 traffic charges.

The prisoner, who said he is John J. Valentine, a plumber's helper, drove through electric signals and major street stops at speeds in excess of 65 miles an hour, officers said.

The detectives lost him but arrested him later at his home in the 5100 block of Shaw boulevard.

SHERIFF KILLED IN CRASH NEAR BREESE, ILL.

Victim Was Dan Parker of Clinton County—Collision Occurred in Chase.

Sheriff Dan Parker of Clinton county, Illinois, was killed early today when the automobile in which he was pursuing a car collided with another machine on U.S. Highway 50 one mile east of Breese, Ill. He and his chief deputy were chasing a motorist who had failed to pay for gasoline at a service station in Carlyle.

Breese is about 40 miles east of St. Louis.

Parker, 57 years old, lived at Carlyle. Driver of the sheriff's car was Chief Deputy Dale Quick of Carlyle. James Rohling of Carlyle, was the driver of the other machine. Both Quick and Rohling were seriously injured. Parker was thrown from the automobile. Quick was pinned in the car for about 45 minutes before he could be removed.

The driver of the car the sheriff and chief deputy were chasing escaped injury a short time later when the automobile turned over. He was arrested by Illinois State Police who said they would seek a warrant charging him with larceny of an automobile and failing to pay for gasoline.

Joseph Stephen Fillo, 923 North Geyer road, Kirkwood, was killed yesterday when his station wagon collided with an automobile on U.S. Highway 40 near Kingdom City, about 100 miles west of St. Louis.

Fillo, 35 years old, was St. Louis branch manager of General Controls Co. Eight other persons were injured in the accident, including Overton Vaughn, of Jefferson City, driver of the other machine.

Also injured were Fillo's wife and their six children ranging in age from 7 months to 13 years.

The collision occurred when Vaughn attempted a left turn off Highway 40 into the path of Fillo's oncoming station wagon, highway patrolmen reported. Vaughn was held.

Ray Watkins, 43, of 3118 Princeton, State Park place, Collinsville, was fatally injured yesterday when struck by an automobile on U.S. Highway 40 near his home.

Frank Furiaro, of Flora place, Collinsville, told state police he was driving west on Highway 40 behind another car when it pulled out apparently to pass the pedestrian. Furiaro said he did not see Watkins in time to avoid striking him.

John Howard Clark, 62, of the Annex Hotel, 615 Walnut street, died in City Hospital early yesterday about three hours after he was found lying on a sidewalk in front of 609 Walnut. He told police he was hurt but did not know how it happened.

Dr. John J. Connor, coroner's physician, reported an autopsy indicated Clark had been struck by an automobile. The autopsy showed Clark suffered fractured ribs, a punctured lung and fractures of the shoulder and pelvis.

Overland Aldermen Now Solidly Against Bangert Paving Scheme

Four More Say They Will Vote Against Plan Once Approved, Making It Unanimous.

Four more Overland aldermen said today they will vote against a proposal by which Bill Bangert's paving company would repave Overland's streets and property owners would be arbitrarily billed for the work.

Their decision to reconsider their earlier support of the novel plan makes aldermanic opposition to the measure unanimous. Three aldermen told the Post-Dispatch Saturday night that they had reconsidered and would vote against the measure when it comes up for a vote tonight. One alderman, Jerry Refner, has opposed the scheme from the beginning.

Mayor Mort Jacobs reaffirmed his support of the measure, under which the city would contract with Bangert's firm, Bangert Brothers Road Builders Inc., for $13 for each ton of rubberized asphaltic concrete and 15 cents for each gallon of primer liquid.

Paving projects would be designated by the Board of Aldermen and property owners would be assessed the cost of work in special tax bills. No public hearings would be required, as is customary when special tax bills are to be issued.

Jacobs, commenting on the aldermen's decision, said he sided their action last Monday, when they gave preliminary approval to the plan, said: "They are like women and can change their minds."

Aldermen Robert E. Parkin, Joe P. Weaver and Elvie C. Wilkins issued a joint statement Saturday night in which they said they would vote against the measure because Bangert's price for the work seemed high and would be done without public hearings. Following publication of this in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, Bangert called the three and asked them to switch back in support of his proposal, it was learned.

Aldermen Vincent T. Kelly, Ralph Riddle, Everett Lakey and Henry Ruffkahr said today they now oppose the measure because it lacks provision for public hearings. Authority to issue tax bills without public hearings is contained in a little-used state statute which was brought to the attention of Overland officials by Bangert.

To Be Sold at Discount. Under Bangert's novel device, the special tax bills would be sold "at a great discount" to the People's Athletic League, an organization founded by Bangert to help underprivileged children. When Bangert submitted his bid, he explained his price was slightly higher than the average because the work would be done on a tax bill basis, but he did not say that the People's Athletic League would buy the bills at a discount, the aldermen told the Post-Dispatch.

Alderman Parkin, chairman of the public works committee, said a check he made of several other St. Louis county municipalities showed that the average bid for paving done on a tax bill basis—with public hearings—was between $10 and $11 a ton. Bangert's material, at $13 a ton, is superior to that used in the other municipalities, however, Parkin said.

The People's Athletic League, besides obtaining the bills at a large discount, would profit by the fact that there is an interest charge of 8 per cent on the unpaid balance of the tax due from each land owner. Bangert has said that "the people will be getting good streets, with high quality materials, and will also be making a contribution to the alleviation of juvenile delinquency."

Urged Investigation. Bangert first made his unusual proposal to Wilbur G. Temme, public works director, who died last March 1. Temme referred the proposition to the aldermen, but warned that there were some features in it that needed further investigation. He died before he could explain what they were. No successor has been named.

In 1953, when Bangert was mayor of Berkeley, he used the little-known statute, on the books for more than 65 years, to repave streets in Berkeley without public hearings. He has recently proposed the method to three or four other county municipalities, he said.

MARKET OWNER SHOT AT; APPARENT HOLDUP ATTEMPT

Alex Shear, proprietor of A's Food Market, 1301 North Jefferson avenue, was shot at this afternoon as he ran into his store following an apparent robbery attempt. The bullet penetrated his clothing but did not hit him. The assailant, a youth with a snub-nosed revolver, escaped.

Shear, who is 52 years old and lives at 6891 Dartmouth avenue, University City, was about to get into his automobile with $1200 he intended to bank when a Negro youth called from an arceway between two buildings, he told officers. He saw the pistol and ran toward the market. The shot was fired as he reached the entrance.

A butcher in the market, James Fayne, 4050 Lincoln avenue, jumped into a car and chased the assailant down an alleyway. The man fired another shot at Fayne. That shot also did not take effect. No money was taken.

'REPEAT' ROBBER SEIZES $555 AT LOAN COMPANY

Forces Five Into Wash-room—Same Man Believed to Have Stolen $268 Jan. 28.

New Age Federal Savings & Loan Association, 4271W Easton avenue, was robbed of $555 today by a man who forced four employees and a customer to go into a washroom.

Miss Caroline Johnson, cashier, told the Post-Dispatch the robber was the same man who stole $268 in a holdup at the establishment Jan. 28.

When the man, who displayed a pistol, ordered his victims into the washroom he warned Robert Fagen, manager of the savings and loan association: "Don't come out so soon, like you did the first time."

In addition to Miss Johnson and Fagen, those in the place when the robber entered were Mrs. Ruthie Dolphin, a clerk; Andrew Sydnor, bookkeeper; and Mrs. Clarence Laster, 1467 Goodfellow boulevard. All are Negroes.

The robber, a white man, wore a gray cap, blue coat and blue trousers—clothing similar to that he had on in the first holdup. He forced Miss Johnson to give him the $555, which was in a drawer and a cash box. Louis Cammarata, 74-year-old retired baker, suffered a serious head injury last night when he was slugged by two youths who robbed him of $4.

Cammarata was returning to his home at 4305 Laclede avenue after visiting a daughter, Mrs. Albert Weiss, 4320 West Pine boulevard, when he was assaulted.

He was found in a semi-conscious condition in the rear of the Weiss apartment two hours after he left. A neighbor had heard him moaning. Cammarata was taken to City Hospital.

A 16-year-old boy, questioned by police after he applied at Homer G. Phillips Hospital for treatment of cuts on the head and foot, admitted he and two companions had stolen two radios early yesterday from Schweig-Engel Co., radio store at 4919 Delmar boulevard.

The boy said he and his companions had broken the display window and were attempting to remove a television set when pieces of plate glass fell on him. Police reported the boys, Negroes, were admitting other burglaries.

YOUTH, 17, WOUNDED BY YOUNGER BROTHER

John Curtin, 17 years old, was in serious condition at St. Louis County Hospital with a bullet wound of the head suffered yesterday in a dispute with his 12-year-old brother, Michael, over the latter's refusal to attend school.

Police were told that John handed Michael a .22 caliber rifle and a cartridge after the younger boy threatened to kill him. The rifle was discharged, the bullet entering the older brother's mouth.

Michael left the family home, 1325 Milford avenue, several weeks ago because of his mother's insistence he continue his classes at St. Catherine Sienna School, 6901 Page avenue. Yesterday John Curtin and a friend went to the home of relatives where Michael was staying and took him home.

There was a violent argument, and Michael was reported to have threatened to kill his brother "in your sleep." John handed the boy the rifle and ammunition. Michael loaded the weapon and the shooting followed. The shooting was witnessed by another brother. Their mother, Mrs. Margaret Curtin, a widow, was in another room.

Michael Curtin was turned over to juvenile authorities pending the outcome of his brother's wound.

resolution sending the troops to the Mideast.

Formal reopening of the canal could come tomorrow although it already is being used by ships up to 10,000 tons which have paid dues in advance to Egypt's Suez Canal Authority.

Two West German crane ships, the Ausdauer and the Energie, slipped cables beneath the wrecked frigate Abukir and lifted it. The German tugs Wotan and Hermes then towed the group northward toward the dumping ground. The trip was expected to take 10 hours.

Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, chief of the clearance operation, is expected to send word to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold, who will notify the General Assembly. The 81-nation Assembly authorized the canal clearance after the cease-fire which halted the British-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt last fall.

No Break in Negotiations.

Negotiations between Egypt and the United States continued, but there still was no indication Egypt would back down from its determination to operate the canal without international controls. In London, the British Foreign Office said today it would not rule out direct negotiations with Egypt on settlement of the Suez dispute in a broader conference. But such a course would depend on the "basis" arranged in advance for such a meeting, the official spokesman said.

By the Associated Press. Sources close to the Egyptian government threw cold water on reports Egypt was proposing a Geneva conference of Suez canal users to negotiate on operations.

Two important newspapers, the independent Al-Ahram and the government-backed Al-Shaab, also said "there is no truth at all" to the reports published in other Cairo dailies.

The reports had raised hopes in the State Department in Washington that Egypt might be prepared to recognize some rights of user nations in the waterway.

Idea Dropped for U.N. Plan. Egyptians close to President Nasser's government said the idea of a Geneva conference plan was discussed briefly several weeks ago in talks between the United States and Egypt. They said the idea was dropped in favor of a plan to send Dag Hammarskjold, U.N. Secretary General, to Cairo for discussions on canal operations.

The informants said they thought the plan worked out with Hammarskjold late in March would be acceptable to the United States. It was not. Negotiations are continuing through diplomatic channels.

They said Nasser was unlikely to yield on vital points of that plan—complete Egyptian control of canal revenue and administration, and the barring of canal users from representation on the canal authority.

Nasser wants to prevent the revenues from being used as a form of pressure against him.

On the issue of freedom of shipping in the Gulf of Aqaba, many Arabs feel that if oil begins to flow steadily through Aqaba to the Israelis, they will have suffered an economic as well as a military defeat.

Continuation of oil shipments through the gulf to the Eilat-Beersheba pipeline scheduled to open next month threatens the Suez canal with a rival for oil traffic from the Middle East to western Europe.

In New York, Samuel H. Wang, operator of the Fairfield Steamship Co., which owns the Kern Hills, said the ship's trip had State Department permission.

Wang said his firm planned to send any of its ships "anywhere as permitted by the United States State Department—whether it be Israel or any other country."

Cairo radio broadcast a warning in Hebrew—heard in Jerusalem—that if Israel sends a test ship through the Suez canal, Egypt will sink the vessel, even if the act touches off another world war.

Hailsham Says Britain Won't Pay Tolls as Nasser Plans. WASHINGTON, April 8 (UP)—British Viscount Hailsham, first lord of the British Admiralty during the invasion of Egypt, said yesterday that Britain will not pay Suez canal tolls under present requirements laid down by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Hailsham, who became minister of education in January, also said the British-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt saved the world from a third global war. He said that if Britain and France had not acted, the Arab world would have ringed and destroyed Israel.

Hailsham said the present conditions for operating the Suez canal as laid down by Nasser "are outrageous."

"We shall not end by paying those tolls—not on the conditions he (Nasser) suggested," Hailsham said on the NBC television program "Meet the Press."

He said the decision to order a cease-fire in the Suez crisis was a political one. At the time, he said, the military operation was proceeding smoothly.

"We could have gotten rid of Nasser in a matter of days," he said.

U.S. Loan Plan

right military aid would be incorporated into the Defense Department budget, Dulles said he believes all aspects of the mutual security program should remain the "effective foreign policy guidance of the President and the Secretary of State."

"This can be done by the exercise by the President of his inherent power to direct the executive branch of government," he said. "To achieve this result does not require throwing into the Department of State heavy operating responsibilities."

Dulles said the present lumping of all economic aid to countries with which the United States has military ties causes widespread misunderstanding.

"Those who would support a defense program have opposed defense support because they thought it was mainly economic," he said. "Those who would support an economic program have opposed it because they thought it was mainly military."

As for the level of aid, Dulles said military grants would be needed "for some years at a level close to the present," assuming that the international climate does not change. He said possible reduction of local forces might be roughly balanced by increased costs of more modern types of weapons.

Dulles declined to make even a guess as to how much of the present defense support would be considered economic and how much would be put into the Defense Department budget.

As to the over-all cost of foreign aid, he said nothing in his proposals should be taken to mean the Administration would ask more money for the coming year than was included in the President's budget. The amount might be less, he said. President Eisenhower's budget contemplates an appropriation of $4,400,000,000.

Critical questions by Senate Democrats took mainly the line of "when will it end?"

Objective of Plan. Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem., Georgia) pointed out that the Marshall Plan had an objective of restoring certain countries to the economic level of 1939. He said present foreign aid to backward countries has no such spelled-out objective.

"Can we ever stop foreign aid now without bringing them up to our level or bankrupting us and bringing us down to their level?" he asked.

Dulles replied that the objective of foreign aid was "to keep alive in underdeveloped countries the hope and belief that they can lift up their economies without accepting the Communist alternative."

"Our aim is to give them hope," he said. "If they cannot see ahead a vista of hope, they undoubtedly will turn toward the terrible and cruel alternative of Communism, however disastrous for them and disastrous for us that may be."

Russian Aim. Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem., Montana) asked what objective the Soviet Union had for its technical assistance programs. When Dulles replied that Russia's aim was to take over the countries being aided, Mansfield asked how it was that the Soviet Union had an aim while the United States has none definite enough to enable a cut-off date to be set.

Dulles answered that the United States was organized to help spread freedom in the world.

"We have been working at it for 170 years, and you ask when will we stop working at it," he said. "I don't know."

Senator John F. Kennedy (Dem., Massachusetts) wanted to know how the loan fund would be self-sustaining if loans were to be payable in local currencies.

Dulles replied that some loans would be repaid in dollars and that local currencies could be used for travel, maintenance of embassies and to buy products needed by the United States.

"The fund will, I hope, over a period of years be self-sustaining, but it will in the opening years have to be replenished from time to time," he went on.

Asked whether the loans would be repaid, Dulles said "all loans are dubious." He said he thought all nations receiving loans should be required to agree to repay the loans if possible, and he said a good rate of repayment was anticipated.

Senator Homer Capehart (Rep., Indiana) said he was "well pleased" with the proposals. He likened the loan fund to an international Reconstruction Finance Corporation which he had advocated as an alternative to the Marshall Plan. Dulles said that was one of the concepts being considered.

The Senators appeared little concerned for the present about one major change the new plan would entail. Congress would no longer be asked to appropriate money for particular projects in particular countries at particular times, in so far as the loan program would be concerned. The discretionary grant fund also would cut into the present power of Congress to define the exact program.

"The program would be reported fully to Congress," Dulles said. "If Congress did not believe the funds were being used effectively it could cut off the money."

Dulles called the present system in which the Administration comes to Congress with a list of proposed projects, "a most scandalously inefficient way of doing things." Congress cuts the program down, the whole thing must be revised, and commitments then must be made by April 1 of each year, he said.

"The process is designed, if any process ever was, to make inefficiency inevitable," he observed.

Dugan said, there was "more complaint" about the situation Tuesday because a state election on a constitutional amendment coincided with the municipal, school and other district elections normally held in April.

One Polling Place. He said that in Richmond Heights, where a municipal election was not held Tuesday, it is customary to use just one set of polling places for all elections held on the same day.

The arrangement has been on a voluntary, co-operative basis, he emphasized. It has been possible despite a complicated boundary situation arising from the fact that Richmond Heights contains parts of four school districts—Maplewood-Richmond Heights, Clayton, Ladue and Brentwood.

The use of separate polling places for separate elections held the same day was criticized last Friday by County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews and county election officials, who said it led to a confusing, inconvenient situation for voters.

U.S. OK'S PLAN TO REDEVELOP SLUM AREA HERE

The preliminary plan for redevelopment of the Mill Creek Valley slum area has been approved by federal authorities, it was announced today.

Drafting of a final plan will begin at once. The St. Louis Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority hopes this can be completed this summer, so that it can be submitted to the Board of Aldermen for approval in the fall.

Large tracts are to be cleared in the area bounded by Twentieth street, Grand boulevard, Olive street and the railroad tracks extending westward from Union Station.

Redevelopment of this 465-acre district would provide room for industrial and commercial expansion, extension of the St. Louis University campus east of Grand and construction of modern apartments.

Through the Urban Renewal Administration, the Federal Government has advanced $685,200 to finance surveys of the area and has earmarked $18,413,566 as a capital grant for the redevelopment.

Surveys analyzing the degree of blight have been made with the assistance of the City Plan Commission, the Department of Public Safety, the Streets and Sewers Department and the engineering firm of Horner & Shifrin.

The projected redevelopment is to be carried out in stages, with many buildings in the area to be left intact. This will be the city's second urban redevelopment project. The first, rehabilitation of the Plaza area with a public park and a private housing project, is nearing the construction stage.

U.S. TO TAKE PART IN POZNAN TRADE FAIR, 20 OTHERS

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—The United States for the first time will participate in Poland's Poznan Trade Fair, June 9-23, the Commerce Department announced yesterday.

The department's office of international trade fairs also said first exhibitions are planned at fairs in Tunis, Oct. 19-Nov. 3; Casablanca, Morocco, May 4-19; and Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 27-Jan. 26.

Harrison T. McClung, director of the office, said the United States officially will participate in 21 trade fairs in the spring and fall. The schedule is the most extensive since the program was inaugurated in 1954, he said.

Fifteen fairs are scheduled for Europe, two each in South America and North Africa, and one each in the Middle and Far East.

McClung estimated that 30,000,000 persons have visited United States exhibits in 45 fairs in 23 countries since the trade fair program began.

We'll plan your program from start to finish. Faultless service, superb cuisine, a wide choice of air conditioned function rooms. ADMITTS KILLING MAN BECAUSE HE HIT DOG

James Maness, a 77-year-old former St. Louisan, admitted yesterday the shotgun-killing of a drinking companion Saturday afternoon in a secluded cabin on the banks of the Big river near Ware, Mo., about 35 miles southwest of St. Louis.

The Jefferson county sheriff's office reported Maness confessed after 1 1/2 hours of questioning, saying he had killed Tom Hall, of De Soto, because Hall had struck his dog.

Maness said he and Hall met Saturday afternoon in De Soto. They went to Hall's home to get groceries, then to Maness' country home. They quarreled and Hall hit Maness' dog, he said. Then Maness shot Hall twice with a 12-gauge shotgun at close range, the sheriff reported.

Authorities were not notified until early Sunday morning of the incident. Maness, a pensioner at first denied killing Hall, but gave conflicting versions of the shooting before confessing, Deputy Sheriff William Reynolds reported.

3 BOYS HELD AS SUSPECTS

Three boys, two of them 16 years old and the other 12, were held today by East St. Louis juvenile authorities after police reported that a burglar alarm service man reported finding one of the older boys stuck in a broken window of the Circle Market, 311 Winstanley avenue, East St. Louis, Saturday night.

Police said the boy told them he and the others tried to break into the place, but that the others fled when he became stuck. He gave police the names of the others, who were arrested later. All are Negroes.

Supervisor Ketchum said the sales were made on the day of the recent primary election in St. Louis.

The other three suspensions were ordered against: Cassius Lee and Jeff Lee, 4755 McMillan avenue, permitting gambling on pinball machines, five days effective April 15.

B-47 CRASHES IN HAWAII, ALL 4 ABOARD ARE KILLED

HONOLULU, April 8 (AP)—All four crewmen were killed yesterday when an Air Force B-47 bomber struck the tip of a 2400-foot mountain on northwest Oahu yesterday.

The dead were identified at their home base at Altus Air Force Base, Okla., as Capt. Dunn N. Rogers, Altus; First Lt. Sherman Bozeman Jr., pilot, Montgomery, Ala.; First Lt. Frank R. Clausi, observer, Altus; and Staff Sgt. Haskell E. Gray, crew chief, Altus.

The six-jet bomber was coming for a landing at Hickam Air Force Base when it hit the peak in the general area where a Military Air Transport Service plane crashed in 1955, killing all 66 aboard. B-47 jets have been flying in and out of Hawaii the last several days, en route to and from Far East bases.

$202,581,324 IN SECOND FUNDS DEFICIENCY BILL

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—Congress is getting ready to go through one of its annual add painful procedures of re-estoring in one year many of the appropriation cuts it boasted about in the previous year.

A second supplemental money bill is before the House Appropriations Committee to augment current fiscal year funds voted by Congress last year. In some instances, the extra money is needed because of contingencies which have arisen since last year's money was provided. In other cases, the cuts made last year turned out to be too deep.

After the 1956 appropriation bills were passed, Congress voted pay increases for many federal employees. The cost was not included in the regular bills.

Congress also voted for new programs such as flood insurance, for which the pending measure would appropriate $50,000,000. The United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East is $6,600,000, an expense not foreseen when the 1956 bills were passed.

Requests for $202,581,324.

In its regular appropriation bills passed last year, Congress claimed an aggregate reduction of more than half a billion dollars from the amounts requested by President Eisenhower. Already this year the House has passed one "urgent deficiency" bill in which it appropriated $335,000,000 for federal agencies which showed they needed more money than Congress gave them last year. This measure passed the Senate in different form and it is now in Senate-House conference.

The bill now being prepared by the House Appropriations Committee is based on requests for $202,581,324 in new appropriations for the present year, which runs until June 30.

Working on next year's appropriations, the House already has voted reductions of more than $800,000,000 in five regular money bills. Its appropriations committee has cut an additional $217,000,000 from the Commerce Department bill due for consideration this week.

Meanwhile a House Appropriations subcommittee released testimony by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles that the Eisenhower Administration, when it took office in 1953, "probably cut too deep, certainly too rapidly" in funds for the State Department.

Dulles spoke in defense of his department's new budget. The department wants about $228,000,000 for its operations in the fiscal year starting July 1. While Dulles acknowledged that department funds were whittled too sharply in the past—as some Democrats have charged—he said the main reason for increases in the new budget is the growth of American responsibilities throughout the world.

Representative John J. Rooney (Dem.), New York, chairman of the subcommittee, said he was "utterly amazed" at Dulles's fund request, which he figured was $44,000,000 bigger than last year's appropriation and would add 1625 persons to the payroll. Rooney said this would make State Department employment in Washington the biggest in history.

Under questioning, Dulles said the revised program would not mean any increase in current budget estimates of $4,400,000,000 for foreign aid.

Senator William Knowland of California, the Republican leader and a member of a special committee, before which Dulles testified today, said he remains firm in the conviction that Congress will cut at least a billion dollars off the foreign aid program.

Entertainment Expenses.

Dulles asked for $1,200,000, compared with last year's $827,800, for what the department terms "representation allowances" to diplomats for entertainment deemed helpful to their work. He said the amount should be even bigger to permit appointment of career ambassadors to London, Paris and Rome.

Ten House members joined today in introducing a resolution to set up a commission to study how to expand and "modernize" the Foreign Service.

The congressmen—five Democrats and five Republicans—said in a statement that thousands of able young Americans are not even thinking of going into the Foreign Service as a career these days because they believe Foreign Service officers come from a special social group and because they do not think they have enough money.

"A massive transfusion of 'Main Street' into the arteries of our Foreign Service would eliminate this dangerous 'different teams' attitude in our country," the statement said.

The proposal was sponsored by Democratic Representatives Edward P. Boland of Massachusetts, Ed Edmondson of Oklahoma, Don Magnuson of Washington, Leo W. O'Brien of New York and Walter Rogers of Texas; and Republican Representatives Gordon Canfield of New Jersey, Joseph E. Carrigg of Pennsylvania, Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, John J. Rhodes of Arizona and James B. Utt of California.

Mitchell Testifies.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell testified today he needs all the $385,072,918 he asked for in the budget, a sum cut by the House to $349,472,400.

Mitchell was the opening witness as a Senate appropriations subcommittee began hearings on the $2,800,000,000 Labor and Health-Education-Welfare bill passed by the House last Thursday.

Mitchell presented a new twist in arguing for full restoration of the House cuts in Labor Department funds.

One of the biggest reduction made by the House he noted, was $7,000,000 lopped off a $32,000,000 item for unemployment payments to federal workers.

But, said Mitchell, if the present economy drive is successful and federal payrolls are reduced, then his agency probably will need more than the $32,000,000 it originally asked for.

STOCKS MIXED; RAILS OUT COURT RULE LOSS

NEW YORK, April 8 (UPI)—A setback in railroad issues brought irregularity into the stock market today. Trading was quiet.

Utilities were upset by a loss of around 3 in Peoples Gas. Air-traffic and selected industrials met good demand and featured the upside.

Gains of more than a point were well distributed throughout the list. Chrysler paced the motors with a gain of around 1. Gulf Oil, up more than 3, and Eastman Kodak the chemicals, up more than 2.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 143 points, ending at 147.04 at the close. The 20 rails lost 27 of a point at 145.17 and the 15 utilities dropped 3 1/2 to 71.29.)

Good gains also included Republic Steel, up around 2; Western Union, up around 1; and General Electric, up around 1. Aluminum and International Nickel stood out in the metals with gains of better than 1 each.

Zenith Radio jumped around 1 point at its high and finished with a gain of better than 3. Buying here stemmed from reports experimental pay-as-you-see television may be approved this year.

The rails were up by a United States Supreme Court ruling that western carriers cannot drill for oil and gas on rights-of-way. The Northern Pacific was off 2 1/2 at its low but recovered around a point at its loss. Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and St. Louis-San Francisco also were knocked down. Union Pacific touched a new low.

The aircraft made the best upside showing, up more than 1 point. Douglas was strong but below its high. Lockheed, Glenn Martin and United Aircraft firmed.

News that the last obstacle had been cleared from the Suez canal helped the international oils. Gulf featured with a good gain.

New highs were hit by such issues as American Home Products, American Machine & Metals, Addressograph-Multigraph, Columbia Broadcasting, "A" Federal Pacific Electric, Florida Power, Graham-Paige, Gulf Oil, fertilizers, and Textron.

The Associated Press reported that of 1142 issues traded, 424 advanced and 424 declined. There were 33 new 1957 highs and 34 new lows.

Volume totaled 1,950,000 shares compared with 1,800,000 on Friday.

STOCKS MIXED; RAILS OUT COURT RULE LOSS

NEW YORK, April 8 (UPI)—A setback in railroad issues brought irregularity into the stock market today. Trading was quiet.

Utilities were upset by a loss of around 3 in Peoples Gas. Air-traffic and selected industrials met good demand and featured the upside.

Gains of more than a point were well distributed throughout the list. Chrysler paced the motors with a gain of around 1. Gulf Oil, up more than 3, and Eastman Kodak the chemicals, up more than 2.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 143 points, ending at 147.04 at the close. The 20 rails lost 27 of a point at 145.17 and the 15 utilities dropped 3 1/2 to 71.29.)

Good gains also included Republic Steel, up around 2; Western Union, up around 1; and General Electric, up around 1. Aluminum and International Nickel stood out in the metals with gains of better than 1 each.

Zenith Radio jumped around 1 point at its high and finished with a gain of better than 3. Buying here stemmed from reports experimental pay-as-you-see television may be approved this year.

The rails were up by a United States Supreme Court ruling that western carriers cannot drill for oil and gas on rights-of-way. The Northern Pacific was off 2 1/2 at its low but recovered around a point at its loss. Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and St. Louis-San Francisco also were knocked down. Union Pacific touched a new low.

The aircraft made the best upside showing, up more than 1 point. Douglas was strong but below its high. Lockheed, Glenn Martin and United Aircraft firmed.

News that the last obstacle had been cleared from the Suez canal helped the international oils. Gulf featured with a good gain.

New highs were hit by such issues as American Home Products, American Machine & Metals, Addressograph-Multigraph, Columbia Broadcasting, "A" Federal Pacific Electric, Florida Power, Graham-Paige, Gulf Oil, fertilizers, and Textron.

Day's Review Of Business And Finance

STEEL INDUSTRY WILL operate at 91 per cent of rated capacity this week to produce an estimated 2,328,000 net tons of steel and ingots for castings, the American Iron & Steel Institute said. Actual output last week amounted to 2,319,000 tons or 90.6 per cent of capacity. A month ago the mills ran at 93.8 per cent of capacity and turned out 2,401,000 tons. A year ago production came to 2,483,000 tons or 100.9 per cent of a lower capacity.

BUSINESS IN THE COTTON
gray wool market remained slow Monday and mostly confined to a few standard constructions for nearby delivery. In second hand quarters, small sales of the popular 80 square print cloth for quick delivery at slight price concessions were reported.

TOTAL SHIPMENTS OF
finished steel products during February were 7,066,732 net tons, the American Iron and Steel Institute said. This compared with 7,809,453 net tons in January and 7,468,393 in February 1956.

E. I. DU PONT DE NEMOURS, Inc. president told the annual meeting Monday that first quarter sales this year were 9 per cent above like period of 1956, hitting a new high for the company. Sales amounted to $500,000,000 compared with $460,000,000 a year ago. He said first quarter earnings, while the exact figures are not yet available, should be above the comparable 1956 figure. In the first quarter of 1956, earnings were equal to $2.03 per share. The president said his firm expects to spend in the neighborhood of $200,000,000 this year for construction, topping the $157,000,000 spent last year.

Ross on Stand

were "in wholly unrelated fields like chewing gum." Wynn said he had been an Army contractor for 17 years and "I delivered night and day." "I'll show I saved the Government millions and millions of dollars if you care to go into our side of the story," he said. Didn't Use Ross's Name.

He denied ever using Ross's name to help him get a contract. "At no time did I ever try to put pressure on anyone as far as Mr. Ross was concerned," he said. "In the first place, the Supreme Court can't help you get a contract. It goes to the lowest responsible bidder."

Asked if he allocated part of company expenses for entertaining Government officials, Wynn replied: "I wouldn't buy them a lunch. Not even a cigar."

He was asked also about a "yacht" owned by one of his firms. Wynn said, "It's not a yacht, it's a boat." He could not recall ever entertaining any Government officials aboard it.

Wynn said he submitted as many as five bids from five of his companies for the same government contract. But he denied that this involved any juggling of bids to take advantage of what he said was a "loop-hole" in the Government's procurement procedures.

He said he always stuck by the lowest of the five bids from his five companies even though in one case he said he lost $50,000 by doing so.

Wynn was angered at one point by the repetition of a question. "Don't try to trap me," he snapped.

Subcommittee chairman Chet Holifield (Dem., California), assured him that the questions were "not for the purpose of entrapment." Holifield said Wynn would be treated with courtesy and would be expected to show courtesy to the subcommittee.

"You can be sure I'm a southern gentleman," Wynn said.

Wynn said Wynn Enterprises still owed Ross $1500 but he said Ross "probably" didn't know it or he would have asked for it.

Asked why he spread his operations into so many companies, Wynn said it became advisable to do so when he had to pay out 80 per cent of his income in taxes.

"It wasn't any use to sit there and fight and fight and fight for $20,000," he said.

He said, however, that each company had its own area of operations and each had its own manufacturing facilities. But some of the companies shared the same address. He said one company would occupy one floor of a building while another occupied another floor.

By the Associated Press.

Holifield said he was "more interested in these faulty procurement practices" of the military which the House subcommittee investigated last week than in any connection Ross might have had with the firms.

Representative Glenard P. Lipscomb (Rep., California), a subcommittee member, said in a separate interview that the hearings have shown "loose and inefficient" military buying methods.

Mrs. Claire Wynn Ross, the former official's wife, is president of Wynn Enterprises, Inc. H. D. Wynn heads the Southern Athletic Co.

SENATOR PAYNE STRICKEN

WASHINGTON, April 8 (UP)—Senator Frederick G. Payne (Rep., Maine), suffered a "mild" heart attack last Thursday, his office announced today.

In a mimeographed statement, the Senator's office said he is "coming along nicely."

STATE HIGHWAY DEATHS STILL DOWN FROM 1956

JEFFERSON CITY, April 8 (AP)—Missouri's record of highway deaths continues to be better this year than it was last. The Highway Patrol reported today that 12 persons were killed in traffic crashes last week compared with 24 in the first week of April last year. That brought the total for the year so far to 221, which is 53 fewer than at the same time in 1956.

The Scandinavian countries, so also there exists another road for Greece, the road of peaceful co-existence with the U.S.S.R. and the other countries of the socialist camp.

Similar warnings have been sent to The Netherlands and Britain.

Meanwhile, the West Berlin newspaper Telegraf said Russia is planning to establish firing bases for missiles with atomic warheads in Hungary.

The newspaper said in a dispatch from Vienna the bases would be built near Papa, Tapolca, Hajmáskér, and near the uranium mining center of Pecs. All would be in the Hungarian province of Transdanubia (Dunántúl), at distances ranging from 37 to 62 miles from the Austrian border.

At the same time, the East German radio claimed a "secret agreement" to provide West Germany with atomic weapons will be signed when Chancellor Adenauer visits the United States in May.

The broadcast said the agreement would cover the delivery of tactical atomic weapons to the West German army as well as the "storing of hydrogen bombs" in the Bonn republic.

In Copenhagen, defense officials said that about 100 Danish military technicians will receive training in the use of guided missiles in the United States. The first two will leave in a few days. They will be followed by bigger groups. The technicians are expected to stay in the United States up to 18 months.

U.S. Plans to Send Atomic Missiles to West Germany.

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—The United States is reported planning to send "dual purpose delivery" weapons to West Germany as well as to other Atlantic pact allies under its military aid program.

Officials said yesterday the weapons would include guided missiles capable of firing atomic warheads, and some 200-millimeter cannon which fire either atomic or conventional ammunition.

These officials said, however, they know of no specific requests for atomic weapons by West German Gen. Adolph Heusinger. A Frankfurt newspaper reported that Heusinger has made such a request on instructions from Chancellor Adenauer and that it was favorably received.

West Germany will be provided with such weapons eventually, these officials said, in keeping with an American Government decision announced at the Atlantic Pact Council meeting in Paris last December.

Such weapons will be strictly of the tactical variety for the West Germans, it was emphasized, because the West Germans, under their rearmament restrictions, do not have the means to deliver strategic nuclear weapons.

Queen's Visit

to heat. But the staff arose to the occasion and trimmed the cake down to two feet, applied new icing to the decorations and put the cake again on display.

The cake was decorated with a blue world map featuring Britain and France and was topped by flowered decorations. It is just for looking—not for eating.

(The United Press reported that after lunch, the Queen and the Prince were driven to the Arch of Triumph, where Elizabeth placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The Queen and her husband signed the golden book of visitors and then were taken back to the Elysees palace past cheering Frenchmen.)

(The diplomatic corps was presented to the Queen in the early evening. A state dinner was given by Coty and then Elizabeth and the Prince went to the Paris opera to see a ballet.)

The Queen's visit is intended to demonstrate anew and to strengthen the ties between Britain and her closest European ally. A busy round of entertainments and sightseeing was arranged for Elizabeth. Coty spent yesterday afternoon inspecting the royal apartment and British Army vans delivered the royal luggage—two tons of it.

Despite chilly unspringlike weather, near-record Sunday crowds thronged the main streets and avenues to see the decorations set up for the visit. The crowds were particularly dense in front of the palace and at a store displaying a life-size portrait of the Queen in germ—pieces of colored glass—to be presented to her.

Mother's little helper is up to her elbows in flour, making a batch of orange cookies to share with her playmates.

Sugar Content of Citrus Fruits Exceptionally High at Present Time

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor

BEFORE many more weeks we will be enjoying the fruits of summer—the luscious melons, the colorful and flavorful berries. Each season brings its own treats, and one way to keep our menus interesting is to make the most of each food when it is at its very peak of perfection.

Of course almost anything we may want is obtainable almost any week of the year in these days of expert handling and rapid transportation, but there is usually one brief period when every fresh fruit or vegetable is in its prime.

Such is the case right now with citrus fruits. Just before they yield the spotlight to summer's bounty they reach their maximum sugar content. This is true of California navel oranges, Florida and Texas Valencia, and grapefruit. And surely the refreshingly fresh flavor of citrus fruits is especially welcome in early spring menus, for just as we eagerly shed heavy winter coats on the first warm day, so do we tire of heavy winter foods and yearn for something lighter.

From beginning to end of the day, from first to last of a meal, oranges may be served in many tempting ways. That enchanting young miss pictured above is busily helping to make orange cookies, under the guiding eye of a mother who is wise enough to initiate her young daughter into the joys of baking by using a recipe which is not too rich for pint-sized tummies, so that the budding cook can share the cookies with her playmates—no doubt with the proud chant, "Look what I made!"

Orange Nut Cookies.

One-half cup ground orange and juice one medium orange.
One-half cup shortening.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Two egg yolks.
One and one-fourth cup sifted flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two teaspoons grated orange peel.

Pecan halves.
Cut whole unpeeled orange into quarters and run through food chopper. Cream shortening and sugar together. Add beaten egg yolks.
Sift flour, baking powder, and salt; add to creamed mixture. Fold in orange juice and peel. Drop by teaspoons on greased cookie sheet. Top each cookie with pecan half and sprinkle with grated orange peel. Bake at 350 degrees 15 to 20 minutes. Yield: about three dozen cookies.

When a recipe captures an award in open competition, it must be good. This Orange Ambrosia Roll won one of the top honors in a bake-off held at an orange show in California. Delicate and picturesque, it may help you to be acclaimed a "prize cook" by your family and friends.

Orange Ambrosia Roll.

Cake:
One cup cake-flour.
One teaspoon double-acting baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.

Three large eggs, beaten.
One cup sugar.
Five tablespoons fresh orange juice.
One teaspoon grated orange peel.

Beat eggs, beat in sugar, beat in orange juice and peel. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and fold into egg mixture. Pour into 15x10x1-inch jelly-roll pan, lined with waxed paper, greased under and over. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes.

Sprinkle confectioner's (powdered) sugar on a clean tea towel. Remove the cake from oven and invert on towel immediately, pull off waxed paper and trim off crisp edges with scissors.
Roll cake in towel gently but firmly; tie each end with string and hang-up from one end, sausage fashion; to cool; this keeps roll from having a flat side. When thoroughly cool, unroll and spread cake with orange and whipped cream filling, re-roll without tea towel.

Frost with other half of plain orange filling and sprinkle with flaked coconut. To serve, slice crosswise into pin-wheels about one inch thick.

Filling:
One tablespoon cornstarch.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Four egg yolks.
One tablespoon grated orange peel.
One cup fresh orange juice.
One cup cream for whipping.
Coconut.

Cook cornstarch, sugar, orange juice and egg yolks in saucepan, stirring constantly. Simmer five minutes, add grated peel. Whip cream and fold into half of filling.

Fruits and pork are boon companions, and this is especially true when oranges are used as the flavormate for pork chops.

Broiled Pork Chops and Orange Slices.

Six loin pork chops, cut one inch thick.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon ground black pepper.
Six fresh unpeeled orange cartwheel slices, cut one-half inch thick.
Three tablespoons butter or margarine.
Fresh parsley for garnish.

Wipe pork chops with a damp cloth and place on a greased broiler rack in a broiling pan. Sear quickly on both sides with the oven control set to broil.
Reduce heat to slow (325 degrees Fahrenheit) and broil 15 minutes on each side. Sprinkle with salt and ground black pepper.
Top each chop with an orange slice. Dot each slice with one-half teaspoon butter or margarine. Continue broiling until orange is brown. Garnish with fresh parsley. Yield: Six servings.

While oranges and grapefruit are both so full of sweetness, why not combine them in marmalade?

—Florida Marmalade.
One grapefruit.
Two oranges.
Two cups water.
One-eighth teaspoon soda.
Sugar (about six cups).

Remove peel in quarters from fruit. Remove half the inner white part from grapefruit peel with paring knife; discard. Cut remaining peel into fine slivers. If desired, cut part of peel in

THIS MENU BASED UPON GOOD BUYS

By CATHERINE BRENT
Home Economist, St. Louis
Food Marketing Service.

THE following menu has been prepared based upon foods which are plentiful in St. Louis markets at the present time. It is an example of the way in which "best buys" may be used in our daily meals.
Menu of the Week:
Fried Perch Fillet
Cucumber Sauce
Buttered Fresh Asparagus
Creamed Celery and Pimento
Cheese Spoon Bread*
Milk
Hot Tea
Chilled Fresh Fruit Cup
(Pineapple, Bananas, Orange, Apple)
Coconut Thin Wafers

*CHEESE SPOON BREAD.
Two cups milk.
One cup corn meal.
One teaspoon salt.
Four tablespoons butter or margarine.
Four egg yolks.
Four egg whites.

One and one-half cups shredded American cheddar cheese, natural or process.
Heat milk in double boiler. When steaming hot, slowly add the corn meal (white or yellow—it doesn't matter for results, though an attractive color is obtained from the yellow meal). Stir constantly until the mixture is thickened and smooth.

Remove from over the hot water. Add salt, butter, cheese and beaten egg yolks and quickly mix well. (No, there isn't any flour in this bread.) The use of a good nippy cheddar cheese adds flavor.

Beat the egg whites (room temperature) until they will hold a peak. Carefully fold into the cornmeal mixture. Pour mixture into a well-buttered two-quart casserole and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 35 to 40 minutes.

Serve immediately, spooning a serving onto each plate (a berry spoon is fine for this).

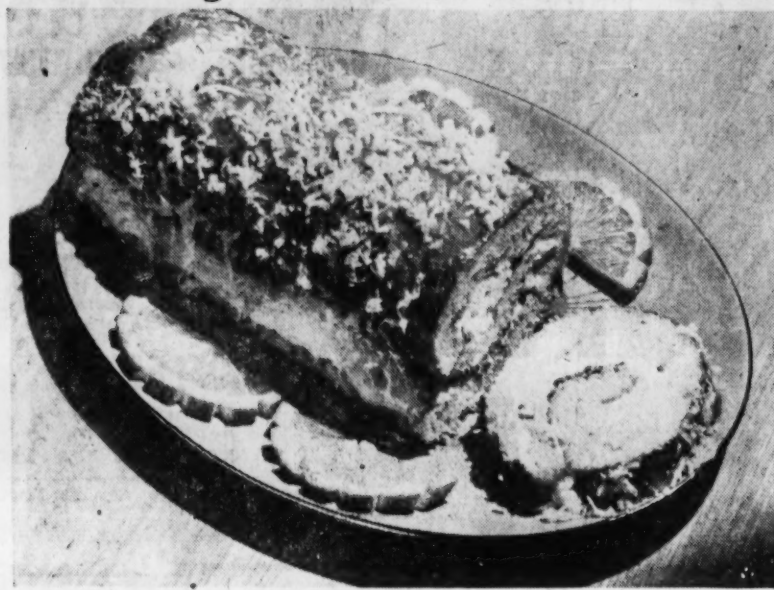

Warm Honey Butter:
Heat together over hot water one-third butter and two-thirds honey. When butter is melted, mix well. Use to serve over spoon bread, pancakes, waffles or French toast.

That Extra Touch

Add that extra touch to broiled grapefruit, and serve with glasses of dessert wines as the finale to a rich meal. Prepare the halved grapefruit for serving, sprinkle with brown sugar, dot with butter or margarine and pour a small amount of sherry wine over each serving. Place under broiler until lightly browned.

This Orange Ambrosia Roll Won a Prize

Delicate in texture and flavor is the roll shown above, which won one of the top honors in a competition for orange desserts.

Answers to Questions About Milk

By ALICE M. COOLEY
Director of Program Service, National Dairy Council.

Dairy products supply 24 per cent of the nation's diet of animal proteins for 16 per cent of total food cost. It is estimated that one out of every 15 families derives a livelihood from some phase of the production, processing and distribution of the wide variety of these nutritive foods.

Because of the wide variety of dairy foods and their regular use in meal preparation from soup to dessert, the questions most often asked by homemakers concern the amounts needed and how to include them in meals for their families.

The following questions deal with milk; butter, cheese and ice cream will be covered in a later article.

Q. Should everyone in my family drink milk everyday? How much?

A. No one ever outgrows their need for milk for it is nature's most nearly perfect food. Adults need at least two cups each day and children need three to four or more cups daily or its equivalent in milk, cheese and ice cream.

Without these amounts of milk and milk products it is almost impossible for the "average eater" to get enough calcium for nerve, muscle, and heart action and bone development and riboflavin for general well being.

Q. Does milk have to be omitted from reducing diets? A. No, a sensible reducing diet limiting amounts of all foods rather than kinds of foods should be used. The meals should be as nearly well-balanced as possible to avoid complications and illnesses due to deficiencies in the diet.

Fad diets are monotonous and are not conducive to prolonged periods of dieting with permanent weight loss.

Q. Is heart disease really a problem of fat in our foods? A. Certainly not the whole problem. Like many other medical problems in history there is no universal agreement as to the nature and cause of heart disease. And we may not see the problem solved for many years.

In the meantime, caution should be urged against making drastic and dramatic changes in our food habits. A great bulk of evidence from nutrition research already completed gives assurance that a moderate and temperate use of a variety of foods (like milk, vegetables, fruits, eggs, meat, cheese, fish, poultry, cereal, bread and butter) in balanced quantities helps

Q. Can buttermilk and home-soured milk be used interchangeably in a recipe?

A. Generally speaking, buttermilk and home-soured milk may be used interchangeably in recipes since the variation in butterfat content, while slight, would have little effect on the quality of the food being prepared.

Sweet milk may be soured by adding one tablespoon of vinegar or lemon juice to one cup of milk and letting it stand 15 or 20 minutes.

Q. How long can I keep milk fresh in my refrigerator?

A. To insure top flavor and quality, milk should be used within three or four days. It should be placed in a refrigerator immediately upon delivery where 40-degree temperature is the most desirable to protect flavor and food value.

Tests show milk will remain in high quality for longer periods of time when milk is properly refrigerated.

Q. How can I include more milk in menus?

A. Milk may be used in many cooked foods such as casseroles, soups and stews, in casseroles, dishes, sauces and dressings. It may be used in baked products, such as popovers, pancakes, muffins, in cooking cereals and on cereals.

Custards and puddings offer another excellent way to include more milk in family meals. Buttermilk, skim milk, cottage cheese, cheese curds, cream may be used in place of whole milk in the preparation of many tasty meals.

Q. Is it safe to use milk that has been frozen and then thawed?

A. Fresh fluid milk is being satisfactorily frozen to ship

Array of Citrus Treats

Here are just a few of the many ways in which to serve citrus fruits. Recipes are given in the accompanying story for marmalade and candied orange peel. To make the Ambrosia (an ideal dessert for a springtime dinner) section two grapefruit and three oranges. Arrange one half of the fruit in a serving dish; sprinkle with one-fourth cup sugar and one-fourth cup coconut; top with balance of fruit, sprinkle with another one-fourth cup each of sugar and coconut. Chill at least one hour before serving.

HOW TO MAKE HAM AND SWEET POTATO ROLL

Use three-fourths pound ground smoked ham, one-half pound ground pork, one-half cup cracker crumbs, one egg, three-fourths cup milk, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and two cups seasoned mashed sweet potatoes. Combine all ingredients except sweet potatoes.

Spread meat mixture on waxed paper in a rectangle 9 by 11 inches. Spread evenly with seasoned mashed potatoes and roll like a jelly roll. Press along edge to seal.

Place roll on rack in roasting pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for one and one-half hours. Garnish with pear halves topped with currant meringue, made by beating two egg whites and one-half cup currant jelly together. Yield: Six servings.

BRILLED WALNUT FROSTING TO DRESS UP 'MIX' CAKE

Even the junior cook in your house can make this luscious cake topping. Try this walnut treat on a "mix" cake and see what a difference it makes.

Brilled Walnut Frosting. Two tablespoons butter or margarine. Three tablespoons table cream or undiluted evaporated milk. Six tablespoons brown sugar (packed). Three-fourths cup finely chopped walnuts. Melt butter and stir in cream, sugar and walnuts. Spread over top of cake. Place under broiler about six inches from heat, and broil until top is bubbly and lightly browned. Watch closely to avoid scorching. Makes enough topping for an 8 or 9-inch square cake.

NEW TREATMENT FOR HAM: PINEAPPLE-RAISIN SAUCE

Pineapple glaze and raisin sauce are two time-proven favorites with ham, so why not combine the two in one delicious tasting sauce?

Combine two-thirds cup drained crushed pineapple with four tablespoons seedless raisins, four tablespoons orange juice, one teaspoon grated orange rind and four tablespoons brown sugar. Simmer in saucepan for about 10 minutes. Spread over sliced ham at serving time. Yield: Four servings.

Pungent Seasoning. Oregano is a pungent leaf seasoning. In taste it is an interesting combination of the flavors of sage and marjoram. It is an essential part of many true Italian and Spanish dishes and goes well in many other fish and egg recipes. Today, oregano is readily available at grocery store spice counters.

Packed With Nourishment. For a two-in-one side dish that's packed with nourishment, serve beans and rice. Heap red beans or navy beans over generous servings of hot, fluffy rice.

Orange Recipes

fancy shapes with small cutters. Add water and soda. Bring to a boil; cover and simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Dice pulp, removing core and seeds. Add pulp and juice to undrained rind. Cover; simmer 10 minutes.

Measure: add one cup sugar for each cup mixture. Bring to boiling point, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved. Cook mixture rapidly, stirring frequently to prevent scorching, until thick and clear, about 30 minutes, or until sirup runs off side of spoon in two drops which "sheet" together. Pour into hot sterilized jars or glasses; paraffin at once. Six eight-ounce glasses.

Candied Orange Peel

Peel from four medium oranges. Cold water. Two cups sugar. Remove orange peel in quarters. Cover with cold water; simmer until tender. Drain, reserve one cup liquid. Cut peel in one-fourth-inch strips. Combine sugar and reserved liquid. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Cook to 238 degrees on candy thermometer, or until a little mixture, dropped in cold water, forms soft ball. Add peel; simmer 10 minutes, or until most of water is evaporated, drain well in strainer. Roll peel, a few pieces at a time, in granulated sugar. Store in covered container. Yield: Approximately one and one-fourth pounds.

Jewish Women's Group
Gives Passover Recipes

Passover, the Festival of Redemption which will be observed this year from April 15-23, commemorates for the exodus of the children of Israel from bondage in Egypt under the leadership of Moses the Lawgiver. It is, in effect, the Independence day of the Jewish people.

Uniquely among Jewish holidays, proper observance of this eight-day event involves a complete change in foods and their preparation and use. The essential aspect of all Passover preparations is the removal of leaven (Hebrew: Chametz) of every type from the home.

The following Passover recipes were prepared by the Women's Branch of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America:

Passover Rolls.
Two cups matzoh flour.

One-half cup oil.
One cup boiled water.

One tablespoon potato starch.
Salt.
Seven eggs.

milk slowly, stirring constantly,

The commission represents the American College of Physicians, American College of Surgeons, American Hospital Association, American Medical Association and Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. Kenneth B. Babcock, director, said omission of a hospital does not necessarily mean it had failed to pass an accreditation survey. The commission makes surveys only on request and has not had time to meet all requests.

Fully accredited hospitals in this area are: Alexian Brothers, Barnes, Barnard Free Skin and Cancer, Bethesda General, Booth Memorial, Christian, DePaul, Evangelical Deaconess, Faith, Firmin Desloge, Frisco Employees', Homer G. Phillips, Incarnate Word, Jewish, Koch, Lutheran, McMillan, Missouri Baptist, Missouri Pacific Employees', Mount Saint Rose, Peoples.

St. Anthony's, St. John's, St. Louis City, St. Louis Children's, St. Luke's, St. Mary's, St. Mary's Infirmary, St. Louis Maternity, St. Louis State, St. Vincent's, Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children.

CHILE GIVES IN TO RIOTERS, BUSES
RUN AT OLD FARES

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 8 (UP)—The government, bowing to the demands of rioters who had disrupted life in Chile's major cities for a week, started buses running here today at no advance in fares.

Riots in Santiago, Valparaiso, Concepcion and Vina del Mar, called to protest against a projected rise of 50 per cent or more in transit fares and other increased living costs, caused at least 18 deaths and injured more than 300 persons last week.

A special commission representing the government, the unions, Chile's unruly students and local transit authorities, was appointed to study the transportation situation and decide whether a fare rise is necessary.

The bus action came after the Senate had voted to grant emergency power to the government for 60 days to cope with the situation. The Chamber of Deputies was to act on the bill today.

COUPLE FOUND DEAD
IN PLANE WRECKAGE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., April 8 (UP)—Mr. and Mrs. John M. Tuohy of Independence, Mo., were found dead yesterday in their small plane, which had been unreported since it took off from St. Louis for Kansas City March 31.

A farmer discovered the charred wreckage in a muddy field one-half mile south of the airport here. Chillicothe is about 200 miles northwest of St. Louis. The plane had struck the field, turned over and burned. The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Tuohy were burned beyond recognition.

They had taken off from Lambert-St. Louis Field without filing a flight plan and against the control tower's weather advice. An intensive search had been made by the Civil Air Patrol for the plane, a single engine Piper Tri-pacer, but the spot where it was found was 50 miles off course.

Discovery of the plane ended one of the CAP's biggest searches in Missouri. As many as eight light planes owned by business men, farmers and a clergyman were in the air hundreds of hours in the effort to find the missing Tuohys. "Ham" radio operators aided the CAP volunteers.

The clergyman who participated in the search was the Rev. Paul U. Kertz, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church at Jefferson City. He and others checked many reports from persons who said they heard a plane flying unusually low.

When the missing plane was finally found, CAP patrol planes were headed for this area, as the pilots, convinced that Tuohy was following the Missouri river in an attempt to make Kansas City, decided he would have lost the river and gone in a tangent toward here.

Tuohy, 41-year-old tool-and-die maker at the Bendix aviation plant in Kansas City, and his wife, Margaret, were returning from a weekend flight to Chicago to visit his sister, Mrs. Eileen Nielsen of Glenview, Ill. Survivors include a son, Michael Edward Tuohy, 17, a Marine stationed at Camp Pendleton, Calif., a daughter, Mrs. Patricia Presta of Erie, Pa.

Nominated to SACE.

WASHINGTON, April 8 (UP)—President Eisenhower today nominated Thomas J. Donegan for reappointment to the Subversive Activities Control Board. Donegan is a former agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

40 KILLED IN CRASH
OF BRAZIL AIRLINER

BAGE, Brazil, April 8 (UP)—Forty persons were killed when a Brazilian airliner crashed near this provincial town yesterday.

Victims of the crash included Liberato Salzano da Cunha, education minister of Rio Grande do Sul province, and his wife. The two-engined C-46 was carrying 35 passengers and a crew of five on a flight from Livramento to Porto Alegre. Its left engine caught fire just after it took off from Bage.

The pilot tried to turn back to the local airfield, but the left wing—weakened by the fire—dropped off as the plane approached the runway. The plane plunged to earth.

Torrential weekend rains killed 27 other persons elsewhere in Brazil. Twenty were killed and 14 injured in Madureira, a suburb of Rio de Janeiro, when a passenger train plowed into the rear of a freight halted by a washout in the track.

Seven persons were killed when 20 tons of rock and earth, loosened by heavy rains, plunged down a hillside and buried a house in Petropolis, 26 miles north of Rio.

32 Killed in Crash of Airliner in Algeria.

PARIS, April 8 (AP)—Air France said today one of its planes crashed at Biskra, Algeria, killing 32 persons.

Biskra is a town of 36,000 about 175 miles southeast of Algiers in the Aures mountains at the northern edge of the Sahara desert.

There was no immediate word on nationality of the passengers, or whether they were civilians or military.

The plane was a DC-3 transport. It had made a stop at Biskra on a flight from Tougourt, about 180 miles to the south, to Algiers. It apparently crashed on or shortly after take-off.

ANTI-NASSER MOVE IN LIBYA

TRIPOLI, Libya, April 8 (AP)—Libyan authorities last night closed the Egyptian Club in Tripoli because it distributed copies of President Nasser's book, "Philosophy of Revolution" without authorization.

Egyptians in Tripoli had opened the club in October 1955. The government closed all foreign information centers last November after the British-French-Israeli invasion of Egypt.

PRESIDENT'S CAR
TRIP FROM FARM

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—Motoring within the speed limit again, President Eisenhower returned to the White House from his farm at Gettysburg, Pa., in two hours and 15 minutes last night.

The President was accompanied on the 84-mile drive by Mrs. Eisenhower.

His time on this trip, through somewhat heavy Sunday traffic in the Washington area, was precisely the same as it was when he went to Gettysburg last Friday.

The two hours and 15 minutes is 30 minutes more than it took on March 29, when the President's driver, a Secret Service agent, whisked along at speeds up to 75 miles an hour. Newsmen traveling behind the President on that occasion were flagged down for speeding. Mr. Eisenhower later issued orders that in the future the White House limousine was never to exceed the speed limit.

Speaking on the United States Information Agency's "Frontiers of Knowledge," a program broadcast in English and many foreign languages, Justice Douglas said:

"Preservation of liberty and equality for diverse groups and minorities is no easy matter. It is one thing to write concepts of freedom into a constitution; it is another thing to make the constitution a living creed."

ORAN, Algeria, April 8 (AP)—A band of 50 rebels raided the village of Sidi Lazreg near here

Saturday night and killed 10 men and a woman.

French authorities said the rebels kidnaped their victims at pistol point in several farms, forced them to enter a small uninhabited house and shot them down with submachineguns.

Earlier, a hand grenade exploded on a volleyball field here, wounding 15 teenagers, including 12 players. The man who threw it escaped.

TWO LEADING LAW PROBLEMS
CITED BY JUSTICE DOUGLAS

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, April 8—William O. Douglas, associate justice of the Supreme Court, said yesterday that "the molding of democratic constitutions" in new developing countries and the "international control of nuclear power" are the two law problems of cardinal importance to be faced in the second half of the twentieth century.

Speaking on the United States Information Agency's "Frontiers of Knowledge," a program broadcast in English and many foreign languages, Justice Douglas said:

"Preservation of liberty and equality for diverse groups and minorities is no easy matter. It is one thing to write concepts of freedom into a constitution; it is another thing to make the constitution a living creed."

The problem of fatigue
in reducing diets

Why do so many people on diets feel tired—lose mental alertness?

Can energy stay up while pounds go down?

What kind of food do you need to keep up your energy?

Recent scientific findings show how sugar can help you lose weight with less hunger—less fatigue

Most people who diet want to do it fast.

Do it and get it over with, they say. In their zeal, they often fall prey to one or another of the bizarre, unbalanced "wonder" diets. Sometimes they eliminate all sugar, and slash many other important foods to a level that wouldn't satisfy the nutritional requirements of a small child.

Soon after, fatigue—both physical and mental fatigue—becomes a daily problem for them. Science says this is Nature flashing a red light.

Why Do You Get Tired?

Diet or no diet, energy is the first need of the body, even taking precedence over maintenance and repair. Whenever energy reserves fall, Nature signals to the mind and the body to slow down. And so any physical effort becomes tiring and mental performance falls off.

The trouble is, few people can afford to slow down. The businessman keeps on driving himself, growing irritable and hard to please. The tired mother nags at her family, and often finds herself becoming unaccountably depressed over trifles.

It is no wonder these people quit dieting—and go back to their old eating habits.

Is there any real answer? Can you keep your energy up while the pounds go down?

What To Do About It

The most authoritative scientific thinking today says the best plan, if you want to control your weight, is to continue to eat a normal balance of foods—the types of foods you should have been eating right along. Don't cut them out, simply cut down on the portions.

All foods have calories. Calories are the units of energy your body needs for every action, even breathing. However, in normal eating, about two-thirds of these energy calories are in the form of starches and sweets. Easy to understand why cutting out either of these foods can cause the body to send out fatigue warnings.

Easy to understand, too, why the newer reducing diets call for mid-morning or mid-afternoon "energy breaks." These can be in the form of a sugar-sweetened beverage, or a cookie, or a piece of candy. These have been called "Scientific Nibbles."

How Sugar Helps

The reason is simply that sugar supplies Nature's "top priority" calories. Ounce for ounce, no other food supplies energy so fast. (And, of course, calories used as energy can never be deposited as fat.)

Sugar can help you live with your diet in other important ways, too. It can help keep your appetite satisfied on less food. And, for most everyone, it makes what you do eat more enjoyable.

The newer knowledge of nutrition now says there isn't a basic dieting reason in the world why any normal, healthy person should have to use artificial, imitation sweeteners (with no energy value) instead of the natural sweetener, sugar.

These are the facts. In their light, why would anyone with a choice to make—particularly anyone on a reducing diet—short-change himself on the sugar which supplies the vigor and quick energy his body needs and the taste his palate enjoys?

18 CALORIES!

Surprise you that there are only 18 calories in a level teaspoonful of sugar! (Some people we asked guessed as high as 600.) Every 7½ minutes you'll probably use up as many calories as you get in a teaspoonful of sugar.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Heinkel, 5451 Walsh street, Susan played roles in the Municipal Opera here several years ago. Her dramatic career began at the age of 3 with a two-week stand as a dancer at a St. Louis hotel.

NEED FOR NURSES OUTLINED TO CITY ESTIMATE BOARD

The need for more nurses at City Hospital and Malcolm Bliss Psychopathic Hospital was emphasized by officials who appeared before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment at a municipal budget hearing today.

The nursing staff of City Hospital needs 146 more people, and to hire them would cost $457,990, Milan Milkovich, administrator of the hospital, reported. Dr. George A. Ulett, medical director at Bliss, said the psychopathic hospital needs an additional 36 nurses plus 14 attendants.

Higher pay will be required to attract nurses for work in the city's hospitals, it was stressed. This is especially true when it comes to psychiatric nurses, Dr. Ulett stated.

Miss Frances Vetter, City Hospital nursing director, said national standards of hospital nursing call for three and one-half hours of care per patient every 24 hours, 65 per cent of which should be supplied by professional workers and the remainder by non-professional personnel such as attendants.

"Here the inverse ratio is true," she said, reporting that the bulk of nursing care now is given by attendants rather than trained nurses.

The Department of Public Welfare, which operated on a budget of $17,247,000 in the last fiscal year, has requested $22,328,000 for 1957-58. A large part of this increase would go to the municipal hospitals.

City Hospital, which received $4,506,000 last year, is asking for $5,672,000. It wants $4,611,000 for salaries, as compared to last year's $3,448,000.

Needs of the other hospitals will be reviewed at subsequent budget hearings.

TRIAL OF COSTELLO BEGINS ON FIREARMS ACT CHARGE

Trial of Joseph Costello, ex-convict head of Ace Cab Co., and Joseph J. Cannella, taxicab supervisor, on charges of violating the Federal firearms act began today in United States District Court, following dismissal of a defense motion to dismiss the evidence.

The defendants are charged with shipping two .38-caliber revolvers from Chicago to St. Louis in December 1955. The law prohibits a person convicted of a felony involving violence from shipping firearms interstate. The indictment pointed out that Costello was convicted of burglary, a "violent" crime.

Defense attorneys argued that the evidence should be suppressed because the circuit court ruled the arrest of Costello by St. Louis police was improper. Judge George H. Moore overruled the motion on ground there was no showing of any improper action by a Federal officer.

CONCERT BOOSTS HUNGARIAN SCHOLARSHIP FUND BY $300

The Hungarian scholarship fund being raised by the American Hungarian Welfare Committee received $300 from a recent benefit concert in Graham Chapel on the Washington University campus, it was announced today.

The committee is seeking funds to assist student refugees from Soviet-dominated Hungary to continue their school at Washington University. Leslie Kohny, who headed the benefit concert project, said gifts of $100 each have been made by the St. Louis Exchange Club and the relief committee of the American-Hungarian Societies of St. Louis, to bring the scholarship fund to $500. The sponsoring organization hopes to raise more than $1000.

Young Hero, Two He Saved

ALBERT UHLE, Jr., bandaging the hand of his son, ALBERT, who was cut when the boy broke a window to rescue his father and DONALD MORAN (left) after the Uhle automobile plunged into the Mississippi river.

BOY, 15, IS CREDITED WITH HEROIC RESCUE

A 15-year-old St. Louis boy's cool presence of mind was credited today with aiding in the rescue of three persons — his father, a boy friend and himself — when the family automobile plunged into the Mississippi river north of Alton yesterday.

Albert Uhle Jr., 1435 Sullivan avenue, a freshman at De Andreis High School, used his fist to smash a broken window glass in the car, which was wheels up in four to five feet of water. He scrambled out and thrust a leg back through the window.

His friend, Donald Moran, also 15, a student at Central High School, grabbed young Uhle's leg and was pulled to safety. Then Albert returned to grope for his father, who clasped his hand and climbed out the window.

The elder Uhle, an analyst for McDonnell Aircraft Corp., was taking the two boys on a fishing trip to Grafton at 6:20 a.m. He swerved to avoid hitting a dog and the machine cut across McAdams Memorial Highway, skidding down an embankment and into the water, police said.

The elder Uhle was thrown into the back of the car, while the boys were sprawled closer to the smashed window. Passing motorists took them to St. Joseph's Hospital, Alton, where Albert Jr. was treated for cuts on his left hand.

The father and young Moran, who lives at 2939A North Fourteenth street, suffered minor injuries. Mrs. Bernice Uhle took them some dry clothes and was philosophic about what had happened to the car. She said she was happy the three got out alive, and very proud of her son.

CREVE COEUR SUIT TO ANNEX 1200 ACRES TURNED DOWN

Suit by Creve Coeur in which it sought a declaratory judgment for annexation of 1200 acres to the city was denied at Clayton today by Circuit Judge Raymond E. LaDriere. He said annexation of the land "was not reasonable or necessary for the proper development" of Creve Coeur.

Annexation of the land would have increased the size of Creve Coeur by about one third. The 1200 acres are north of Olive Street road reaching almost to an extension of Page avenue and extend east and west on both sides of Lindbergh boulevard.

Judge LaDriere said that nearly all the land is now used for agricultural purposes. He added that Creve Coeur is not now providing normal municipal services for the city as it presently exists. The city contended

CHILLY WEATHER REDUCES CATCH IN RATTLER ROUNDUP

OKEENE, Okla., April 8 (AP)—This farm community's annual rattlesnake roundup was slightly chilled yesterday by a storm which dropped the temperature to 40 degrees.

At that temperature, a self-respecting snake won't get out of his den.

The total catch for three days was 987, far below the usual 2500. The longest snake was a 72-inch, one of seven caught in 25 minutes by H. H. Tomlinson of Watonga, Okla. He got $32.50 for it at an auction. The reptiles are sold to zoos and drug houses for their venom, used in developing an antidote for snake bites.

One new member was taken into the "Order of the White Fang," an organization for those bitten by a rattlesnake. Eldon Martin, 17 years old, Okeene high school student, was struck in the left leg below the knee by one rattler while he was tracking another. His bite was described as serious, but doctors said he would recover.

REDS PRODUCING RISING SHARE OF WORLD'S GOODS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., April 8 (AP)—While the non-Communist world generally produced record quantity of goods and power in 1955, the Communist sphere produced an ever increasing share.

This was shown in the 1956 issue of the United Nations statistical yearbook published yesterday. The 646-page catalog contained much information not before available from the Soviet Union, Red China and the countries of eastern Europe.

According to the yearbook, the non-Communist world's factories and mines in 1955 produced about twice as much as in any previous year. Its railways hauled more than twice as much freight, its ships carried about two thirds more cargo, and there were twice as many motor vehicles on its roads as in 1938.

The Communist sphere, while not achieving the same levels, was increasing its industrial activity faster than the rest.

Power Use Up 158 Pct.
In the use of commercial sources of power (mainly coal, petroleum and hydro-electric energy), an index of industrial activity, the Communist countries expanded 158 per cent from 1937 to 1955. Over the same period, the rest of the world increased energy consumption by 67 per cent.

The Communist countries, by 1955, had more than doubled their prewar output of coal and crude petroleum and increased their production of electric energy more than fourfold. The rest of the world produced in 1955 a little less than three times as much petroleum as in 1937, nearly 3 1/2 times as much electricity, but only 1 per cent more coal.

The total steel output of the U.S.S.R., the four major eastern European satellites and mainland China increased 180 per cent from 1937 to 1955, compared with a rise of 68 per cent in the rest of the world. Their share in world steel production advanced from 17 per cent in 1937 to 22 per cent in 1955. The United States produced 40 per cent.

Cement Production.
The combined cement production of the Communist countries increased by 230 per cent between 1937 and 1955, against an increase of 150 per cent in the rest of the world.

The total railway freight traffic in the U.S.S.R. and six eastern European countries increased 190 per cent between 1946 and 1955. In 1955 they accounted for nearly 40 per cent of the world's railway freight traffic.

On the other hand, the yearbook shows that in 1955 the agricultural production in Communist countries has in general not corresponded to the increases in industrial production.

Compared with the 1934-1938 average, the 1955 crops in Hungary show drops of 4 per cent for wheat, 23 per cent for rye and 33 per cent for oats, and increases of 26 per cent for corn, 30 per cent for barley and 16 per cent for potatoes.

Over the same period Poland's production dropped 28 per cent for barley, 24 per cent for oats and 31 per cent for potatoes and increased 8 per cent for wheat and 7 per cent for rye.

Communist China produced only 7 per cent more wheat in 1954 than in the average period 1931-1937, 1 per cent more peanuts, but 20 per cent less soybeans. For the same period, however, the rice crop rose 50 per cent.

SYRIA EASES MARTIAL LAW

DAMASCUS, April 8 (AP)—Martial law was relaxed in Syria yesterday to provide a free atmosphere for elections.

Premier Sabri Assali told reporters that martial law, in effect for 157 days, was lifted in the Damascus, Homs and Suwayda districts. Elections will take place in those areas May 4 to fill vacant seats of four Parliament members recently jailed on charges of plotting to overthrow Syria's present regime.

POLITICAL PARTY FORMED IN IRAN, FIRST SINCE 1953

TEHRAN, April 8 (AP)—Formation of the first political party since all parties were forced to stop their activities in 1953 was announced yesterday by Asadullah Alam, former interior minister.

Alam, who will lead the new National Socialist party, described its aims as distribution of land among peasants, limitation of riches, workers profit-sharing in factories and workshops. Except for about 2000 peasants who have already received land from the Shah, several million Iranians own no land or other property.

Consensus of Program Experts Is That Missiles Are a Long Way From Replacing Manned Planes

Recent Statements Leave Erroneous Impression That Long-Range Ballistic Devices Are Near—Five Years Called Minimum for True Operational Status.

By RICHARD WITKIN

NEW YORK, April 8.

THE GUIDED MISSILE is not on the verge of replacing the old gray airplane.

Only a modest number of relatively short-range missiles have begun to perform missions traditionally reserved for manned planes. It will be at least five years before missiles—both those doing the jobs of planes and those simply replacing guns carried by planes—are allocated even half the Air Force procurement dollar.

The foregoing is a distillation of views held by an impressive collection of men in top echelons of the nation's missile program. For obvious reasons, they are keeping to themselves the planned dates for delivery of long-range ballistic missiles to combat units.

But the general belief is that the 1500-mile intermediate range ballistic missile (I.R.B.M.) is two to four years from true operational status and that the 5500-mile intercontinental ballistic missile (I.C.B.M.) is several years further away.

The cautious prognosis of those high up in the program may strike incredulous ears at this particular time. On the basis of news in the last week or so, the public could be expected to look for a much more rapid and extensive retirement of manned craft in favor of the missile.

Compelling Portent.
The news from Britain was an especially compelling portent. The British, noting "likely progress of ballistic rockets and missile defense," announced abandonment of work on a supersonic bomber and on fighters more advanced than their English Electric P-1. The P-1 is Britain's first production fighter capable of supersonic speeds.

In this country Air Force officials were quoted Friday by Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem.), Georgia, as saying that an I.R.B.M. would be "operational" in a matter of months. This fed the popular impression that the missile era was bursting into full bloom. Actually, a spokesman said later, the Senator had been trying to discourage this notion. He had been seeking to counter reports that a new technical advance had been made that would bring I.R.B.M. into service within the year.

But denials generally run a poor second to original statements. And Senator Russell's comments, plus the news from Britain, left an erroneous impression that the long-range ballistic missile was around the bend.

By contrast, the impression given by experts in the field is that the I.R.B.M. will not become "operational" for a matter of years. They feel that the over-all art of missilery is not much past the stage of the wire-braced biplane.

Director's View.
One who has sought to temper the public feeling that the missile era is here is the man directing the Air Force's long-range ballistic-missile program, Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever. In a New York speech last January, Gen. Schriever said that widely publicized spectacular missile kills and record-breaking flights were "still the exception rather than the rule."

"We are still a long way from the pushbutton type of warfare," he said. The guided missile, as a weapons category, is still in its infancy and subject to many growing pains.

Dr. Dean E. Wooldridge of the Ramo-Wooldridge Corp., the company that sits at Gen. Schriever's right hand and is responsible for technical direction of the entire program, said in February:

"In the next 10 to 15 years, we will find guided-missile weapons systems will be important in our arsenal. Guided missiles will not be available even in limited numbers to perform many Air Force functions . . . much more than 10 or 15 years will elapse before manned aircraft become as unusual in our air power as guided missiles are now."

Dr. Wooldridge noted that "even the attainment by the manufacturer of high production rates does not mean that the Air Force then has a force in being." He said the weapons had to be installed and combat units had to be activated and trained. This process, he added, rarely takes less than two years.

Only Prototypes.
Far from having attained a "high-production rate," the I.R.B.M. is just beginning to come off the line. What the services are getting are a few prototypes whose innards will have to be modified as the first test launchings reveal inevitable weak spots.

In a recent interview a high-ranking naval officer assigned to the missile program put the issue this way:

"For a very long time, we will have to use the missile and the more conventional craft in conjunction."

"I think you will never do everything with missiles. The best guidance system in the world was produced by the little Japanese mother who spawned a son to ride in a kamikaze (pilot who makes a suicidal crash on a target). The human mind will never be equaled in our lifetime by an electro-mechanical combination."

The top scientist in the research division of a major manufacturer said: "Any manned vehicle will always have the advantage of being able to

Atrocities in Algeria Blacken France More Than It Deserves

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 8.

THE EXPOSURE of the atrocities committed by the French army in Algeria will blacken France's reputation to a degree far greater than is deserved. It was the French press and some French officials, including army officers, who protested publicly against the brutality occasionally practiced in the "pacification" of Algeria.

The French resident minister in Algeria, Robert Lacoste, claims that cases of brutality are far fewer than have been alleged and that they were promptly punished when discovered. He told the Post-Dispatch last July that he absolutely forbade reprisals and retaliation for the acts of terror and murder committed by the rebels.

The rebellion has been conducted entirely by acts of terrorism, torture and murder. It is inevitable, unless the sternest discipline is enforced, that some soldiers who have seen the mutilated bodies of comrades who had been tortured before they were killed should seek vengeance on suspected terrorists.

The French army has conducted its campaign of "pacification" with considerable ruthlessness. When the writer was in Algeria, the newspapers almost daily carried stories of the wiping out of a gang of terrorists in which 76, say, were killed and 10 captured. It was not uncommon for round-up operations to be reported with no prisoners.

A former member of the underground, now in the United States, complained to the Post-Dispatch about French brutality in Algeria. When asked if the rebels did not pursue the rebellion solely by methods of murder and brutality, he said: "Oh, but we are not strong enough to fight any other way," appearing to believe that terrorism was moral for them, but immoral for the French. Nor did he give the French any credit for the fact that they were exposing their own failures of civilized ethics.

Apparently brutality has been on the increase, due either to a new French top commander in Algeria or to the long frustration of the past year and a half in putting down a rebellion that is as elusive as insects that come out only at night.

Served in Viet Nam.
Gen. Salan replaced Gen. Lorrillot in command in Algeria some months ago. He was second in command, under various generals, in Viet Nam for five or six years. American officers and officials had a very low opinion of him and finally persuaded the French government to send him back to France.

Lacoste and Lorrillot unquestionably were conducting their campaign as humanely as possible. But it seemed endless and a new commander, ruthless and experienced in colonial warfare, may have seemed the answer to French politicians.

The French army often is exceedingly arbitrary when it has authority. Jean Jacques Servan-Schreiber, editor of the French weekly newspaper l'Express, which is backed by supporters of former Prime Minister Mendès-France, was highly critical of French operations in Algeria.

Although a lieutenant in the air reserve and beyond the age limit for active service, he was sent to Algeria in 1954. He was a member of the French army when it was in command of the French operations in Algeria.

U.S. Renews Pact to Use Arab Airport

Rights to Dhahran for Five Years—Military Sales to Go On.

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP).

THE United States today announced formal agreement with Saudi Arabia for United States forces to use the Dhahran air field for five more years.

In exchange, the United States agrees to:

1. Continue selling military equipment to Saudi Arabia so it can expand its 13,000-man armed force.
2. Improve the civil air facilities at Dhahran and improve the nearby Persian gulf port of Dammam.

However, United States officials said they were unable to get Saudi agreement to lift its ban against permitting Americans of Jewish faith to serve with United States military advisory groups at Dhahran.

The agreement was signed April 2 by Deputy Under Secretary of State Robert Murphy and Saudi Arabia's Sheikh Abdullah Alkhalayal.

Within 1000 Miles of Russia.
It extends the Dhahran agreement five years from that date. The agreement gives the United States a landing spot for its transport planes and long-range bombers within 1000 miles of Russia's Middle East border.

The previous agreement expired last June 18. It was kept alive by a series of short-term extensions.

King Saud reached agreement in principle on a longer extension in talks with President Eisenhower when the monarch visited Washington earlier this year.

American officials said some Saudi army, navy and air force men would be brought to the United States for training, as army and air force trainees have been under the previous agreement.

They said the addition of navy training would be on a modest scale. At present, they said, Saudi Arabia's navy consisted of a few open motor launches. Envisaged are the addition of small ships, such as coastal patrol boats, but nothing as big as a destroyer.

Program Formalized.
The agreement formalizes the United States training program in Saudi Arabia. Heretofore, officials said, advisory groups Canadian Diplomat's Suicide Embarrassing to State Dept.

Release of Unverified Report by Aid of McLeod Likely to Damage U.S. Throughout Free World.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
Copyright, 1957 The Pulitzer Publishing Co.

WASHINGTON, April 8.

THE SUICIDE of the Canadian diplomat, E. Herbert Norman, raises an issue of responsibility which goes beyond what has been widely branded as the reckless irresponsibility of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee in this and other instances.

It confronts the State Department and its head, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, with certain questions. In the Department, naturally, there is the greatest awareness of the damage done by the action of the Senate subcommittee in releasing unverified information about Norman that the Canadian government has previously rejected. The damage is not only to Canadian-American relations—and those who take the most hopeful view feel it will be a long time before this is overcome—but to America's position throughout the free world.

Release Approved.
Counsel Robert Morris of the Senate subcommittee has verified that the information about Norman was released with the approval of a State Department official, Robert F. Cartwright of the Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs. Cartwright is deputy to W. Scott McLeod, chief of the Bureau of Security. In his turn, Cartwright says that all he did was to approve release of testimony of John K. Emmerson, a foreign service officer, who had been asked in executive session about Norman. But whatever the degree of responsibility of Cartwright acting for McLeod in this case, Dulles has, in fact, been able to exercise little or no authority over McLeod and his bureau.

In his highly favorable biography of Dulles, which caused a storm of controversy, John Robinson Beal, who had the benefit of "personal interviews" with the Secretary, describes instances of McLeod's "excess of zeal" including reports by McLeod's men on members of the Department's policy-planning staff who were receiving copies of the Communist Daily Worker. Reading the Daily Worker was, of course, in accordance with Dulles's own view of "knowing your enemy."

Other Targets.
But Communist publications, Beal writes, "were not the only target of McLeod's underlings. When they began inquiring which members of the planning staff read the Reporter, a non-Communist liberal periodical, the staff chairman, Robert Bowie, protested to Under Secretary Walter Bedell Smith, who put a stop to it."

A little later Dulles, according to his biographer, wanted to fire McLeod when it became evident that McLeod had gone over his head to spread derogatory information about Charles E. Bohlen, both in the Senate and at the White House. Bohlen had then been nominated ambassador to the Soviet Union. Dulles was dissuaded by Bedell Smith, who argued that it would damage the Administration to fire McLeod.

McLeod was put in the State Department by Senator Styles Bridges (Rep., New Hampshire), whose assistant had been. His loyalty appeared to be to Bridges and others in the Senate, including Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin), with whom he had been closely associated. His friends said that his views were altered by service in the Department and that he became a "reformed character," doing a good job supervising the refugee program.

Reports have persisted in recent weeks that Dulles intended to make McLeod ambassador to Ireland. Whether the motive is to get him out of the Department or to reward him for his reform, such a step would remove a figure who has seemed from time to time to exercise an independent authority. This has brought into focus the question of responsibility in the department.

Irish Press Protests.
Responding to reports of the McLeod appointment, the Irish Times, a conservative newspaper in Dublin, sounded a note of protest. There have been rumors of Senate opposition if McLeod should be nominated to the post in Ireland, now held by William Howard Taft III. While the Senate Foreign Relations Committee has received no advance notice of the McLeod appointment, it is

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Wondering About Schools

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The R-7 School Board learned Tuesday what every such board must sooner or later learn: that there is a breaking point in the ability to pay a tax levy, beyond which the residential property owner will not or cannot go, no matter how worthy the cause.

There were several other lessons to be learned from Tuesday's voter rejection of the $3.96 school levy in the R-7 district. If there is a legitimate need for additional funds to administer the school system, all available ways of raising such funds must be honestly and openly explored with a view to finding the most equitable instrument.

For example, I would like to know why a bond issue is not preferable to a raise in the building levy. I would like to know the possibilities of revising upward the provisions of the state-wide equalization law with particular reference to growing school costs.

I would like to know if the school board has given more than token support to moves for the encouragement of more business in the R-7 area in order to broaden the tax base. I wonder if any thought has been given to county-wide consolidation of school districts, and if not, why not?

I can only wonder about these and other alternatives as there was little or no community discussion of them to my knowledge. On the contrary, all we got was a statement that per capita assessed valuation was low in R-7, a fact which merely states the problem.

Our children were utilized to disseminate such balderdash as that the school program, particularly extra-curricular activities, would be drastically reduced and the district would lose its triple A rating if the new levy were not passed.

A Citizens Advisory Council became a clique for the school board proposal. Opposition thinking, instead of being encouraged to express itself, was stifled or arrogantly ignored as unworthy, almost unpatriotic. Even the Post-Dispatch assumed a protective role toward this and other school boards, editorializing that "... districts have been forced to ask for substantial increases in tax rates."

Let's get all the facts out on the table before the next election so that we can make a considered decision on how the money needed to be raised, if it needs to be raised.

The Reds' Significance

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Prof. Thomas H. Elliot, in a book review, implies that the influence of Communism on American life is almost insignificant. He overlooks that Communists almost controlled the CIO for a long time, were perhaps responsible for the CIO's initial rapid growth.

Philosophically, the New Deal was at least one-third Marxism, the rest being Keynesianism and American Pragmatism.

At this time, it is difficult to estimate Communism's indirect influence, which may be great. It is materialistic and its main appeal is "scientific"—both part of the main trend of the past century.

While Communism's dogmatism often makes it the enemy of objective science, it has profited greatly ideologically and propagandistically by its phony claim to be "the" true science, especially of history.

For Humane Slaughter

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The first week in May is Be Kind to Animals Week and every humane person has the opportunity to aid in eliminating one of the worst cruelties in our nation by supporting bills now pending in Congress to require the humane stunning of livestock and poultry before slaughter.

The Scandinavian countries, most European nations, New Zealand and most sections of Australia have legislated humane slaughter methods. It is indeed regrettable that the United States, generally considered one of the most humane nations, is lagging behind in this respect.

GRACE CONAHAN, Secretary, MISSOURI LEAGUE FOR HUMANE PROGRESS.

One Third an Electorate

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
It was with considerable astonishment that I read of your editorial referring to the election of Ralph Yarborough to the United States Senate. As a Texan, temporarily exiled, I was appalled to see this man, four times repudiated by the people of the State of Texas, sent to the Senate on the basis of slightly over one third of the total vote—a sad result of the inadequacies of our election law that did not provide for a runoff in this special election.

Those of us who were the witnesses of the political strategy and claims made by the candidate in his past campaigns, can only view his prospects as questionable at best. We can only hope for the best, but your expressions of great hope appear most dubious.

TEXAS VOTER.

New Schools Would Help

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Your editorial relative to the President's stand on federal help in the construction of needed school buildings is timely and well stated. I have expressed myself along the lines indicated in your editorial, "To Help Our Children," as to the opposition of the Chamber of Commerce I agree that it is amazing to say the least.

Unwisdom on Wheels

Regulation of railroads would be seriously impaired by legislation which Representatives Harris of Arkansas and Wolverton of New Jersey are pressing upon Congress. Their proposals would forbid the Interstate Commerce Commission, when it prescribes rates, to consider the effects on truck, air, or barge lines.

The railroads would thus be encouraged to engage in the cut-throat, destructive competition that blackened their history in the days before they were regulated.

Other forms of transportation, principally motor vehicle, often compete unfairly with the railroads because they are not equally well regulated. The ICC has recognized this in its analysis of proposals made in 1955 by President Eisenhower's Cabinet Committee on Transportation Policy and Organization. It approved those of the committee's proposals which would prevent unregulated truck companies from competing with regulated rail lines.

A major objective, said the commission, should be to bring under regulation those truck operations, actually of a public-carrier nature, which now escape regulation because they masquerade as services of private carriers.

The proper approach, as the ICC pointed out, is to stop destructive competition by the trucks—not to let the railroads fight back with destructive competition of their own. Mutually exclusive as these two approaches are, the Cabinet committee, headed by Secretary Weeks, proposed both.

In that part of its report urging virtually unfettered competition by the railroads, it laid the basis for the pending Harris-Wolverton legislation. It developed the thesis that railroad monopoly as we have known it had ceased to exist and that railroad regulation as we have known it, having originated to curb monopoly, should in effect cease to exist also.

The ICC objected sensibly that giving the railroads virtually a free hand in rate competition would put the commission in an impossible situation. ICC would continue to bear "the duty to establish reasonable rates," but would lack "power to restrain excesses."

Noting that the most important amendments to the Interstate Commerce Act since 1887 have had as their purpose the placing of restraints on excessive competition, the commission wrote:

"The history of transportation regulation in the United States shows clearly that unregulated or inadequately regulated competition may be quite as much of a public evil as unregulated monopoly. Full understanding of this fact on the part of Congress is shown by the evolution of the Interstate Commerce Act."

We trust that the full understanding mentioned there still persists undiminished in the present Congress. The Harris-Wolverton proposals would go far toward repeal of the Interstate Commerce Act and of railroad regulation as a whole, under the guise of amendment. If repeal is considered a debatable issue, let us debate it openly for what it is.

A Kind Word for Comic Books

Somebody has spoken a good word for comic books, and not just somebody, either, but the Thomas Alva Edison Foundation. This is in recognition of the fact that 60 years ago, Thomas A. Edison encouraged one R. F. Outcault who produced "The Yellow Kid," said to be the first comic strip. The Kid was an alley boy who never could have known what he was starting.

Today two thousand comic books are sold every minute. Some of these are censored in various cities and states, and some are castigated by public officials, sociologists, and so on. But on the theory that good comic books can be helpful, the Edison Institute has presented awards to "The Story of America," "The Littlest Snowman," "A Treasury of Dogs," and "Man in Space."

No, we have not read them either. But we agree that good picture stories for younger children—call them comic books or anything else—can serve a useful, happy purpose today. The good ones deserve encouragement, even as Mr. Edison encouraged the Yellow Kid.

Spring, Auto Sales and the Economy

Spring is here, and the nation's business analysts have turned to focus on the automobile industry as it moves into what is traditionally its big selling season. Since new car sales are regarded as an important economic bellwether, the analysts want to know: How's business?

Only so-so so far, according to a report in The New York Times. True, sales to date have been keeping pace with those of a year ago. But 1956 was something of a disappointment even though it was the fourth best year on record. New car inventories now are substantially higher than a year ago, but still well under the record 902,000 in stock last May.

Several trends have developed. There seems to be a shift to lower priced models, with Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth accounting for three-fifths of all sales. General Motors' portion of the total market has dropped from 55 per cent to about 48, while Chrysler has zipped from 14 to 20 per cent. Ford too has made headway, and now has pulled ahead of Chevrolet in the low-priced-car sales race.

If sales begin to spurt in the next few weeks, the industry may yet reach the 6,500,000 units predicted by the manufacturers (as against 5,800,000 last year), and everyone will call 1957 a successful year.

If not, the economy may be in trouble. The storm warning already is flying over the home building industry, the farm economy has been limping along in a depressed state, and the plant expansion boom is leveling. Is deflation coming? Auto sales may help provide the answer.

One Precinct, One Polling Place

Any St. Louis county voter can say a hearty "Amen" to the proposal of county officials that polling places be consolidated. Because towns, school districts, fire districts and the state were all holding elections in the county last Tuesday, some voters wound up going to as many as three or four polling places to cast their ballots. If a good many others got discouraged, and neglected to vote in some elections after learning that they would have to go somewhere else to do so, they could not be blamed too much.

Supervisor Matthews and Election Commissioners Cole and Eimbeck say multiple polling places are indefensible, and we agree. It should be possible for a voter to cast his ballot in municipal, state, school and other elections at one place. The municipal officials who declined to accept the election board's offer to consolidate polls voluntarily for this election were letting inertia override voter convenience.

Unfortunately it is not entirely a matter of habit and inertia. Some school districts, especially, insist on holding separate elections, and the reason some times is that the ruling clique on the school board likes to have bond issues and tax rates settled by a tidy little electorate conveniently dominated by the clique. But it is not consonant with the ideals of democracy to hide school elections away in remote places.

One precinct, one polling place. That ought to be the rule for St. Louis county as it is for the city and some other jurisdictions in Missouri. State legislation will evidently be required to establish the principle, and we think State Representative A. Clifford Jones of Clayton has a sound idea in proposing a study of just how to do it.

Dictator Franco vs. Cardinal Segura

The world has heard a great deal about the mistreatment of Cardinals Mindszenty of Hungary, Wyszynski of Poland and Stepinac of Yugoslavia under Communist rule. But for some reason grave indignities against Roman Catholic Cardinals in Spain have been much less discussed and very little reported from the Franco dictatorship.

Spain's tyrannical ruler had hardly more than overcome the Republican government—with indispensable help from Hitler and Mussolini—when he suppressed the pastoral letter of the then Cardinal of Toledo, Isidro Goma y Tomas, on "lessons of the war and peace." Then in 1940 Franco exiled the Cardinal of Seville, Pedro Segura y Saenz.

Cardinal Segura was one of the most devout defenders of prerogatives claimed by his church. Early in the Spanish civil war he left Republican Spain to join and support Franco's side. After the surrender of the Loyalists he took part in the re-establishment of the Roman Catholic church under the Franco rule.

Then in 1940, Franco's regime disregarded the wishes of Cardinal Segura in naming the churchman to address the throngs at services leading up to Easter. The Cardinal, to preserve his rights as an Archbishop of the church, substituted a clergyman of his own choice.

When Good Friday arrived Dictator Franco took the leading place in the Holy Procession, and as he passed, enthusiastic Falangists, dropped to their knees to kiss his feet and touch his garments. This spectacle both outraged and distressed Segura's ardent Roman Catholic population. Later that day Cardinal Segura went to his Cathedral where he preached on "human vanity" and "men enamored of power." Soon thereafter he was put under virtual temporary exile. News of it came out of Spain belatedly by way of France.

Cardinal Segura's death comes at a time when Franco seems to be enjoying a new respectability, almost adulation in official quarters. But anyone who knows the Franco record including what the controversial prelate went through at Franco's hands will be less than enthusiastic. Free exercise of religion does not go with dictatorship and Spain's pompous little tyrant has proved that Fascism, like Communism, can and will interpose its will in the realm of religious practices and beliefs.

Everybody's Transit Survey

Downtown parkers this week ought to resist the impulse to throw away the postcards they will find under their windshield wipers on the parking lot. This one isn't going to be a fabulous trade-in offer. It will be a questionnaire prepared by the Citizens' Metropolitan Transit Committee, and the purpose is to gather basic information on transportation habits and patterns in the metropolitan area.

Such information is vital to the Committee's survey, and the survey is vital to the development of a mass transportation plan for greater St. Louis. As nobody has a greater stake in improving transportation than the person who drives into the downtown area every day, he will serve his own interest by filling out the questionnaire and sending it in.

Those who don't do so ought to take a vow never to complain again about traffic jams, inadequate street space, or parking troubles. And what would life be like if you couldn't complain about them?

Who Could Oppose It?

A letter on this page today calls attention to the humane slaughter bills now before Congress. While man's humanity to man may not seem to have improved so very much in the past century, certainly his treatment of animals has improved, and the proposed legislation should be added to his record of decency.

The House and Senate bills would require packers to use stunning instruments, such as the captive bolt pistol, or anesthetization, as with carbon dioxide, before slaughter of livestock. A good many slaughter houses, including some of the largest, still "stick" hogs and let them bleed to death, and stun cattle with a hammer. This is unnecessarily cruel treatment, and sometimes wasteful as well. The Hormel Co., for one, has already adopted humane methods of slaughter partly for economic reasons. The system costs little and saves meat.

Most of the nations of Western Europe adopted humane slaughter legislation long ago. If it seems strange to find the United States lagging in the treatment of animals, that oversight can be corrected quickly by Congress.

So Congress May Know

The House hearings on a proposal to give the TVA authority to issue bonds have already suggested at least one conclusion. And that is, that information about this agency—accurate and pertinent information—needs to be more widely disseminated in Congress.

TVA's Manager of Power, Mr. Wessenaer, apparently did a persuasive job of conveying information to Public Works subcommittee members. For instance, he showed succinctly why arbitrary and artificial limits should not be placed on the amount of bonds TVA might issue at any one time. Power needs would dictate the amounts, Mr. Wessenaer pointed out. He allayed fears of excessive-sized issues by observing that no management would want to put itself in a bad light by incurring obligations to pay for more money than it needed.

Education, Too, Has Limits

President Eisenhower raised an interesting question when he asked his audience at the National Education Association:

"Might this country not have spared the senseless grief of the War Between the States and a just and peaceable solution to its causes reached, if there had been more men of education, more men of wisdom, in positions of leadership and among our people a hundred years ago?"

With all due respect for the desirability and the good of education, our answer would have to be "probably not." The truth is that both sides in the Civil War and in the conflict leading up to it enlisted men of the highest education. The Abolitionist movement was peculiarly an "egg-head" affair, finding its strongest inspiration among educated people. And some of the most skillful defenders of slavery were products of the best education the age could offer.

Worthy as it is, education is not a substitute for everything else. It does not automatically create wisdom. It does not take the place of character and moral conviction, and it does not miraculously eliminate differences of principle.

"BECAUSE I SAID SO—THAT'S WHY?"

—From The Washington Post.

Red China's Delirium of Reason

The Mirror
Public Opinion

A stifling atmosphere of righteousness and logic is found by British reporter; no one is forced to do anything; instead, citizen is "persuaded" by police, friends and members of local secret committee until he "volunteers" through exhaustion.

By a Special Correspondent in The Economist, London

There is a Delirium of Reason inside China today which makes the western visitor feel deranged, sinful and guilty.

The traffic policeman admonishes a reckless cyclist: "You understand, comrade, that if you had been killed by that truck, it would have been my fault?" "I admire your sincerity, comrade," "It is my duty to the state and my responsibility to Chairman Mao to prevent the deaths of comrades in the street." "I promise, comrade, to announce and reflect on my error at self-criticism tomorrow."

Or your guide gently separates two brawling children on the street: "Young Pioneers do not quarrel in the new China," he chides.

Or you ask in surprise why the two imperial lions have been quietly restored, within the last few months, to their former position at the entrance to the old Hong Kong Bank on the Shanghai Bund.

"But why not? We are not superstitious about stone lions." "Well, then, why take them away in the first place?" "Doubtless there was a reason."

Criticize Mao?

Or you inquire whether Mr. Feng, the editor of Chinese Literature, who has been lauding the encouragement to free literary criticism, would publish an article critical of Comrade Mao Tse-tung in his next issue.

"But"—reasonable, if surprised—"what possible criticism could validly be offered against Chairman Mao?" Vice Premier Chen Yun is similarly reasonable about a revision to the free market to help correct the mistakes which have affected pig, poultry and vegetable sales under co-operationism.

And he is sweet reason itself over the growing activities of "secret factories" operating quite illegally in rivalry to state enterprises: "These secret factories are generally engaged in useful work."

The former capitalists are reasonable enough to become managers of the businesses which they have surrendered to the state; the state is reasonable enough to pay them 5 per cent on the value of their property until a reasonable period of transition of seven years has passed.

So She "Volunteered"

The party is reasonable enough to tolerate a loyal and democratic parliamentary "opposition," whose spokesman, Mr. Sa Kung-liao, explains that the reasonable duty of a reasonable opposition is "not to oppose, but to consult with the Communist party and so insure long-term political co-existence."

The Shanghai prostitute is not ordered into the reformatory; she is reasoned with, by the police and her friends and her street committee, until—inspired, one imagines—she "volunteers" reasonably to enter the reformatory.

'Like a Man Again'

From The Denver Post

One of the prisoners expressed the feeling of all when he said, "It's wonderful to forget you are in prison. Wonderful to be of help, to feel like a man again."

When society shows as much ingenuity in preparing men for their safe release from prison as it does in getting men in prison, we shall have in practical balance better answers to a great and growing problem.

Between Book Ends

GOOD DEEDS MUST BE PUNISHED, by Irving Shulman. (Holt, 347 pp., $3.95.)

Racial prejudice is receiving headline attention in these days of integration in the South. But while the front pages focus a spotlight on the problems of the Negro citizen; it may be easier to forget that other Americans encounter bias also. Discrimination against the Jew, the Italian, the recent immigrant from other lands continues, although the social conscience is more troubled than in other periods of our history. Although the day of the Know Nothing, the Ku Klux Klan, and the Silver Shirts is ebbing fast away, subtle and hidden traces remain.

This novel by Irving Shulman, who wrote "The Amboy Dukes" and "Cry Tough," reminds us that human beings still are hurt to a degree unrealized by those fortunate enough to belong to a prevailing majority. Such psychological wounds would outlast physical injury; economic and social bars may cripple the soul when the flesh escapes.

Here an Italian-American, second generation, tells his fictional story of his college days and how he fought and won the battle of his life there. Going from metropolitan New York to a small inland campus, he first encounters such racial barriers with incredulity, then resentment, and finally solves his immediate problem by a love affair with a "native American" who belongs. That such situations are real and poignant does not lessen the fact that this story seems awkward and contrived.

Unfortunately the author chose to tell it in the first person; as a result, the boy's reactions seem sometimes completely naive especially when most emotional. Over-writing and intensity make for unconvincing impact, even though they may be suited to the problems of youth.

There is too much prattle on the petty side, too much melodrama, and not enough maturity. Shulman may have personal reasons for feeling deeply, but this does not make for artistic detachment. The wounds bleed and we are guilty. But reason must aid the heart to the eventual solution.

Man's Love for a Place
OLD DUTCHESS FOREVER, by Henry Noble MacCracken. (Hastings House, 479 pp., $4.95.)

According to the dust jacket, Henry MacCracken, president emeritus of Vassar, was chugging across the green countryside of Dutchess county one August day in 1910 in his Stoddard-Dayton, and he thought "This is my county." Forty-seven years later, he expressed his feelings with a warmly sympathetic biography of Dutchess from its Dutch beginnings in 1609 until 1912 when its last major boundary dispute was settled.

Dutchess county stretches from the Hudson river to the Connecticut line for some 40 miles in the beautiful rolling country halfway between New York City and Albany. Many of Dutchess's 140,000 inhabitants will find MacCracken's book fascinating, and there is fresh material to interest the professional historians. But to someone in Missouri or Massachusetts, the book has relatively little appeal unless you are held fast to the printed page by detailed accounts of the changing boundary lines between neighbors.

The book's reason for being is a man's love for a place and his belief expressed with its dedication that "The love of anything is the offspring of knowledge . . . a complete knowledge of all the parts which, when combined, compose the totality of the things which ought to be loved" (De Vinci). As county histories go, "Old Dutchess Forever" rates pretty well.

Senators Dodge Record Vote on Oil

HOW POWERFUL A GRIP oil has on the United States Senate has been dramatized again, and at an interesting time. While Dave Beck was using the Fifth Amendment to avoid testifying about his financial operations, the Senate was, in effect, using what might be called a "legislative" Fifth Amendment.

It was ducking a record vote on a tax privilege for oil, which it refused to cut out. It affects every taxpayer in the country, since we must make up what oil does not pay. It came about this way: Two senators, a Republican and a Democrat, sought to reduce the 27½ per cent depletion allowance for the oil industry, which is a flat deduction of that amount before taxes are computed. For this purpose, they offered amendments to the bill before the Senate which extends for another year corporation taxes at a 52 per cent maximum rate and extends certain excise taxes, also for another year.

Few Hands Go Up.

The Republican, Senator John J. Williams of Delaware, proposed a reduction to 20 per cent in the depletion allowance. The Democrat, Senator Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, proposed a graduated scale which would give a greater depletion allowance to small operators than big ones, as the former take more of a risk in exploring for new holes.

Williams, whose amendment came up first, tried to get a record roll call vote to show how each Senator stood. But he could not get the required number to force a roll call—a fifth of those present—to raise their hands.

In fact, he got only five. Including himself, the first time he tried. The others were George D. Aiken of Vermont, and Charles E. Potter of Michigan, Republicans, and two Democrats, Douglas and Frank Lausche of Ohio. That was not enough.

Subsequently, when he tried again, he got seven, still not enough. The two recruits he picked up on the second try were Senators Jacob K. Javits (Rep.), New York, and Richard Neuberger (Dem.), Oregon.

Disillusioning Performance.

Likewise, Douglas was unable to get a roll call on his amendment. Both his and Williams' amendments were shouted down by voice vote, with no record to which their constituents can ever refer.

During the consideration of the two amendments, both Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Democratic floor leader, and Senator William F. Knowland of California, minority leader, kept a close tab to make sure that nothing untoward happened to oil, which both are constantly active to protect. Oil is important in both of their states.

It was disillusioning, unless you are a complete cynic, to sit in the Senate gallery and watch this demonstration of how our public servants covered before the oil industry.

It was not the first demonstration on this particular oil tax issue. Last week's shabby spectacle was just a repetition of another two years ago.

Others Must Pay Tax.

Then Senators Williams, Aiken and Douglas failed, as they did this year, in three tries to get Senators to stand up and be counted on reducing what is an unconscionable special privilege for oil that no other corporation nor individual taxpayer enjoys.

In vain, Williams pleaded that "the oil industry is not now paying its proportionate share in financing our government and our defense."

Aiken said, "If we give this depletion allowance to a segment of our economy, the rest of us have to make it up in taxes." And there is the whole story.

In documentation of the favoritism, Williams put into the record reports on three of our biggest international oil corporations. He showed that two of them paid no taxes at all into our Treasury, and the third paid only a small tax. This was because of the depletion allowance and the offset of foreign taxes against domestic taxes.

Douglas provided a lot more documentation, with Treasury reports on 27 oil companies, most of them covering the 10 years from 1945 to 1954 inclusive, but two of shorter periods.

Some Escape Tax.

Of these companies, one had paid no taxes at all for seven years, 1948 to 1954. Of the rest, one had paid no taxes at all for five of the 10 years, though its income ranged from $134,000 to $2,200,000.

One paid no income tax for four of the 10 years. Four paid no tax for two of the 10 years. Four of the 27 companies paid no income tax for one of the 10 years.

Douglas pointed out that other corporations paid taxes ranging from 38 to the maximum 52 per cent. Of the 27 oil companies, not one ever had paid in any of the 10 years as high as 38 per cent.

One had paid $4.09 per cent for one of the 10 years. But the average for the 10 years for all of them was far below that.

Cherry Blossom Jam.

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—Nearly 300,000 persons thronged to the flower-ringed tidal basin for the cherry blossom festival yesterday in warm sunny weather. The good weather also brought one of the worst traffic jams of any festival year on roads leading to the tidal basin.

CHICAGO...

SKYline

PLEASE

By making your Long Distance calls station-to-station, you can take advantage of bargain rates—about 1/3 lower than for person-to-person calls. This means you can make three out-of-town calls for about the price of two. Start the station-to-station habit with your next Long Distance call . . . and save money.

Here's how easy it is to make a station-to-station call

Just tell the Long Distance operator:

* The city you're calling
* The telephone number you're calling

Like this: "Chicago . . . SKYline 4-9981"

If you don't know the number, just give the operator the name and address of the party you're calling, and tell her: "Please make this call station-to-station."

That's all there is to it. The operator will give you the number to jot down for future use . . . and your call will be charged at the lower station-to-station rate.

Call by number . . . it's twice as fast

DR. ALBERT KUNTZ

Praised for Investigations of Involuntary Nervous System.

The contributions to science and medicine of Dr. Albert Kuntz, international authority on the autonomic or involuntary nervous system, were praised at a memorial service yesterday at St. Louis University Law Auditorium.

Dr. Kuntz, former director of the department of anatomy at St. Louis University School of Medicine, and a faculty member for 44 years, died Jan. 19 of heart disease. He was 77 years old and was one of the nation's foremost neuro-anatomists.

In a lifetime of research, Dr. Kuntz "yielded not a millimeter to the false fascination of novelty nor to the allure of sensation, but persisted determinedly in the pursuit of truth," the Rev. Alphonse M. Schwitalla S.J., dean emeritus of the medical school, said.

"The outstanding characteristic of Albert Kuntz as an investigator was persistence."

Application to Healing.

Dr. Kuntz, who was acting director of the department of anatomy, said the world would long remember Dr. Kuntz, not only for his fundamental studies of the autonomic nervous system, but for the application of his research to the healing of the sick, and for his eminence as an educator.

"Defined simply," Dr. Christensen said, "the autonomic nervous system is the motor component which innervates smooth muscle, cardiac muscle and glandular tissue. The implications of this simple statement are great, however, because the motor innervation of cardiac muscle alone becomes the study of the nervous control of the activity of the heart."

Dr. Kuntz did not stop with the search for the form and structure of the intricate system that controls involuntary responses, the speaker pointed out, but went on in recent years to biological and chemical problems, particularly in regard to autonomic ganglion cells.

Publications Praised.

Referring to Dr. Kuntz's textbook, "The Autonomic Nervous System," and his numerous other publications, Dr. Christensen said:

"Truly, the wealth of his knowledge in his field, his breadth of study, his exceptional knowledge of the pertinent literature, has made him a fountainhead of information. Hardly a paper published in this field is without reference to some of his findings."

Dr. Christensen said Dr. Kuntz would be remembered for providing the anatomic basis "for much clinical work, diagnostic as well as therapeutic, and undoubtedly he has set the stage for pioneer clinical investigations."

As an educator, Dr. Kuntz believed in a strong graduate student program and tried to maintain such a program at the university despite many difficulties, including the fact that the academic specialist in anatomy receives poor pay in comparison with the practicing physician, it was said.

Other speakers included Dr. James W. Colbert Jr., dean of the medical school; Dr. Arthur W. Neilson, who spoke on behalf of himself and his father, Dr. Charles H. Neilson, former associate dean of the school, and the Rev. Jerome J. Marchetti S.J., dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. Colbert said Dr. Kuntz lived a life of quiet dedication and could be numbered among the few men who really understood the meaning of the word "commitment."

Approximately 500 persons attended the memorial service. Prayers of invocation and benediction were given by Father Marchetti.

4 HONORED FOR SERVICE

Four persons will be honored for their long employment at a dinner to be given by the Western Electric Co. Thursday evening at the Elks Club in Clayton.

Claude C. Hutchison, 1142 Francis place, Richmond Heights, will be honored for 45 years of service. William L. Howland, 363 Sidney avenue, Webster Groves; Carl T. Julius, 6931 Alabama avenue; and Charles Storm, 7677 Lindbergh drive, Richmond Heights, all have completed 30 years.

PICASSO EXHIBIT FOR SPAIN

CANNES, France, April 8 (AP)—Pablo Picasso, a member of the Communist party and since 1939 an enemy of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime in his native Spain, is planning exhibits of his paintings in Madrid and Barcelona this year.

He told reporters he had been invited to show his work there by a delegation from Spain which presumably had the tacit approval of the Franco government.

CATHOLICS URGED TO CULTIVATE MINDS

Nun Declares Anti-Intellectual Cannot Possess Christian Point of View.

The anti-intellectual, "so prominent in America today, is basically incompatible with a truly Christian point of view," Sister Annette Walters C.S.J., St. Paul, Minn., said yesterday at the annual convention of the St. Louis Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women at Hotel Chase.

Sister Annette, chairman of the psychological department of the College of St. Catherine, made a plea for intellectualism in her talk at the opening session. More than 2100 women are attending the two-day meeting.

The nun urged Catholic women to take the lead "in fostering the life of the mind among our Catholic people, even if you yourself do not have the opportunity to become a scholar."

Agrees With Critic.

Commenting that her audience might not enjoy such criticism, Sister Annette said she was in accord with the recent observation of Will Herberg, noted Jewish scholar, that in Catholicism "there is too much cultivation of the traditional, the conventional, the regular, and too little readiness to break bounds and venture forth."

She recalled Herberg added: "Catholic thinking, by and large, is too much preoccupied with self-congratulation and self-justification, and altogether too little concerned with self-criticism."

In the world struggle for the minds of men today, Catholic women must aid in the development of Catholic scholars in the humanities and sciences if evil is to be overcome by good thinking, Sister Annette said.

Speaking on the program, Mrs. Robert H. Mahoney, Hartford, Conn., president of the National Council of Catholic Women, viewed the church and religious programs of the organization.

Quotas Called Unfair.

Mrs. Mahoney, in praising America's "quick response" to the Hungarian refugees, said: "It has been heartwarming, but it has seemed a mockery to those who have spent years in a European refugee camp and whose prospect of resettlement here is blocked by the fact that the (immigration) quota from their country of origin is mortgaged for years to come. If we believe that all men are created equal, why do we put such a premium on the place of birth?"

Mrs. John J. Shada, president of the Detroit Council of Catholic Women, was in the panel.

New officers are Mrs. William B. Knapp, 7 Scarsdale lane, Richmond Heights, president; Mrs. William F. Brinkman, Ste. Genevieve, Mo., and Mrs. Charles J. Tintera, 3710 Utah place, vice presidents; Mrs. Eugene C. Burg, 141 Heatherwood drive, Olivette, secretary, and Mrs. Charles G. Heitzer, 3622 Montana street, treasurer.

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter was the celebrant of a solemn pontifical Mass at St. Louis Cathedral today. Bishop Albert R. Zuroweste of Belleville gave the sermon. The Rev. James Keller M.M., of New York, head of The Christophers movement, addressed today's convention luncheon.

CARDINAL SEGURA
OF SPAIN IS DEAD

Ranking Catholic Prelate Was Long a Controversial Figure.

MADRID, April 8—Cardinal Pedro Segura y Sanz, once primate of Spain, the ranking Roman Catholic clergyman of his country, died today. He was 76 years old.

Cardinal Segura was a highly controversial figure for decades in the spheres of politics and religion.

He was born near Burgos, became a priest in 1906, and, after a period as a professor of theology at Valladolid, was made titular bishop of Apollonia at the age of 36. He was appointed Archbishop of Burgos in 1926. The following year he was elevated to the rank of cardinal and appointed archbishop of Toledo and primate of Spain.

Three years later, after the revolution in which the Second Republic replaced King Alfonso XIII, Cardinal Segura issued a premonitionist pastoral letter which resulted in outbreaks of violence against the church. He fled to France in the garb of a priest, then returned only to be arrested and exiled. He spent the years from 1931 until 1937 in Rome when, with the victory of Generalissimo Francisco Franco over the Republicans, he returned as Archbishop of Seville.

Cardinal Segura felt that King Alfonso had been too liberal, and did not approve of the Second Republic, either, he was to find the Franco Government no more to his liking. His disapproval of the generalissimo became well known. It went so far that in 1953 his snub of the Spanish chief of state drew a reproof from the Vatican. This was an occasion on which Cardinal Segura said he could not place any priest in his diocese at the disposal of the general; he wished to celebrate mass in a private chapel.

One of Cardinal Segura's chief complaints was that the Franco Government was too liberal with Protestants. He called on one occasion for a "grand crusade" against Protestants because they said they were "combating Catholic priests and calumniating them." He felt that Protestantism should be outlawed in Spain, and that "freedom of thought, learning and an accurate sense of musician-ship. Too little of this was present yesterday."

The performance of an art song requires an ability for immediate projection. It is frequently an "exquisite moment" of great sensibility or dramatic tension, and the singer must be able to "cry to the fleeting moment stay," and to capture with her first notes the feeling and mood of a song.

In the lighter vein of the opening group, two French fifteenth century songs and two from the Italian Baroque, Mrs. Flaherty was most successful, as in the rhapsodic contemporary cycle by John La Montaine, the Mozart qualities of the Mozart, Schubert and Brahms songs were entirely absent; while the sensuous imagery and barely latent passion of Debussy's C'est l'extase were not even hinted at; and in his Cheveux de Bois a muddled start confused the rhythmic pattern throughout and the mood was lost.

Two songs from Britten's Les Illuminations "seemed out of place in such a recital, being intended for string orchestra. The rhythm of "Antique" was not clear, the soprano's two against the three of the piano frequently relapsing into a triplet rhythm. The claron call of the Ruy Blas was missed entirely, and here more than anywhere I regretted the lack of that great quality of tone of which I know Mrs. Flaherty to be capable.

By the Associated Press.

Government permission for four Protestant chapels to operate in private homes in Sevilla province infuriated him. In a pastoral letter he attacked the 1953 United States-Spanish "aid-for-bases" agreement, charging it sold Spain's religious heritage for dollars and opened the country to a flood of Protestant propagandists.

NADLER RUNS TV
QUIZ WINNINGS TO RECORD $152,000

Theodore Nadler of St. Louis, a man with a photographic memory, ran his television quiz show winnings to $152,000 in New York last night and became the leading winner on any single show. In total take he is surpassed by 11-year-old Leonard Ross, a financial wizard who has won $164,000 on two shows.

Nadler, a $70-a-week Government file clerk who has been on "The $64,000 Challenge" since last August, added $32,000 to his total by defeating Mrs. Lowell Thomas Jr., a world traveler, on a series of questions on geography.

Nadler also has defeated experts in history, music, baseball and anthropology. With last night's performance he went off the program, but is to return if challenged.

"If any burglars are listening, the money isn't at home," he said in good humor. "It's in a vault in a New York bank."

ART MUSEUM LECTURE ON USE OF WALLPAPER

William E. Katzenbach of New York, a wallpaper designer and manufacturer, will speak on the artistic use of wallpaper at 8 p.m. today at the City Art Museum.

Katzenbach is credited with the first use of the silk screen process for hand-printed wallpaper. He designed special papers used in the United States Building at the Chicago World's Fair, and in administration buildings at the New York World's Fair.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., April 8 (AP)—Thomas Harris MacDonald, who had an important role in developing the highway system, died last night on the campus of Texas A. & M. College. He was 76 years old.

Mr. MacDonald served as chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads for 34 years. He retired in 1953 and came to Texas A. & M. where he held the title of distinguished research engineer.

Haydn Work Discovered.

LONDON, April 8 (AP)—A hitherto unknown composition by Haydn has been published by a music house in Leningrad, Moscow radio said last night. The composition is a short suite for two French horns.

The broadcast said the original of this piece had been discovered at the Leningrad public library.

was summoned to Rome, presumably to be admonished by the Vatican. Under an agreement between the Vatican and Franco's Government, an archbishop coadjutor, the most Rev. Jose Maria Bueno y Monreal, was named to administer the archdiocese and issue its pastoral letters. Franco ordered government officials to have no dealings with Cardinal Segura.

BACH PERFORMANCE IS OF HIGH CALIBER

Society Effectively Presents St. John Passion Under William B. Heyne.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
The Bach Society of St. Louis gave its annual performance of one of the three monumental works to which its organization is dedicated, yesterday afternoon in Kiel Auditorium Opera House. This was the year for the St. John Passion; and the chorus and orchestra together with a group of six soloists, under the direction of William B. Heyne, brought a high order of musicianship and a noble spirit to its reading.

The St. John Passion does not have quite the same power and invention as the St. Matthew Passion but the difference is largely manifest in the solo parts. The writing for the chorus in those passages that carry on the narrative are unfailingly effective in emphasizing dramatic crises and the chorales have a direct, transcendent simplicity that makes any comparison seem trifling.

As for the solo narration, its quality of expressiveness—like that of the St. Matthew Passion—is responsive in every phrase, word and syllable to the sound and sense of the Biblical text.

As in past years, the tenor Glenn Schnitke sang the part of the Narrator and again his perfect enunciation guaranteed a maximum intelligibility. At the same time he used the lyrical and plastic timbre of his voice in a way that produced the widest variety of inflection. So the meaning of the words and the shifting emotional color of the recitatives consistently enhanced the value of the other.

Mr. Heyne's chorus was a little smaller than in previous years and for that reason was slightly more flexible. The balance of parts was excellent and, as usual, the quality of its composite tone was thoroughly sympathetic to the tenderness and elevation of the music being communicated.

Ralph Nielsen, a tenor with a virile ringing timbre and good projection, gave effective performances in the arias allotted to him. Bruce Foote sang with mellowness and nobility of address; Maud Nosler, soprano, and Lillian Chookasian, contralto, also gave creditable performances. Robert Speaker, bass, was responsive to the solemn import and spirit of the dialogue he intoned but the impurities of timbre in his voice made him less than satisfactory.

A small orchestra, drawn from the St. Louis Symphony, played well through the body of sound, at times, was a little too thin for a proper balance between orchestra and chorus. But all in all the performance was worthy of the music.

Rebounding Again Decisive as Celtics Even Series With Hawks

18-Point Boston Lead Whittled to One; Pettit Scores 33, Hagan 25

By Harold Flachsbar

The pressure-packed battle for professional basketball's highest honor once again is tied, two victories each for the fighting Hawks and the dazzling Celtics, and the teams today were scheduled to move on to Boston for the fifth contest tomorrow night in the best-of-seven series for a $10,000 jackpot.

Alex Hannum's scrappy Hawks, who won't give up the fight in the face of heavy odds, never have trailed in the final National Basketball Association showdown. They won the opener March 30 at Boston in two overtime periods, lost the second game there and then split two games here over the weekend.

It took a courageous display of clutch shooting to win the Saturday night contest, 100-98, before 10,048 fans and last night the St. Louis Cinderella boys came close on several occasions but dropped a 123-118 duel. Boston deserved the victory because of a great show by dextrous Bob Cousy, the six-time N.B.A. all-star.

There were 10,035 fans on hand for the Sunday night play-off, and with more than 8,000 announced for the Globetrotter All-Star game in the afternoon, a total of more than 28,000 for three basketball games at Kiel Auditorium over the week-end in a span of 26 hours.

Baseball's just around the corner but the Hawks are still going for the blue chips. Hannum's hot shooters, who won 20 fewer shots than the Celtics, had a 431 field-goal percentage to 415 for the Celtics.

Russell Comes Through. Sharing the spotlight with Cousy, a master at dribbling, ball-handling and passing, and a terrific point-man under pressure, was Rookie Bill Russell, the 6-10 Negro from San Francisco who dominated the 1956 Olympic basketball tournament.

The Hawks, with Charley Share, Jack Coleman, Ed Macauley and sometimes Bob Pettit doing the guarding, had held Russell in check in every meeting since Bill joined the Celtics. Last night he blossomed out with 17 points, making seven of 10 field goal tries—most of them left-handed hook shots—and he hauled in 20 rebounds, a key factor in the game.

Hannum several days ago said the series would be won or lost on the backboards, and the Old Sarge has been a good prognosticator up to date. The Hawks outrebounded the Celtics Saturday and won, but the Celtic edge was 67-50 in rebounds. On Sunday the Hawks spent most of the evening trying to catch up after a sparkling first period.

Pettit, hitting with his soft jump shot which usually baffles the opposition, took scoring honors in a free-wheeling game with 33 points. He made 12 fielders in 24 attempts and an eye-opening seven out of 10 in the first period, in which the Hawks moved ahead swiftly, 36-31, on the strength of his 13 points.

Good Saturdays, Bad Sundays. The Hawks, again showing signs of fatigue on Sunday following a brilliant Saturday performance, lost this one in the second quarter. They were outscored in those 12 minutes, 35 to 17, and in all three other periods they had an edge.

Cousy had 11 points and Russell only three in the telling second period but there was another Boston sharpshooter named Bill Sharman. He added five that quarter and finished with 24. During that second quarter the Hawks tumbled from a 38-32 lead to a 46-40 deficit.

While Coach Red (One-Punch) Auerbach naturally was elated over the Celtic victory on a foreign court, Coach Hannum refused to let the Hawks be counted out.

"The Celtics came up with an exceptionally fine game and they were just too tough to beat," said Hannum. "I thought we played a great quarter and we showed the spirit that can win this championship for us by coming back when we were just on the brink of getting beat last badly."

22 for Easy Ed. "Cliff Hagan, the rookie-of-the-year in the last month or so, again sparked us," continued Hannum, greatly depressed before he held court with the home visiting Boston writers. Hagan tallied 25 points, second high to Pettit on the Hawks' side, and Ed Macauley came through with 22 against old teammates.

The Hawks blew their early advantage—a first quarter which they hit better than 60 percent of their shots—by half-time, when Boston led, 66-53. Three times in the third quarter the Celtics, with everybody pitching in, pulled away to an 18-point margin. Then when Hagan's driving tactics, Macauley's sharp shooting at the foul line and from the field and Jack Coleman's outcourt shots reduced the Boston lead to 96-90, the capacity crowd gave the Hawks a standing ovation at the end of the third quarter.

Hannum's swiftness five times in the last quarter came within one point of tying, but the Hawks never could quite catch up or move ahead. It was 98-90, 101-100 and much later 118-117 in favor of Boston with only 39 to go. Hagan and Pettit did the heavy lifting to bring the Hawks so close.

A St. Louis bucket could have led to victory at that stage, but the green-shirted visitors took over again.

SLATER MARTIN (22) of the Hawks tries a jump shot which BOB COUSY (14) of the Boston Celtics attempts to block in National Basketball Association play-off game at Kiel Auditorium. The Celtics won the fourth game, 123-118, to tie the series at two games for each team.

Kubek's Clouting Captures Stengel's Fancy; Colavito Hammers Three Homers

SARASOTA, Fla., April 8 (UP)—Them that has gets, meaning the talent-loaded Yankees apparently have struck another baseball gold mine in 20-year-old Tony Kubek.

Kubek isn't even on the Yankee roster but that little oversight will be taken care of within the next few days.

If there was any doubt about his status, the 6-foot, 3-inch outfielder thoroughly dispelled it with a two-out, tenth inning single that drove in the winning run in a 3-2 victory over the Red Sox.

That made it twice in less than a week that young Kubek supplied the payoff wallop in a Yankee triumph. Last Tuesday he came through with a single in the ninth to beat Boston, 1-0. "The fella is fantastic," declared an almost unbelieving Casey Stengel. "He can hit, he can run and he can throw. He's got only one weakness. He still doesn't know how to flip down his sun glasses in the outfield. I'm workin' on that with him."

Kubek's tenth-inning single put a sad ending to the Red Sox exhibition season at Sarasota, Fla. Mike Higgins' team now has dropped seven straight and the Red Sox rank last among all 16 big league clubs in the grapefruit circuit with only six victories in 20 games.

Outfielder Rocky Colavito put on quite a show at Dallas when he rocketed three home runs over the wall to lead the Indians to an 8-7 decision over the Giants. His third homer of the day came in the ninth with one on off reliever John McCall. Al Smith also homered for Cleveland in a 15-hit assault on three Giant pitchers while Hank Sauer and Daryl Spencer connected for the losers.

The Pittsburgh Pirates rolled to their fourth straight victory and seventh in their last eight games by beating the Kansas City Athletics, 6-4, at Fort Myers, Fla. Lee Walls homered for the Pirates, but it was Gene Freese's two-run double in the seventh that drove in the deciding runs. Vern Law went the route for Pittsburgh, allowing 11 hits.

Charley Maxwell smashed a three-run double and also singled to boost his spring batting average to .476 in pacing the Tigers to a 5-4 victory over the Phillies. The Phils threw a scare into the Tigers when Ted Kazanski hit a three-run homer

Tebbetts Bawls Out Kluszewski; Wasn't Hustling

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 8 (AP).

MANAGER BIRDIE TEBBETTS of Cincinnati bawled out slugger Ted Kluszewski, for failure to hustle on the basepaths after lining a hit off the rightfield wall in the fourth inning yesterday as the Redlegs defeated Washington here, 9-7.

Tebbetts sent in George Crowe as a pinch-runner, and when Kluszewski returned to the bench Birdie told him, "I want all of my players to hustle, and that includes you, too, Kluszewski."

In the ninth off Bill Bunning, but Bill Tuttle collared pinch-hitter Frank Baumholtz's drive to end the game. Jim Hearn was the loser.

Milwaukee edged Brooklyn, 4-3, at Fort Worth, Tex., with the aid of a freak play in the ninth.

Elmer Valo's ninth-inning single hit base runner Don Zimmer and prevented the tying and winning runs from crossing the plate. Prior to the game, Dodger Manager Walt Alton announced Don Newcombe would be Brooklyn's opening day pitcher and then Newcombe went out and gave up six hits and three runs in seven innings. Two of the hits off him were homers by Hank Aaron and Bobby Thomson.

Cincinnati used an old familiar weapon, the home run, to defeat Washington, 9-7, at Nashville, Tenn. The Redlegs wiped out a five-run deficit with two homers by Ed Bailey and one each by Don Hoak, Gus Bell and Frank Robinson. Walt Moryn drove in three runs with a single and a double to supply the big punch in the Cubs' 8-6 victory over the Orioles at San Antonio, Tex. Bob Nieman and George Kell homered for Baltimore. Before the game, Manager Bob Scheffing announced Bob Rush would be the Cubs' opening day pitcher against Milwaukee, April 16.

Russell's excellent performance showed that the bagmuscle injury he suffered in the Saturday night game wasn't handicapping him very much. "It only bothers me when I bend backward," said big Bill.

Arnie Risen drew praise from Auerbach for shacking Pettit in the second period after the Hawks' star had scored 15 points in the opening quarter, with Loscutoff watching over him. Risen fouled out with 4-24 left in the third period. Chuck Share of St. Louis and Frank Ramsey of Boston went out on personal calls later.

Jeered loudly as he was introduced before the game, Auerbach raised his right arm and bowed politely to the fans.

Alex Hannum, the Hawks' coach, who doesn't care to say any more about Boston's rough tactics, feels that the day off between games during the rest of the series will help his club more than it will Boston. Ed Macauley thinks the Celtics suffer more than the Hawks from a week's layoff such as the one preceding the weekend series here.

AUERBACH IS FINED $300 FOR PUNCHING BEN KERNER

NEW YORK, April 8 (UP)—Red Auerbach, coach of the Boston Celtics, was fined $300 today by President Maurice Podoloff of the National Basketball Association "for unbecoming conduct" before last Saturday night's playoff game at St. Louis.

Auerbach punched Ben Kerner, owner of the St. Louis Hawks, on the mouth just before the game began.

The scuffle began after Auerbach asked that the height of the basket be measured, saying his players claimed it was too high. Measurement showed it was the correct height, 10 feet, but Kerner felt Auerbach's request was unjustified.

They argued heatedly and Auerbach, who coached Kerner's Tri-Cities team before going to Boston, then landed the only punch of the altercation.

Kerner said he had called Auerbach "a bush leaguer" for asking that the height be measured just when the game was due to start. St. Louis won the game, 100-98.

Supreme Court Won't Reconsider Decision Against Pro Football

WASHINGTON, April 8 (AP)—The Supreme Court today refused to reconsider its Feb. 25 decision that professional football is subject to anti-trust laws.

Reconsideration was asked by the National Football League and other groups in a petition which said the decision "constitutes a discrimination against professional football and a preferential exemption" of professional baseball.

St. Louisan Second in Archery Tourney

MOBERLY, Mo., April 8 (AP)—A Sedalia archer, Leroy Young, won the fourth annual North Missouri Bow Hunters spring archery tournament.

Competition in the 55 target shoot ended in a time with Young declared winner over Jim Fletes of St. Louis on the basis of Young's superior score in the 28 target field round. Both men scored 775 points.

Bud Thless of Kansas City qualified for the 20-pin award of the National Field Archery Association by hitting four straight bulls eyes at 35 yards. Winner in the women's division was Joan Curran of St. Louis.

Mizell Out of Cards' Opening-Series Plans After Failing Again

20 Tallies Scored in Inning as Birds Win

TODAY'S GAME

(At Charlotte, N.C.)

WHITE SOX

CARDINALS

Batteries: Chicago—Harshman Lollar, Cardinals—Wehmer and H. Smith.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
SAVANNAH, Ga., April 8—“Our hitting is fine. So's our defense. What we need to become a pennant contender is for our pitching to settle down.”

That was the feeling of Manager Fred Hutchinson of the St. Louis Cardinals as his club went through warm-up drills prior to yesterday's double-header here against the Chicago White Sox.

Hutchinson made special reference to Wines (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, one of his front line hurlers. “If Mizell can settle down and regain his control, he'll win 20 and remove a load from my back,” Mizell was to start the game.

In the nine-inning first game of a short-out double-header, the truth of Hutchinson's words was borne out to the letter. The Cardinals won, but it was all due to their power at the plate. And Mizell, poor all spring, again was horrible.

As a result, Hutchinson said later Mizell who beat Cincinnati five times last season, was not ready for the opening series next week at Crosley Field. The manager indicated Sam Jones and possibly rookie Tom Cheney would pitch there and Herm Wehmer the home opener Thursday night, April 16, against Chicago. But it was plain Hutch was terribly disappointed he couldn't count on Mizell against the left-handed-hitting Redlegs.

Yesterday's game was a pitcher's contest for only one inning. In the second frame the 7334 Savannah fans, an overflow crowd, saw a possible record for runs scored in one inning.

The Cardinals sent 16 men to the plate in the second, collected 11 hits and scored 11 runs, enough to win the game. It could have been a fear of reprisal or lack of confidence in Mizell that kept the Cardinals hitters blasting away.

In the last of the second the White Sox sent 13 men up for six hits and nine runs off Mizell and Bob Mabe.

In the Cardinals' spectacular second, Ken Boyer started the rally with a single to left as the first batter. Wally Moon and Hobie Landrith followed with one-base hits with Boyer scoring on the catcher's bow.

An error by Chicago shortstop Luis Aparicio on Bob Smith's grounder loaded the bases. Then the Cardinals rapped off eight straight hits before an out was recorded.

Hitfest Menu.
Of the 11 hits, Mizell and Don Blasingame had doubles, Boyer, Moon and Landrith two singles apiece and Del Ennis, Stan Musial and Alvin Dark one single each.

Mizell's wildness led to his undoing and nine runs for the White Sox in the second. A home run by Sherman Lollar, doubles by Dave Philley and Larry Doby and Jim Landis, three walks, a hit batsman and a sacrifice fly figured in the scoring. Landis had two singles in this frame.

An indication that more big scoring was to come arose in the third frame when Musial and Ennis hit back-to-back homers to open the inning. But

Pattersons and Kutis in Soccer Federation Final

By Dent McKimming

When the Soccer Federation championship tournament opened, six weeks ago, it was hoped one of the developments would be the discovery of new talent that might brighten the local scene.

But, as Pattersons downed Schmersahls of the County League, 6-0, and Kutis won from Carondelet of the Khoury League, 3-0, the soccer picture remains about the same for another season. The new, fresh element has not arrived on the scene. Many of the crowd of 1200 at Fairground left the stands before the final whistle, ending the semifinal round.

Of the 12 clubs that started in the playoffs, only two showed the kind of talent that promised a possible breach of the Kutis-Patterson line. In the very first round, on Feb. 24, the Polish N.A. team of the Khoury League held Pattersons to a 2-0 score. And in the second round, St. Edward did everything but upset Schmersahls, losing 4-3.

There Are No Open Dates.
For a healthy growth in soccer here there should be four or more clubs bidding seriously for the local championship. In this tournament the talent appeared to be spread too thin among 10 teams, none of which could prove a good match for the two leaders.

When and where Kutis and Pattersons will meet for the title has not been determined. There is no open Sunday date in the immediate future.

Failing to score in the first half when they had a favorable breeze at their backs, Schmersahls were doomed in their game with Pattersons, Paul Pisan, Frank Wallace and Gino Pariani scored for Pattersons in that early half. Bob Kehoe added two and Pisan one more in the second half.

Yet, it was the defense that appeared the stronger sector of the Schmersahl team. Mario Sesti, Dave Otten and John Saputo were not a bad backfield line. Joe O'Keefe had trouble trying to keep up with Pisan, but Tom Donovan held his own with Gasperoni. When the Schmersahl forwards got the ball they couldn't keep it. Tom O'Keefe and Ray O'Donnell appeared to know something about the job but there was nothing like teamwork in that front line.

Even against weak opposition, the Pattersons have been too often erratic, giving away chances that might have hurt.

Kutis Uses Reserves.
Carondelet, although beaten, was forced to play its reserves to make every player a star. Kutis reserves were pressed into service to fill the positions of Herman Wecke, Butch Cook and Harry Keough, who were playing in Mexico City with the United States team, and another replaced injured Ruben Mendoza. The change of personnel tended to balance the scales, but Kutis went 1-up in the first half when Russ Murphy lashed a penalty kick. The chance arose when Referee Harry Crawford whistled a foul of hands on Center Halfback Ray Berdeux. Carondelet players claimed accidental handling.

Murphy's shot was a bullet drive that Goalie Ed Baumgartner couldn't reach.

Two very well executed pass plays in the second half gave Jim Murphy and Bob Rooney scoring chances on which they made good.

O'Connor New President Of Skating Association
Dan L. O'Connor, father of three former skating champions, was elected president of the Missouri Skating Association yesterday at a meeting of the board of governors at Painters' hall.

O'Connor, secretary of the association from 1953 through 1955, succeeds Durward J. Hindle. William Kelly continues as secretary and Watson Gadd as treasurer.

Three new vice presidents, Weber Ley, Lou Schneider and Jim Hawkins, were chosen to serve with Ray Zuckerman, who was re-elected.

The late Henry Kemper's place on the board of governors was left vacant. The board consists of Lamar Otten, Bud Handlan, Ted Young, Gadd Zuckerman, O'Connor, Ley, Schneider, Hawkins, Kelly and Hindle.

O'Connor was secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Skating Union of the United States from 1954 to 1956, during Otten's period as president.

O'Connor's three skating children are Danny, 16; Ellen, 15, and Terry, 14. Danny, Silver Skates midget champion in 1951-52, also took the Western Open midget crown in '52; Ellen was a two-time Silver Skates midget winner, and Terry held

Trotters Drop 52-51 Decision To Collegians

The Harlem Globetrotters' cross-country series with the College All-Americans stood at 6-2, in favor of the Negro barnstormers today, following the collegians' squeaking 52-51 victory yesterday afternoon at Kiel Auditorium.

In a show that lasted more than three hours, Hank Novak of Canisius fame sank a free throw after the regular time had expired for the decisive point. He had been fouled by the Trotters' Willie Gardner in trying to get off a field goal as the buzzer sounded. He missed the field goal but made the first of two free throws awarded.

A crowd announced as 8126 seemed to enjoy eight variety acts in the floor show portion of the program as much as the basketball, which was quite different and lacking in luster compared to the N.B.A. playoffs.

Most veteran basketball observers agreed with the opinion of Coach Blair Gullion of the Washington University Bears, an "assistant, honorary advisor" to De Paul's Ray Meyer, the All-Star leader. Gullion said, "This is one of the weakest all-star aggregations I've ever seen."

Coach Alex Hannum of the professional Hawks was "scouting for talent" but left at the half with the curt remark, "There's no pro here." He was speaking of the All-Stars, not the Globetrotters, who have in Gardner and Andy Johnson made big boys who could make any N.B.A. club.

It was a story of who didn't play and who did play. The Trotters didn't use their clowning Meadowlark Lemon and Leon Hillard, chiefly because they were never ahead enough to let them clown. Chet Forte, a Columbia star who had been heralded as another Bob Cousy or Slater Martin, didn't get into the game for the all-stars, although he was in uniform.

"He's just not hitting," said Coach Meyer. "And we have to win some time. That's why we played it so close to the vest. We can't beat those big guys in a wide-open game."

Lennie Rosenbuth, All-American from North Carolina University's N.C.A.A. champions, didn't impress the pro observers nor the college experts.

"Rosenbuth is the most publicized college player of the year among seniors," said Leonard Koppett of the New York Post. "But he's certainly very 'questionable' at this stage as a pro prospect."

Nowak, a crew-cut blond with lots of fire and spirit, made 15 points to lead the All-Stars and Gardner also had 15 for the Trotters. Novak made nine of his points in the third quarter and he looked as good as anybody on the floor—afternoon-wise.

It was a different story when the big league pros met in the evening.

St. John's High Keeps Sports 'In Perspective': Most Students Join in Intra-School Program

By John J. Archibald

You don't hear much about teams from St. John's High School unless you happen to be a Catholic League soccer or baseball follower, but that doesn't mean sports at the South St. Louis school have been de-emphasized. On the contrary, there may be more athletes at little St. John's than at most of the other high schools in the area.

There are 470 students at St. John's, located at 5021 Adkins, and it is estimated that better than 60 per cent of them will compete in one or more events at the annual Field Day which climaxes the school's athletic year late in May. More important than this one day's activity is the fact virtually the entire student body is already trying to get itself ready for the big day.

"It's certainly not that we are against inter-school sports," said Arthur Weiss, the school's physical education teacher and all-around coach. "I enjoy coaching teams from St. John's against those of other schools and our collection of Catholic League trophies should indicate that we are out for more than the exercise. But we do feel that activities should be kept in perspective."

"One Gym and One Coach." "St. John's is a parish school of limited size and finances," Weiss continued. "Because we have just one gym and one coach, we must decide which is the best means of benefitting the most students. Varsity basketball for instance, is a relatively inexpensive sport, but to have a team would mean that a dozen or so students would monopolize a gym that might be used by many others."

The two sports in which St.

John's competes in the Catholic League, soccer and baseball, are outdoor pastimes which require relatively little equipment. Weiss is able to set aside two days a week to coach them, and rain or shine that must be it.

On the other days the wiry little instructor is busy supervising a boys-and-girls bowling league in St. John's own alleys, running the volleyball league, organizing a badminton tournament, or in some other way helping a considerable portion of the student population take part in sports.

"I've been a life-long advocate of physical fitness," said Weiss. "Every pupil should have the opportunity to play, despite his size or ability. Our physical education classes put great stress on conditioning, and team games are just a sort of dessert. About this time of the year, however, the kids are thinking about being able to help their class with a few points on Field Day, and they don't mind the hard work."

Freshmen Have Won, Too. The class trophy has been won by the freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors at one time or another. In only two of the 14 events is there a handicap system, yet the younger pupils always have been a threat during the 13-year history of the event, according to Weiss.

In softball the freshmen receive a three-run handicap if they happen to oppose the seniors and the handicap is correspondingly less if students of other classes are matched. There is also some handicapping in volleyball.

In the remainder of the events the St. John's students are on their own. They include 60- and 75-yard dashes, rope climb, shot put, baseball throw, broad jump, hop-step-and-jump, half-mile run, basketball free throw, tug-of-war, and 75- and 100-yard relays. The time schedule is arranged so that no small group of superior athletes can dominate more than a few events.

"It is a student-operated meet," said Weiss, an Indiana University graduate, who taught for nine years at Tower Grove Turner Hall before coming to St. John's in 1939. "The students decide who shall compete in which events, the typing classes take care of the paper work, and even the officials are students."

"When a senior has to judge the finish of a race involving members of both his own class and others, I believe he learns something about integrity that he would never get as a spectator."

279 Game for Wurth in ABC Bowling Meet

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 8 (AP)—The first-place Chicago team went another day in the American Bowling Congress tournament without a really serious challenge as the tournament moved through its thirtieth day yesterday.

The closest score to the 3126 shot by the Peter Hand Reserve team on March 18 was the 2914 put together by the Silver City Recreation of West Allis, Wis.

John Wurth of St. Louis, Mo., shot a 279 game last night, the third best single line of the tournament. Wurth opened up with a spare, got nine strikes in a row and spared again. He shot only 608, despite his big score. His first two games were 158 and 171.

THREE STATES IN SOUTH HIT BY TORNADES

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 8 (UP)—Tornadoes hop-scotched across a 150-mile stretch of Mississippi and Alabama farming areas today.

The Alabama Highway Patrol said at least 24 persons were injured in a series of twisters that hit in five different spots in northern Alabama. No injuries were reported in three tornado strikes in northeastern Mississippi near the Alabama border.

The heaviest damage was in the area of Hamilton, Cullman and Falkville, Ala., and near Tupelo, Miss. At least 12 persons were injured in and around Falkville, police reported.

As the tornado belt moved eastward, tornado alerts were sounded for northeastern Virginia, southeastern Tennessee, southern and central Virginia, and northern portions of North Carolina.

Police Chief Robert H. Long of Tupelo, Miss., said several buildings were blown down there including most of the frame structures at the state college experiment station.

Rocky Mountain Area Covered By Foot of Snow

DENVER, April 8 (UP)—A third snowstorm in three weeks buried the Rockies, and high Plains states today under as much as a foot of drifting snow.

Another belt of heavy snow fell from Illinois to New York state. The snow piled 10 inches deep in Toledo, O., and there was eight inches at Goshen, Ind., six inches in central Illinois and three inches at Erie, Pa.

The mercury fell to 7 degrees below zero at Eagle, Colo., and Denver thermometers registered 9 above, a record low for April 8. It was 5 above at Cheyenne, Wyo., equalling a low set in 1875.

Freezing temperatures were predicted as far south as Tennessee tonight.

The storm swept into Kansas and the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles in the night after dumping an average of one foot of new snow in much of Colorado, Wyoming and Nebraska.

Leadville, Colo., with 36 inches of snow on the ground, had the heaviest accumulation.

Gusts up to 30 miles an hour whipped the snow into giant drifts in southwest Kansas.

Drifting also was reported from southwest Nebraska to the Texas-Oklahoma Panhandles and portions of New Mexico.

Heavy rains soaked the eastern sections of Kansas and Oklahoma north-eastward to the Great Lakes region, with one-quarter to one-half inch reported in a six-hour period during the night.

Another snowstorm was sweeping across northeastern Kansas, northern Missouri and southern Iowa. The Weather Bureau predicted a four-inch fall in the area and said strong winds would make highway conditions treacherous.

The eastern snow was wet and heavy, snapping tree limbs and power lines. At Cleveland, numerous power failures were reported.

STRIKING RUBBISH CREWS AGREE ON TALKS TOMORROW

Striking rubbish collectors agreed today to meet with Frank Kriz, city director of streets and sewers, tomorrow at 8 a.m. The work stoppage, which has halted collections in south St. Louis, is in its third day.

Kriz was to have met this morning with the strikers at the city incinerator, 4100 South First street, but the 120 truck drivers and helpers sat in their automobiles parked on nearby streets and, after about an hour, drove away.

Later, Pete Saffo, secretary-treasurer of Local 610, Teamsters Union, telephoned Kriz and said the failure to have a meeting this morning was "due to a misunderstanding." He assured Kriz tomorrow's conference would be held as scheduled at the incinerator.

The major complaint of strikers is that they have been forced to work more than an eight-hour day. Kriz contended the year-around average is about seven hours a day, since on many days the collectors work fewer than eight hours.

Dulles Stars Vacation. WASHINGTON, April 8 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles left today for a one-week vacation at his Duck Island retreat in Lake Ontario. The Secretary and Mrs. Dulles took off in a Government plane after he testified before a Senate committee on foreign aid.

They're bound to move out fast at these low prices. Check the outstanding features of this bargain. MORE BEER, LESS LIQUOR DRUNK IN MISSOURI IN 1956

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, April 8

—Missourians consumed 5,009,032 gallons of "hard" liquor in the 12 months of 1956, and 64,190,717 gallons of 5 per cent beer, the State Department of Liquor Control reported today.

The 11 quarts of consumption showed a decline from the 5,370,145 gallons reported in 1955, but beer drinking was up about 1,300,000 gallons. The total for 5 per cent beer was 62,890,583 gallons.

For statistical purposes the department estimated the per capita liquor drinking in 1956, at 1.2 gallons and the beer per capita at 16.2 gallons for the same year.

The department placed wine drinking with the state at 3,255,601 gallons, last year and the 3.2 per cent beer consumption at 8,687,544 gallons in 1956.

Five per cent beer shipped out of the state in 1956 by nine breweries was placed at 128,346,321 gallons and 11,793,231 gallons of 3.2 beer was sent to other states, it was said.

LONGER SCHOOL YEAR URGED BY PANELIST

Lengthening of the school year and the school year as a means of relieving congestion and making use of educational facilities located in the State of Missouri was suggested by the Rev. James T. Curtin, archdiocesan superintendent of high school in a panel discussion yesterday at the Academy of the Visitation, 5448 Cabanne avenue, under auspices of the school alumnae.

Other panelists were the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert S.J., president of St. Louis University, and the Right Rev. James E. Hofflich, archdiocesan superintendent of schools. Auxiliary Bishop Leo C. Byrne served as moderator. About 400 persons attended.

Father Curtin said the present nine-month school year is based on the needs of an agrarian economy, freeing children for three months in the summer to help parents with farm work. School enrollment is expected to double by 1970, he said, adding that longer periods may then be put into effect as a solution to congestion problems.

Father Curtin urged expansion of facilities for education of gifted students. Under the current system, which groups bright students with the average ones, many of the former "float through space for four years," he said.

NEW CABINET LEADER CHOSEN IN INDONESIA

JAKARTA, Indonesia, April 8 (AP)—President Sukarno tonight named Raden Djuanda, an engineer who has been Minister of Finance, to head a new Cabinet of experts who will govern without parliamentary sanction.

Djuanda leans to socialism but belongs to no party. He headed a list of 22 ministers nominated by Sukarno.

The new Cabinet, the seventh since Indonesia became an independent republic in 1949, will be responsible for forming a national council in which communists may be represented.

Sukarno has made the formation of such a council part of his conception of a "guided democracy" which would cut Indonesia loose from the forms of democracy as practiced in the West.

Sukarno Named Cabinet. The President named the Cabinet himself after a four-week political crisis brought on by a series of revolts by military leaders in outlying island provinces who rejected the Central Government's authority.

Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo, a Nationalist, and his coalition government resigned last month. Nationalist party chairman Suwirjo failed to form a new Cabinet of technicians without party loyalties.

Djuanda, born in West Java and educated in Dutch high school, is regarded as friendly to the United States.

He heads a Cabinet that includes Hardi, 35-year-old lawyer and a leader of the Nationalists, as first deputy premier, and Achmad Chalid, chairman of the Orthodox Moslems, the third largest Moslem party, as second deputy premier.

Mohammed Noor, a member of Masjumi, largest Moslem party, is in the Cabinet as Minister of Public Works.

More Trouble Brewing. Sukarno made his appointments as more trouble was reported brewing in South Sumatra and Celebes. A news dispatch said 29 soldiers had been killed in an ambush near Makassar, capital of Celebes, where a military junta has taken over.

In South Sumatra authorities have broadcast an appeal to all able-bodied men in the rebellious region to enroll as volunteers to cope with the increasingly "critical" situation. The call went out after South Sumatra's acting governor, H. M. Husein, urged the Central Government to withdraw Javanese troops he said were sent there to quell a revolt last month.

Last night's broadcast from Palembang, the South Sumatra capital, accused the Central Government of trying to suppress all regions outside Java. At the same time, it accused regional leaders of trying to topple the central regime.

AGA KHAN IS GRAVELY ILL, FAMILY CALLED TO BEDSIDE

CANNES, France, April 8 (AP)—Prince Aly Khan has wired an appeal to Rita Hayworth to rush to his child, Princess Yasmin, to the bedside of her gravely ill grandfather, the Aga Khan.

Prince Aly was summoned from Paris yesterday as four doctors set up a round-the-clock watch on the wealthy, 79-year-old spiritual ruler of the Ismaili Moslems.

Miss Hayworth is preparing to make a new picture in Hollywood. Studio aids could not reach her last night but said she had given no indication she planned to leave the country. The Aga Khan has been steadily failing in recent months. A medical bulletin last night said he had a recurrence of pulmonary bronchitis but was "slightly better and his temperature has gone down slightly."

RUSSIAN PRESS WARNS AGAINST WESTERN GERMS

MOSCOW, April 8 (AP)—Komsomol Pravda warned its readers yesterday to beware of "dangerous travelers" from the West who are spitting contamination into the Soviet Union under the guise of innocent looking flowers, fruit and clothing.

The Soviet youth paper thus revived charges—common in Stalin's time more than four years ago—that the West is waging bacteriological warfare against the Soviet Union.

The Komsomol Pravda article is part of a concerted Soviet campaign to alert its citizenry against alleged foreign spies. In the last several weeks Moscow has accused some of its Scandinavian neighbors of smuggling spies into the Soviet Union. The daily press has been featuring stories on alleged foreign espionage in the Soviet Union, and magazines have been running lengthy spy thrillers in installments.

Komsomol Pravda also raked up the old charges that United States planes dropped Colorado potato beetles in East Germany in 1950 and infected seeds on North Korea in 1952.

Leod appointment, as is customary, the word of McLeod's successor in the Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs has already leaked out. It is to be Roderic O'Connor, who has been a close personal assistant since Dulles became Secretary. O'Connor is now Deputy Assistant Secretary for Congressional Relations.

In many security cases during his first years in office, Dulles felt compelled where there was any doubt at all, to resolve the case against the officer or employee of his Department, lest he draw down on himself the suspicion of Senators who had made the Department their target. This may have been shrewd political strategy, but it created a serious morale problem that is far from being resolved.

Some talk has been heard of an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the release of the hearsay information about Norman's associates nearly 20 years ago. This might be useful, but it cannot undo the damage to America around the world.

Gen. Phillips

of reservists being called at that time, he was called up to serve in the infantry. It was generally believed in Paris at the time that this was done to shut him up, since he could not write while in uniform.

Charges Preferred. When he finally was released, with other reservists, he continued his campaign and in addition reported incidents of French brutality. For this he was charged with "undermining the morale of the French army" and presumably must face trial. The Express printed a letter from Brig. General Jacques Paris de Bollardiere in which he approved the campaign in the Express against brutality and asked to be relieved of his Algerian command. He is being punished for his temerity by being placed on the reserve list.

The writer was refused a military permit to go into the countryside because he "had written unfavorable things" about French conduct of the war in Viet Nam.

Lacoste's press officer once authorized a reporter to quote Lacoste as saying that to end the war what was needed was the elimination of 500 old-style French colonials and 5000 terrorists.

According to recent reports, the elimination of the terrorists has been proceeding at close to 1000 a week killed or captured and more than 30,000 killed in the 18 months of the war.

Terrorists War on Moslems. The Moslems in Algeria have been by far the greater victims of the national liberation front terrorists. Nine of them have been killed by their brother Arabs for each European assassinated.

This has been done to try to prevent them from co-operating with the French, as punishment for refusal to meet the levies in money and food demanded by the outlaws and for failing to obey orders to strike or close their shops as demanded for demonstrations of solidarity.

One Moslem and his wife operating a small restaurant kept it open during two days when the national liberation front ordered all business closed and all Moslems on strike. Within a week the throats of both had been cut. Shops that stayed open were bombed; many men who did not obey the orders to strike were killed.

It is impossible to tell whether a majority of Moslems are actually behind the rebellion. The guerrillas have never exceeded 20,000 in number. There is no doubt about the growing feeling of nationalism, but many observers believe the Moslems are thoroughly fed up with the terrorist campaign and support it only from fear.

Beg for Protection. Many villages beg for French military protection and many have been given arms for their own defense.

The national federation front demands a promise of independence for Algeria as a condition of negotiation. The French say they will not negotiate with terrorists and outlaws. The French say the front does not represent the Moslem people of Algeria—they have merely announced themselves leaders and no one has elected them.

The latest French proposals have gone far toward meeting rational demands. There are 1,200,000 Europeans in Algeria, many of whose families have been there for generations, as compared with 8,000,000 Moslems. The Europeans, the French declare, must be protected from persecution in any change of government.

France has offered to have representation on a population basis in local communities and an Algerian parliament composed of equal number of Europeans and Algerians. It proposes "independence within interdependence" in the French Union.

But the front demands independence or nothing, and so, backed by other Arab states with money and arms, the assassination, destruction and brutality continue.

have conducted training on a more or less informal basis. In time, they said, jet aircraft are expected to be sold to Saudi Arabia for training purposes.

In the past, the United States sold tanks, artillery, quarter-master equipment, propeller aircraft for training and nine B-26 bombers.

Projects being considered, officials said, include an air terminal for Dhahran and new docking facilities for Dammam.

Saudi Arabia refuses to grant visas to American Jews. American officials said they made clear in negotiations that the United States Government does not condone this. However, they said the Saudis said they saw no hope for relaxing this prohibition until the Arab-Israeli situation was improved.

system works fine. Others think the Ramo-Woolridge teams are little better than kibitzers getting in the way. Over-all, there seems to be less friction between the old-time contractors and the Johnny-come-lately firm that might have been expected. The majority feels that someone has to do the co-ordinating in such a complex program and that Ramo-Woolridge is well qualified for the task.

The third organization at the Schriever headquarters is the ballistic missile office of the Air Force's Air Materiel Command. Its job is to speed contract agreements so the massive project will not stumble over legalities. Its companion job is to keep critical materials flowing to contractors as fast as they are needed.

The ballistic-missile program of all three services will have absorbed an investment of well over $4,000,000,000 by the time the first perfected weapons is delivered to a combat unit. The sum is more than twice the investment in the Manhattan distribut project that developed the first atom bomb.

The Army equivalent of the Schriever organization, much smaller in scope, is the Army ballistic missile agency at Huntsville, Ala. It is commanded by Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris, a dynamic individual who started his military career as an enlisted Marine.

Navy Equivalent. The Navy equivalent, also smaller than the Schriever outfit and somewhere between the Air Force and Army in philosophy, is the special project office of the Secretary of the Navy, in Washington. Its commander is R. Adm. W. F. Rader, an energetic, red-haired Texan.

The Air Force approach is a bold one that admittedly involves a certain amount of risk. The danger is in trying to anticipate precisely the shape, the operation and the installation of numerous components that are not due to mature for months and years. There is also danger in trying to gear training, operational and maintenance programs now to a preconceived plan that is certain to require some reworking.

The purpose of such an approach is to compress the time interval between design of the weapon and its delivery to combat units.

The Air Force has taken over from the Army 66,000 acres of an almost inactive 88,000-acre Army base at Lompoc, Calif., about 60 miles northwest of Santa Barbara, for training crews.

The installation, Camp Cooke, will double as the nation's first operational missile base. It will be ready to fire in case of war.

HIGH WATER

Farm buildings near Poplar Bluff, Mo., stand in shimmering wasteland formed Saturday as flood waters of the Black river and its tributaries flowed over their banks, forcing a number of families from their homes and cutting some highways. Flood situation there and in the Kirkwood-Valley Park area eased over the weekend but the dry-out stage was delayed as rains fell again last night and today. Snow and sleet also fell in the St. Louis area today, tokens of a system of rough weather which has dumped heavy snow in a vast area ranging from Denver to Cleveland.

Dog of the Week

The mournful look would do justice to a bloodhound but the Humane Society Shelter's current Dog of the Week is not a bloodhound but a baset, and with little cause for mourning. Only a pup, about 8 months old, he can look forward to a long life of enjoying his status as a member of one of dogdom's most popular breeds. Coat is black, white and tan and he is available for adoption, although not recommended for children, on personal application at the shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue.

OUT OF THE RUINS

Array of modern buildings ranged on hillside in Hong Kong stand as the city's answer to the greatest disaster in its history—the fire which wiped out a 45-acre squatters' settlement Dec. 25, 1953. On the ruins were built the seven-story resettlement blocks which are the core of Hong Kong's refugee relief program. Forty of the buildings have been completed to provide homes for about 103,000 persons.

Television in Review

What the Russians Are Doing With TV

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, April 8.

JOHN GUNTHER'S "Inside Russia," which adorns the current issue of Look magazine, sidesteps Russian television so thoroughly that I sent Operative X-12 over to N.B.C. to ask a few questions of Irving R. Levine, N.B.C.'s Moscow correspondent and the first radio or TV correspondent accredited by the Russians.

The first thing that struck Levine about Russian television, he said, was that there were antennae on shacks at the edge of towns in Russia, just as there were in this country in the early days of television.

This was a little puzzling, since everything is so expensive in Russia, but Levine figured out that it was possible for a poor Russian family to have television because everyone, children included, works. They might not be able to afford boots, but if everyone chipped in, a family could afford 800 rubles (roughly $200 or about an average monthly pay check) for a set.

IN MOSCOW the TV station is on from 7 to 11 p.m. weekdays, and from 2 to 4 p.m. Sundays. There is no daytime TV during the week, for a very good reason; no one is home. In Moscow nearly everyone works, and the Government doesn't want to encourage absenteeism by daytime shows.

Practically all our wartime allies have either imitations of "The $64,000 Question," or "What's My Line" or "Klin Tin Tin" or "Hopalong Cassidy." But not the Russians. (We'll never understand these people.) What is Russian TV like? Well, there are no commercials. Programs don't begin any special time. When one program is over a curtain will fall and an announcer will inform you the next program may be expected in 10 minutes or 12 minutes or whenever. So you look at the curtain.

PROGRAMS, many pretty good ones, break down into three categories—feature films (mostly Russian, but some from other countries), live shows or variety thing from sports to ballet, and children's programs which include puppet shows, cartoons and stories—all the kiddie stuff being pure entertainment without propaganda.

The best of Russian TV, according to Levine, are things like the "Romeo and Juliet" ballet—all four hours of it—"Porgy and Bess," and the Boston Symphony. These things are televised from the theater on three stationary cameras. Crude as this sounds to our ears, Levine says it works out fine. The worst of Russian TV, in Levine's opinion, are chess matches—hours of them at a time.

I DON'T SUPPOSE any of the rest of you guys are interested in Russian television critics, but I am. Russian TV critics are anonymous and don't own television sets. They rarely see television and have very little interest in it, an accusation sometimes leveled at our own critics. Once a week in the newspaper Soviet Culture, "Teloserver" runs a column. "Teloserver" is a number of people in a number of cities. A correspondent in, say, Kiev, is told to write about TV in his city. He doesn't look at it; he consults viewers and officials to find out what they think about it. All criticism follows a general line: Is it good for the people? (When you come right down to it, that isn't far from the line followed by the critics in the degenerate capitalist democracies.)

Recently the critic for Tallinn, capital of Estonia, gave the singers and musicians the devil because they hadn't learned their music and kept their eyes fixed on the score. (Perry Como, who this season murdered the lyrics of "Night and Day" when his teleprompter went away, would have really caught it in Tallinn.) The critic was particularly shocked by the conduct of a well-known singer, M. Alexandrovich, who, oblivious to the audience, kept taking out his billfold and looking into it wistfully. It may or may not have been the singer's way of protesting that he was underpaid.

ONE DAY Levine was astounded to find himself watching a Russian version of "Tom Sawyer" on television. Mark Twain has been popular for years in Russia and is read in the schools. Three scenes dramatized by amateur actors from a Moscow auto works were the fence-painting episode, another, where Tom defends a girl in school, and one where he fights a rich boy. They were all good, Levine says, except the rich boy was a little overdone for the part—just as we ham it up a bit when we show Russian spies.

Age Does Count

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

"WHY shouldn't a woman marry a much younger man?" asks Mrs. E. "I was widowed a few years ago, and I'd like to remarry. But I am in my forties and there aren't many unattached males my age or older."

"I read in the newspaper lately of some widow who said it's a smart idea for a woman to marry a man five, six or even seven years her junior because this increases the chances for happy marriage. What do you think, Dr. Popenoe?"

"I THINK it's a pipe dream, Mrs. E. The woman who marries a man six or seven years younger might wind up with one who hasn't grown up, one who is really ripe for a substitute mother."

Suppose all middle-aged women marry men considerably younger than they are. Who would that leave for the younger girls to marry? No one!

There are many happy marriages where the wife is five, 10 or even 20 years older than the husband. But there are just as many unhappy marriages in that category, too. At the American Institute of Family Relations, we deal continually with such unhappy tangles.

THE OLDER WOMAN is jealous, thinking (as is sometimes true) that her husband will find younger women more attractive. And the husband easily uses the greater age of his wife as an excuse when everything else fails. It's a criticism for which she has no answer.

Marriage has a better chance when a man is not marrying a wife older than himself.

Don't Say "Discipline."

Q. What is the best way to enforce discipline in the home?

A. I don't like the words "enforce" and "discipline." What you really want is to have your children "learn." You want them to find out how to behave under various circumstances and assume responsibility. Better read a few of the good modern books on child guidance.

Turncoats Find Troubles at Home

Arlie Pate Quarreled With Father, Left Farm—One Has Wife in Red China

By Joseph R. Marshall

Of 21 American "turncoat" soldiers who chose to go to Red China after the Korean armistice, seven have returned to the United States. The following is the second of two articles, telling what life has been like for the seven since their return to their native land.

NEW YORK, April 8 (INS).

WHEN ARLIE PATE came home, he threw a leg over one of his father's 20-year-old work horses and galloped about the family farm. It was good to get home to the 78 acres, his reports of which had amazed the land-poor farmers of Red China.

Then, standing in the dusty, child-crowded living room, Arlie hugged his mother. "This is the reason I came home," he told reporters.

He sniffed. His mother, daughter of a Baptist minister, whispered, "Stop it." Arlie blinked away his tears.

He pointed in a sweeping gesture to the half-usable fields spread over the coal-bearing hills near Carbondale in southern Illinois, and talked of the future. "This," he said, "is my job."

His 54-year-old, epileptic father, Daniel, who hasn't been able to do a full day's work in 14 years, told how the farm mortgage would be paid off by May, 1957. "After that, me and the boys are going to do some fixing up."

But once again things didn't work out as planned for Arlie Pate. He was born, the second child of eight, in 1931, and grew up in East Carondelet, Ill., where his father earned 60 cents an hour as a State Highway Department employee.

The former postmaster at East Carondelet, Joseph H. Bulcher, said of young Pate, "That boy, while poor, had good training so far as church is concerned. I never saw him smoke or take a drink, nor did I ever hear him swear."

Arlie squirmed through school attitude "unsatisfactory"—until he was 15. Then, explained his sister, Mrs. Goldie Sloan, someone broke into his locker and took a pair of pants and $2.

He quit, went to work as a truck driver in East St. Louis, and sent home $10 each week from his $22 salary. Jim Nieman, his old boss at Brodhead Motors, recalled: "Arlie was a good willing worker. A little slow to get the dirt sometimes... easily led... He hadn't seen much in his life but poverty and hard times."

Arlie joined the Army at 17, went to Korea, was captured, and late in 1953 chose Red China rather than home, only—he has insisted—because, "I was curious... I was never a Communist... I wanted peace. In the paper factory in Aiden, where I was a third-grade lathe operator, the Chinese did most of the heavy work while I watched. At night I ran around and went to dances and movies having a good time."

He said later, "I didn't find peace there. I was homesick. China was not my home." So, after three years, he crossed into Hong Kong with varied ideas about the future.

He had written that he wanted "to do the same thing grandfather did." Grandfather was his mother's father, the late Rev. John Kelley, who for years warned eloquently of "hell fire and damnation." Arlie also could seek the religious footsteps of his paternal grandfather, the late Rev. Anthony Pate, who founded Pate's Chapel near Carondelet.

Besides that ambition, he wrote his family, "I am sorry for the sadness I have caused you and will make up for it when I get home."

He arrived home Dec. 6, 1956, to the new family farm and the welcome arms of his mother, who explained, "He's our boy and has a place here as long as he lives. He is not a bad boy. I don't know why he did what he did. I just don't know."

Arlie pitched right into family life. He went to church and, with a record 77 persons attending, heard the Rev. Lloyd Fielding give a prayer of thanksgiving for his return. He cut down an evergreen tree for Christmas. He helped on the farm brothers and sisters.

Then one day in mid-January, his father showed up at the office of Jackson County Sheriff Howard Chestnut. He had two black eyes. He signed assault charges against Arlie and another son, 17-year-old Donald. He said, "They jumped me and knocked me down three times."

Mrs. Pate reported her husband had started the battle, knocking Arlie across the room after the boys protested against his taking for his own use half the money from the sale of some cattle.

Finally, Sheriff Chestnut released the Pates.

Today's Brain Game

HERE is a quiz on events that made headlines in past Aprils. Six answers correct is excellent.

cent and of his "Elvis Presley haircut." He's working on the accent, an now has a collegiate crew cut.

He spoke frankly: "I don't go out much. Occasionally around the neighborhood. I'm just anxious to go to work. I go to dinners with some friends. 'I have several job offers. Mr. Champion has promised me a job but I don't know what kind of work it will be. Most of the job offers were office type work, public relations sort of affairs. I may finish high school in night class, maybe at Oklahoma City University...'

"I got a letter from my wife, Tanya, the other day. She is still trying to come here. Some more papers were sent to Washington to let her come here."

Although Tanya Hawkins, not an American, is trying desperately to come to the United States, the 13 Americans Hawkins left behind apparently are making no such try. One of them, James Benneris of Hawthorne, Calif., sent out a message last year that "I'll be in China another 15 years."

Some of them, like Hawkins, have taken wives. One of them, Sgt. Rufus E. Douglas of San Angelo, Tex., died in Red China on June 8, 1954.

Almost all of the 21 turncoats were young; the youngest was 20 and the oldest 23 when they decided to go to Red China. Some had been in prison camp for three years, ever since they were 17.

Before entering the Army, of the 21, six had graduated from high school and two had attended college. Eleven of them had been working at jobs ranging from $10 to $100 a week. Only three had court martial records.

As the seven who came home so simply proved, each of them had his own private, deep-hidden reasons, his private problems and his own brainwashing. Yet those often varied private causes led each to the same symbolic "turncoat."

Samuel Hawkins

SAMUEL DAVID HAWKINS, among the most intelligent of America's 21 turncoats, is basing—as he said—in "American freedom that warms me more than sunshine." But like the other six turncoats who came back before him, and perhaps the 13 still living in Red China, he has some peculiar problems—including a job, his White Russian wife, and his very slight British accent.

Hawkins was just a boy when he became a soldier and marched away from his mother, a part-time preacher, from Oklahoma City and the last semester in high school. Three months after he turned 17, he was captured in Korea, and after the armistice joined 20 other young Americans in choosing Red China rather than home.

"I half-way believed what I was told," said the 23-year-old turncoat, "and we were brainwashed and I was afraid."

As one of the most intelligent of the 21, he was sent to "People's University" in Peking, and advanced rapidly for six months until, he said, breaking rigid dormitory rules led to his expulsion. The Communists also criticized his courtship of an orphaned, convent-educated White Russian girl born in Harbin. He married her last June.

He was assigned to work as a driver and mechanic in Peking and Wuhan. Slowly he got more and more "fed up," listening regularly on his authorized foreigner's shortwave radio.

"The straw that broke the camel's back," he said, "was the wanton killing by Soviet troops in Hungary. I said to myself, 'To heck with all of it,' and decided it was time to go home. I had been thinking about it a long time, anyway."

Oklahoma City industrialist M. H. Champion paid his fare back to the United States, and Hawkins arrived March 3, to be greeted by some 400 persons, many friendly, some critical.

"Since I've been back home," he said, "I received only one telephone call and one letter which has been critical. But everyone else—everyone I have come in personal contact with—has been friendly."

He went to live with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Slaughter, who found, Mrs. Slaughter said, that he had "quite a bit of an accent." His grandparents and friends advised him to get rid of the ac-

Contract Bridge

By Sam Fry Jr.

On the first three hands of Saturday's quiz the bidding proceeded:

North East South West
1♠ 2♥ 2♠ 3♥
3♠ Pass ?

1. ♠Q1062 ♥75 ♦A1064 ♣Q93
Answer: Pass. We have already raised partner freely. His rebid, although showing some additional values, should be read as a competitive bid and not a distinct game try. We therefore do not have enough to go on.

2. ♠A9832 ♥3 ♦K1053 ♣553
Answer: Pass. We recommend this bid as a strategic move. Our distribution does justify our taking a fling at game despite the competitive nature of partner's bid. However, we'd rather be pushed to four spades by the opponents if we are to get there, to forestall a probably very cheap five-heart sacrifice. Our defensive values seem meager. (Four-spade bidders, however, get no demerit from this corner.)

3. ♠K984 ♥75 ♦A1064 ♣QJ4
Answer: Four spades. With a real maximum two-spade bid it is just about mandatory to go to game so long as partner can make one slight additional move, competitive or not.

The bidding on hands 4 to 8: North East South West
1♠ 1NT ?

4. ♠Q75 ♥84 ♦K53 ♣109532
Answer: Pass. No real problem here. If partner can't rebid we'll be perfectly content to defend.

5. ♠Q83 ♥82 ♦KJ4 ♠A10864
Answer: Double. Our best chance for a goodly plus score.

If we can make game anywhere the opponents, if they stay in one no-trump, should be badly hurt. Two diamonds or two clubs would both be wishy-washy bids—not aimed at game and bypassing the chance for a penalty.

6. ♠KQ10832 ♥A4 ♦JT ♣Q32
Answer: Double. It's likely the opponents will run, but we must double first to show our considerable strength. We are on lead with the spade suit if they stay in. Any other bid by us such as three or four spades will sound pre-emptive in nature and will not serve to expose a possibly psychic no-trump overcall to partner. We may thereby miss a laydown game or even slam if partner has the right cards.

7. ♠62 ♥KJ10862 ♠954 ♣83
Answer: Two hearts. A natural bid and not a one round force when the overall is an no-trump. Our failure to double one no-trump tells partner we are not particularly strong but that, obviously, our heart suit is a decent one.

8. ♠KQJ1092 ♥A43 ♣Q4 ♠K10
Answer: Double. Here there's a certain runout in the offing, either by our partner or the overcaller, whichever was psyching. After we find out we will act, but first we must make our strength clear.

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

FATE moves as imperceptibly as time in shaping lives. In every individual's personal history there is a decisive moment which determines success or failure. . . . Failure, ironically, is often the harbinger of success. Clark Gable originally flunked three screen tests at M-G-M. Several months later, he managed to obtain a minor role at another studio. The resulting flicker was witnessed by an M-G-M exec who gave him a part in "The East Side Story," portraying a milkman. When the film was released everybody wanted to know the milkman's name. And a career that seemed to have gone sour suddenly turned to cream. . . . Judy Holliday's big break in Movieville was the result of Katharine Hepburn's generosity. Miss Hepburn urged her to accept a minor role in her flicker, "Adam's Rib."

JUDY HOLLIDAY... HEPBURN BOOSTED HER.

During the filming, rumors "leaked" concerning the amazing job Miss Holliday was doing. The source was Hepburn. She informed reporters: "This Holliday girl is stealing the picture. She's running away with the film." As a result of the propaganda, the studio boss (who didn't believe Miss Holliday was suitable for the film version of her stage click, "Born Yesterday") changed his mind. Today, Judy Holliday is that studio's top asset. And Katie Hepburn gave her greatest performance—by acting like a human being.

WHEN FATE PLAYS its strange music, everybody dances. . . . Greer Garson had a typical Movieville experience. After getting a movie contract, she continued on salary for many months without being assigned to a flicker. Finally, she stormed into the home of the studio's general manager and thundered: "I was terrific in London. Look at this scrapbook. I hate the whole picture business. I wish I'd never come over here. But I want the chance you promised me."

The following day she was offered a minor role in a film. Although the part was small, it had tremendous impact and helped make Greer a star in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

THE ANTIQUATED—but valid—dictum about being nice to people played a decisive role in the Betty Davis story. During the early days of her movie career she met a little known British actor named Murray Kinell. They became friends. . . . After appearing in several minor flickers, Miss Davis's option was dropped. It looked like the end-of-the-world for her. As she was packing for her return to New York, the phone rang. It was George Arliss calling. The late, great star inquired: "Can you come over to Warner Brothers to see me? Murray Kinell tells me you might be right for the leading lady in my next picture, 'The Man Who Played God.'"

P.S.: Shortly after the movie was released, the studio signed her to a lucrative, long-term contract.

FOR JANE WYMAN, the happy web of circumstances began spinning while she was lunching at Sardi's with Mrs. Vincent Barnett. At another table was an influential booking agent who came over to Miss Wyman's table to say hello to Mrs. Barnett. During the brief conversation, Miss Wyman casually mentioned she was looking for an acting job. Right there and then, the agent wrote a note of introduction for her to a Hollywood director. And thus began another journey to the stars.

THE TURNING POINT in the career of Edie Adams, the "Lili Abner" star, was the result of a carefully calculated move. She was booked for her initial nightclub appearance in Toronto, Canada. The job paid $100. However, Miss Adams spent $1000 on a dazzling wardrobe. The result was a review in Variety, which neglected to mention her singing, but raved about her gowns. Among those who noticed the review was John Fernaldy, the casting director for Rodgers-Hammerstein. When auditions were held for understudies in "South Pacific" she applied for the job. Although Miss Adams didn't get the job, she made a good impression on Fernaldy. Several months later, he recommended her for the role in "Wonderful Town" which put her name in lights.

Advice to Brides

By Ruth Millett

ATTENTION, spring brides. It's almost impossible to change a husband once he gets set in his ways. Start him out right when the marriage is new.

RUTH MILLETT

Decide what jobs you think are "man's work" and leave them for him to do. Do them once and you'll be stuck with them.

Don't let him get into the habit of coming home after night complaining he's tired. He owes you a little of his best self, too.

So instead of offering him sympathy and an easy chair, go ahead and cook up a little fun a few nights a week. A movie may do more to make him feel relaxed than sitting at home. There's nothing more tiring than boredom, and he'll soon be bored if you don't have any social life.

Set up some kind of business partnership so that you don't have to ask him for money. Having to ask a husband for money gets to be frustrating in a hurry.

Don't take on his responsibility to his family. It is much better to encourage him to write his parents than for you to take over the job. Your letters to them should be in addition to his, not in place of them.

Don't let your companionship be all one-sided. Let him share your interests as you share his.

Don't let him turn his pay check over to you. It is better for the man of the house to pay the bills. Wives who grab the purse strings early in marriage often find themselves saddled with all the financial worries.

It is much, much easier—as any experienced wife will tell you—to start a husband off on the right track than to switch him later on.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: I go to an all-girl school. Our For our spring dance last year, I invited a boy I know, but with whom I had never been out. He accepted and we had a very enjoyable evening. I have seen him quite a few times since and he still hasn't asked me for a date, although he is very friendly. We will have our annual spring dance soon and I would like to know if it would be proper to invite this same boy to the dance, or might he get the idea that I am pursuing him?

Answer: I think a year apart would be very safe to ask him, and he could hardly think that you were pursuing him.

Ghosts in Irish Houses

The Ghostly Jig of Jocko the Monkey

Strange Tale of Lowney the Organ-Grinder and His Pet, Who Mourned Owner but Danced On

This is the second of a series of chilling, little tales of ghosts in Irish houses—colorful and witty with the Irish flavor. James Reynolds has long been addicted to ghosts—especially Irish ghosts because they are "more immediate and glowing." The author is a world traveler, painter of international reputation, horseman, authority on racing and a noted raconteur. The series is from his book, "More Ghosts in Irish Houses," recently published by Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, New York.

By James Reynolds

THE oldest dance in Ireland is said to be Finnegan's Jig. All along the West Coast from County Cork to Sligo, this tribal dance from the mists of remote antiquity has been tripped as a means to express the emotions of celebrants at a christening, a wedding or a wake, or just from sheer exuberance of spirit. Down the centuries there have been many claimants to the title "fastest jigger in Holy Ireland," but as far as I can find out the palm was always awarded to Lowney Bastable, the Playboy from Aran, a champion "from infancy to the grave."

The story I am about to relate I heard entirely from a retired sea captain. Capt. Kin-kaid had once run a small coastal steamer from Clew Bay to Bantry, across to the Blaskets and the Aran Islands, a triangular route.

One day in the year 1910 when the captain put into Kilronan on Aran, he noticed a young man dancing a jig, a veritable whirlwind of intricate steps, accompanying himself meanwhile on a fiddle. A large crowd had gathered on the quay, a farewell party of well-wishers, for today Lowney Bastable was leaving his birthplace to fare forth into the wide world.

As Lowney knew nothing in life except to dance, he had, in effect, traded an inarticulate tongue for a pair of fantastically articulate feet. His tongue since babyhood had been "tied to a halt on it," as his grandmother, with whom Lowney had lived his entire life, often said of his shyness! "But the laden's feet can talk faster than a starting twister."

So—when Grandma Bastable died she left a gray woolen stocking with 10 golden sovereigns, the savings of a long hard-working life, to her "dancin' playboy," as God keep a weather eye on him, and a last breath of whispered advice, "Go from here out, Lowney, children. Aran's a bleak, tortuous acre. 'Tis the mainland fer ye—go away out of Aran." And died on the words.

From the moment Lowney set foot on the quay at Mallowan he started to jig, and from all I have been able to learn of his will-o'-the-wisp life, a happy one by all accounts, he never stopped jigging long enough to get a night's-length sleep.

At evening, when everyone in Mallowan who could walk habitually took advantage of the fine sunsets to stroll along the Parade, Lowney fell in love. Quick as a flash of lightning can sear the heart of an oak. It was love at first sight when a little Sumatran monkey, hardly bigger than a rat, came bounding across the front of the cap. While Lowney was occupied in getting acquainted with Jocko, the monkey's owner, a dark-visaged Lascar sailor from some ship in harbor, returned to collect his monkey and his hand-organ. It was an odd thing entirely—many of the lazily sauntering passers-by noticed it particularly—that when the Lascar sought to lift Jocko to his shoulder, the little monkey cringed away as frightened and fearful as a baby.

Then and there Lowney placed his bid. Would the man sell him his monkey? Well—perhaps—He would gladly sell him organ and monkey—had cess to them both. He was for taking ship away to foreign ports again. What would be pay?

Gold. The Lascar's eyes widened. So for the price of one golden sovereign the bargain was struck and Lowney Bastable found that he was now set up in business as an organ-grinder, complete with a monkey in a Zouave uniform holding aloft a battered old tin cup.

From this time out the legend grew. Few persons in this world, whatever their station, become a legend while yet alive. But all Ireland and beyond came to hear of Lowney and his monkey, Jocko. For however adept, swift and vital was Lowney at dancing Finnegan's Jig, Jocko was better. Everywhere the two danced their success was uproarious.

LONDON music-hall manager traveling in Galway offered a bid for Lowney to come to London to jig "on the 'alls." "No"—Lowney shook his head and smiled shyly, a small boy's smile for all his 40 years. "I don't think Jocko 'ud like it. I'm hearing tell there's danger in the streets of London."

What Lowney did not tell the man from London was the fact that he was worried, more miserably worried than he would admit even to himself. Jocko was sick. Yes, his treasured little Jocko the Acrobat, who was his "heart's heart" as well as the best jigger in the land, was miserably sick.

But if Lowney thought there was danger lurking in the streets of London, he failed to realize that danger lurks wherever man treads. Danger is destiny and destiny is danger. One day when it had rained for over a week the coast was sodden. The fields, the alleys, the cobbles, the great flat stones of Eyre Square in Galway Old City, where Lowney and Jocko were dancing at a street carnival under canvas, were treacherous with the slime left by incessant rain.

Lowney and Jocko, who grew more and more listless at his tricks these days, were just finishing a fast jig. The straggling crowd of watchers shouted approval; a few flung coppers clinked as metal struck the stones. Someone shouted, "Bucko, give us Finnegan's Jig!"

It is told to this day in Galway that never was so pitiable a sight as the distracted little Jocko. That he kept clasping his arms around the neck of his friend Lowney, crying like a small child bereft of its mother.

No one knew quite what to do with Jocko. But he solved that problem for himself. Sometime near dawn after the tragedy the monkey slipped out of a window of a pub. He had been taken there by a kindly proprietor who sat up for hours feeding hot broth to the shivering animal and who sought his own bed only when he thought Jocko asleep and well bedded down. The monkey, when all was silent in the dark pub, Jocko disappeared off the face of the earth—or so it seemed.

A FEW weeks after Lowney Bastable had been buried in Old Spanish Town Cemetery, a man chanced to be passing by, taking a short cut to his home near the Gypsy Claddagh, a clutch of houses outside the old walls of Galway. There, on a small wooden cross marking Lowney's grave, sat a monkey.

The man was a newcomer to Galway, and knew nothing of the circumstances of accident,

Fix It Yourself

Dangerous Electrical Outlets.

WE ARE ALL in favor of more electrical outlets in the home—assuming there are enough electric circuits to carry the load—but we don't care for them in the bathroom or near the kitchen sink.

The reason is that if there is an outlet, someone will sooner or later plug an appliance into it and then sooner or later they'll touch the appliance with a nice wet hand. Often that's all that's needed to get you away from all these worldly worries.

Electricity can be had enough when it's all by itself but when it combines with water it can be even more dangerous to a human being. For example, when the skin is wet you can receive a shock over 20 times more powerful than when the skin is perfectly dry.

Many of us today have all sorts of small portable appliances in the kitchen to ease the job of cooking. These are wonderful inventions but they should never be used near the kitchen sink or on the gas range or on a wet counter top. Even the little radio can be a dangerous item if handled with wet hands and even worse if another hand is in the kitchen sink, bathroom lavatory or tub.

Another danger of having small appliances near the sink, lavatory or tub is the chance that they may be knocked into the water where they can cause lots of trouble if anyone is in there with them.

So, keep all electrical appliances a nice safe distance from water and plumbing and heating lines as well. Any metal surface that is connected by metal to the earth makes a ground and you'll live a lot longer if you avoid ever being a part of this circuit.

New York Flower Show Annual Spring Event

By Marilee Chadeayne Martin

NEW YORK, April 8.

NEW YORK'S perennial salute to spring, the International Flower Show, made its fortieth appearance in new surroundings this year, filling 40 acres of the city's spacious modern Coliseum with its fragrance and beauty.

Thousands of New Yorkers and garden lovers from nearly every neighboring countryside swarmed throughout last week to the floral exhibits on Columbus Circle, at the southern end of Central Park, where the entire second and third floors were devoted to the show.

The colorful panorama included more than two dozen major garden displays, as well as competitive and invitation flower arrangements, amateur gardens and plant information centers. Theme of the spectacle was "Gardens of Little Old New York," which was enhanced by a huge backdrop of a square-rigged clipper ship moored to a lower Manhattan pier, arranged by the Garden Club of America. As a complement the club also arranged two early American gardens and likenesses of landmarks such as Aaron Burr's home and Barnum's Museum.

One Garden Club enthusiast interested in the show was Mrs. Godfrey Macdonald, the former Elizabeth Boeckeler of St. Louis, who came Wednesday night from Westport, Conn., for the floral event. Mrs. Macdonald has been active for many years in the Sasqua Garden Club, which has won top prizes in recent years for its flower show entries.

In addition to garden club activities, Elizabeth Macdonald has immersed herself in education the last year; she is now serving as president of the board of trustees of Rosemary Hall in Greenwich, Conn. Mrs. Macdonald is an alumna of the girls' preparatory school, as is her daughter, Mrs. Martin B. Gentry (Elizabeth Macdonald) of New Haven, Conn. She will continue her post as president through next year in order to complete a special project. The Macdonalds' son, Godfrey Blair Macdonald, will be here the first of next month to visit his parents. Since his graduation from Princeton three years ago, he has lived in Memphis, Tenn., from which point he is able to get to Aspen, Colo., as so many St. Louisans do, for weekends of skiing.

Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald recently had a reunion with another former St. Louis couple, Mr. and Mrs. Clement Ross Duncan Meier. Clem and Dorothy Niedringhaus Meier live in Cooperstown, N.Y., where their home is called the Mint Patch, but they spend their winters in Westport. They return to Cooperstown this month.

Junior League Children's Theater in East.

THE Children's Theater of the Bronxville Junior League has been taking up the time of Mrs. S. Baldwin Garrettson the last few months. The group has just completed its spring production, "The Wizard of Oz," which had 11 performances last week, half benefit and half paid-admission shows. The Junior League troupe was seen not only in Bronxville, but on tour as well, and school auditoriums all over Westchester county—in Rye, Mt. Kisco, Bedford, Pelham Manor and other places—were packed for each performance. Virginia Holland Garrettson's part in the play was that of the Cowardly Lion.

The Garrettsons, who have lived in Bronxville for two years, are expecting a visit next week from her cousin, Mrs. William M. Elston (Marian Stoner Carling), and Mr. Elston of St. Louis. The Elstons plan to be in New York two weeks and will stay at the Elysee Hotel on East Sixty-fourth street. Mrs. Garrettson's sister, Mrs. David C. Clarke (Julia Holland) of Plainfield, N.J., will join the group in Bronxville for a family reunion.

On Metropolitan Opera Council.

SOME 215 leaders in business, civic affairs and music throughout the United States, who make up the National Council of the Metropolitan Opera Association, have welcomed to their ranks a onetime Missourian, John Fletcher Caskey, now of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Caskey have been interested in the work of the Metropolitan for many years and this year Mr. Caskey was elected a member-at-large of the special group.

Purpose of the council, which was founded in 1952 by Mrs. August Belmont, is to promote nation-wide participation in the development of the Metropolitan Opera as a national institution. The council's main functions are three. It finances a new Met production each year, this season the delightful "La Perichole," which is on the repertory of the Metropolitan's spring tour; next season the council will introduce a new production of Mozart's "Don Giovanni," which will have its premiere in October.

Secondly, the council sponsors regional auditions for young singers in cities throughout the country. Aspiring operatic artists try out for awards and scholarships in these regional contests and the regional winners are brought to New York for possible appearance on the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air. Last year nearly 1500 young singers competed.

The third function of the national council is its two-year-old Central Opera Service, which makes information available to opera groups all over the United States concerning repertory, production, scores, translations, roles, scenery, costumes, publicity and promotion. It published this year an opera handbook. Each year, also, the service committee holds an annual conference in New York for directors of professional companies, civic organizations and university and college workshops interested in putting on operas. More than 90 opera groups in America were represented at this year's meeting, just two weeks ago. The program included discussions and demonstrations of contemporary opera production.

Mr. and Mrs. Caskey, who have an apartment in Manhattan and a house in Stamford, Conn., will be in St. Louis the coming weekend to visit members of their family. He is the son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. John F. Caskey, and a brother of Mrs. Hugh H. Sullivan and Mrs. Sidney A. Weber, all of St. Louis.

Miss Roberta Lee Riegert, a student at Stephens College, flew to St. Petersburg, Fla., to spend her spring vacation with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Iyon Clay, who have an apartment at Redington Beach. While in Florida, Miss Riegert motored to Gainesville to visit the campus of the University of Florida. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Berner Riegert, 613 Country Club drive, Pasadena Park. She is a senior at Stephens, a member of Orchestria, modern dance honorary, hall manager of her residence hall, Tower, and a member of the senior Sister organization.

My Day

Something Of Value in Colonialism

By Eleanor Roosevelt

MARRAKECH, Morocco. MOROCCO does not lean to Communism, but if its economy is not bolstered to meet the needs of its people, it may, like other countries, question the value of democracy. It is essential for the West to remember this and think of these North African states in relation to the Near East and world problems.

Mr. Agar, who is traveling with us as a representative of the Sultan, is a most interesting man. He understands the Moroccan problems, appreciating what has been left by the French protectorate that is good—excellent roads, a system of justice which may not have been even-handed in the past but can be made so now, and the facilities for tourists, which include many good hotels.

HAVING SEEN India and Pakistan, various Near Eastern countries, and Morocco, I look at the colonial problems with increased understanding. From the point of view of an occupying country, there cannot be complete altruism. There must be economic returns. The question is: How much and how long?

The British and French have been practical, but they had a conscience, too, in their colonial governments. Both have left something of value to the natives of the countries once under their tutelage. Consequently a closer relationship may develop, as states get their freedom, with the countries which free them if an equitable economic base is worked out.

A WALK in the garden, one or two talks and some writing took up my morning, then after lunch we went to the spice market and other shops. The streets between the shops here are covered with bamboo to keep off the sun.

Late in the afternoon we visited Villa Taylor, which now is owned by Count de Breteuil. It is closed, but Mme. de Breteuil came from Rabat to greet us and to give each lady a Moroccan necklace from her husband's collection.

I saw the room in the villa which had been occupied by my husband and Sir Winston Churchill during their conference here in World War II and was grateful for the hospitality of our kind hosts.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

WILL you please give your opinion to a crazy mixed-up grandmother of 53? I have two daughters, 32 and 34, five wonderful grandchildren. Always I have been very active. I was married when I was quite young and my children and I have been like sisters. Their friends were always my friends and my friends were their friends. I am still considered attractive and young-looking for my age. I bowl four times a week, go fishing with my husband and his friends, play cards on Saturday with a husband and wife club. I have my children in for meals at least three times a month, baby-sit when asked, visit my children

Readers are requested to keep their letters short when writing to Martha Carr. For a self-addressed stamped envelope with the letter you send to Martha Carr, in care of the Post-Dispatch, Letters of a medical or legal nature cannot be answered.

once or twice a month when asked. My mother, who is in her late seventies, thinks I am crazy, so to speak. Am I living too fast a life for a woman my age? My husband enjoys most of the activities I've mentioned and we have always been deeply in love. Life hasn't always been easy but we've managed to weather the storms. I've managed to raise our children, buy two homes and we have a new car. I'm an excellent cook and always have meals on time. That's my secret of successful married life, girls. Cook the meals your husband likes most and have them on time.

MIXED-UP GRANDMOTHER.

I suppose there's no reason to slow down as long as you feel like going, but from your schedule it does seem to me as though perhaps you're rushing through your hectic days without really taking time to live and enjoy life. How much do you read, for instance? Do you ever take the time to work leisurely in your garden? Can you enjoy an afternoon cup of tea with a single neighbor as much as a card party? Do you ever walk through the Art Museum or Shaw's Gardens or the Jewel Box just to savor the beauty and the loveliness you will find there? I don't mean to criticize your social schedule. It seems to me that you have succeeded in creating a happy life for yourself and for those around you, but sometimes quiet and solitude are good. They give us a serenity to balance the hectic speed to which our world is geared today.

It would be best to check with each, however, before sending the books to make sure they meet their requirements.

The Dean Speaks Up

By Adele Starbird

THEY said I ought to be a Californian because I was vocal about the views and the weather, the only topics of conversation in California. To which I replied that few subjects are more deserving of attention, particularly when you have such views and such weather as San Francisco provides in the spring of the year.

Catherine Eames and I were there last week for the convention of women deans and counselors. I was reluctant to go, even before the earthquakes. I thought I knew San Francisco thoroughly—such arrogance!—and I was certain that I knew what would be said at the convention, having attended scores of conventions. As it turned out, I was wrong on both counts. You never know a beautiful city, though you see it a thousand times. And the deans of women said some old, old things that sounded fresh and new because I feared they had been forgotten. We have come full circle.

WITHOUT that foreknowledge, however, I was, as I said, reluctant. And the news of the earthquakes did nothing to whet my appetite for the trip. But pride sometimes serves in place of a nobler motive, and I went. According to the newspapers there was a slight quake one night during our stay, but I slept through it, to my great disappointment. Now that we are safely home, I feel cheated. The San Andreas fault might have obliged with a nice safe little quake during our waking hours, just as a conversation piece.

One lady asked, "Don't they ever correct those faults?" Apparently they do, at least for a time.

Kay Newbery, once a student at Washington University, was interviewing a young woman during the first serious shock. Noticing that the girl was almost green with terror, Kay said gently, "Don't be afraid. It's only an earthquake." The remark has been widely quoted, together with Kay's subsequent explanation, "Well, you see, I'm from Oklahoma, and I'm used to tornadoes."

ON SUNDAY, Kay drove me across the Golden Gate bridge to her charming apartment in Sausalito, which seems to be just one continuous window overlooking the bay and Angel Island, with a tiny terrace and rock garden to one side. I played with the Sealyhams, Happy and Hooligan, and watched the sailboats on the water, while she prepared lunch. She was having chicken livers and scrambled eggs and tomatoes. I offered to make an omelette, but she said she couldn't stand it—"You make such a production of it!" I thought that over. But how else does one make an omelette? There were thousands made in our house, and each one was a production, full of suspense and drama. Would it come out of the pan whole? Would it be a delicate beige on the outside and properly moist on the inside, so that it drooled a little—the French word is "baveuse"—when it was cut? They say that Alexandre Dumas was very vain about his omelettes. They must have been real productions!

I remembered the day when my father surprised me as I was listlessly stirring some eggs in a pan. "But that," he said with disdain, "that is not an omelette!" In vain, I explained that my husband was away and I was eating alone, that I was not trying to make an omelette. He made me start all over again, performing every step of the ritual in the proper way.

CATHERINE AND I attended all the meetings of the convention, but dashed out between sessions to shop at Gump's to buy flowers at Podestis-Baldocchi's—certainly the most beautiful flower shop in the world, to drink chocolate at Blum's, to eat dinner at Romanoff's and at the Camellia Room of the Fairmont where we were living, and to watch the sunset from the Top of the Mark; and each of these experiences was perfect in its own way.

We also managed to get up at a quarter to five on our last day to drive to the airport just at sunrise through a city white and gleaming against the bright green of the hills. And I noticed that everybody, porters, drivers, and waiters, asked eagerly, "Did you like San Francisco?" In Los Angeles they would have asked, "Did you like California?" To each city its own arrogance.

Haute Couture by Biki International Designer Pattern

IN this era when clothes avoid touching the body, Biki of Milan along with many other leaders of fashion continues to believe in shape, a theory which is beautifully exhibited in this model.

The binding on the neckline tops released inverted pleats which give lovely form to the bodice. The two front panels veer sharply towards center, a trick that seems to minimize waistline measurements, then turn out again to form peg pockets on the slim skirt. The seamed midriff section adds further definition as does the beautifully molded back.

Although the cut is definitely haute couture, even a beginner will find this pattern easy to make up since it is carefully perforated for accurate matching and comes in designer sizes which eliminate troublesome alterations. Choose silks, faille, linen, shantung, crepe, pique, novelty weaves or sheer wool. From this chart choose the one size best for you.

Sizes	Bust	Waist	Hips	Length from Nape of Neck to Waist
12	35	25	36	16 1/2"
14	36 1/2	26 1/2	37 1/2	17"
16	38	28	39	17 1/2"
18	40	30	41	18 1/2"
20	42	32	43	19 1/2"

Pattern S-315. Size 12 requires 3 3/4 yards of 39-inch material for dress.

Gradual Approach To Dating

By Elinor Williams

MANY cold wars between teen-agers and parents about "when to start dating" would never happen if girls would begin to date gradually.

It's too big a step for both teen-agers and parents for a teen-ager to be her parents' "little girl" one day and a full-fledged date-queen, the next. After all, you have to be a freshman before you can be a senior. Dating is like, that too.

A boy writes: "Dear Elinor: I have met a girl I like a lot, but her parents won't let her have dates, except for parties that she's been invited to previously. She is 15 years old. What should I do?"

Answer—You two can be together without having dates. Perhaps you can see her at her home on Friday or Saturday night. If not, try Saturday and Sunday afternoons. After her parents get acquainted with you in this way, perhaps they'll be less likely to object if you have a soda together or go to a neighborhood movie.

Many girls begin dating gradually, you know. So instead of trying to "go out" on "solo" dates with her immediately, why not invite her to school activities... a game, a dance, a play, etc., or possibly to Young People's things at church?

Perhaps her parents won't object to these "teen activities," especially if you go in their car with one of them at the wheel at first.

Foundation Holes
Before outside plants and shrubs get their leaves, examine the lower portion of the house and foundations for any small openings and plug these either with concrete or with metal. Holes of this sort invite various rodents to move into your home.

THERE are redbirds and bluebirds, so why not yellowbirds? North America has many goldfinches, and they go under the special name of "yellowbirds." As in other bird groups, the males are the songsters. Their favorite notes sound like "per-chick-oh-ree."

Q. Are goldfinches the same as wild canaries?
 A. Many persons speak of them as wild canaries. They differ, however, in several ways from the true canaries, which came originally from the Canary Islands.

Another name for the goldfinch is thistlebird. This name arose from the fact that goldfinches line their nests with thistle-down.

Q. How high above the ground is a goldfinch nest placed?
 A. Usually the nest is built in a bush, or on a low branch of an evergreen tree. It may be only four or five feet above the ground. In rare cases goldfinches make their nests on tree branches which are as high as 25 or 30 feet.

These little birds use strips of bark, leaves and moss when they build their nests. Thistle-down is used whenever it can be obtained.

Some goldfinches find old nests which have been given up by other birds, including blackbirds. In that case the old nests are given a soft lining composed of moss or thistle-down.

Q. Does Canada have many goldfinches?
 A. Yes. Thousands of goldfinches nest in various parts of southern Canada. Among the provinces which have a good supply of them are Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Manitoba.

Observers are warm in their praise of goldfinches. Said one of them: "Few birds seem to enjoy life more than these noisy rovers. Every month brings them a change of food, and they postpone their time of nesting." For NATURE section of your scrapbook.
